Kosygin Agrees to Visit Canada

● Kosygin spurns international Arctic talks. See Page 14.

● Trudeau Russian poet's superman. Page 59.

MOSCOW (CP) — Even as Canada and Russia entered a new phase of co-operation and consultation in a variety of fields Wednesday, Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin accepted an invitation to visit Canada.

When Prime Minister Trudeau first extended the invitation Tuesday, Kosygin merely thanked him without committing himself.

Wednesday, the prime minister renewed the invitation and, Canadian officials reported, Kosygin accepted with greatest pleasure.

No date was set.

A protocol providing for the new phase of agreement between the two countries was signed by Trudeau and Kosygin just prior to a gala reception given by Trudeau at the Soviet government guest house where he and Mrs. Trudeau have been staying in Moscow's Lenin Hills.

It envisages close collaboration between the two northern neighbors in such matters as Arctic pollution control, northern development, science, technology and culture.

It also calls for speedy exchanges of view between the Soviet and Canadian governments in times of international crisis, to see "what might be done to improve the situation."

Signing of the protocol followed an unexpectedly long, two-hour interview be-

Bolshoi Head Rates Margaret Good Prospect

MOSCOW (CP) — The woman director of Moscow's famous Bolshoi Ballet school sized up a slender and beautiful visitor Wednesday and pronounce her a good ballerina prospect.

The visitor was Margaret Trudeau.

"You have everything it takes to make a good ballerina," the director, Sophia Nikolaevna Golovkina, told Mrs. Trudeau after giving her an appraising look towards the end of the visitor's 1¼-hour stay.

The director told Mrs. Trudeau at another point that she would make a good gypsy dancer. The prime minister's young bride saw exhibitions of folk dancing as well as ballet dancing while at the school.

Mrs. Golovkina had still another observation to make about Mrs. Trudeau. "I can see from your eyes you are happy," she remarked before her visitor departed.

Spillover Pollution

Take U.S. to Court Nader Tells Canada

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada should challenge the United States before the World Court and other international tribunals on the pollution that spills over into this country from the U.S., Ralph Nader told more than 1,000 persons here Wednesday night.

Nader, speaking at a meeting of the University of British Columbia's alumni association, said Canada has an "exquisite" opportunity to generate "a common international law controlling these acts and contamination against mankind" and to develop international institutions "that will begin to exercise authority in the control of such international pollution."

"Along the Canada-United States border there's obviously more pollution going toward Canada than from Canada to the States," he said.

"I think it's time to begin developing a very healthy adversary relationship with the States in a legal context."

Nader, an American consumer affairs advocate, said if Canadians needed additional stimulation to do so, it "will be forthcoming in the AEC (Atomic Energy Commission) tests in the Aleutians, will be forthcoming in the Alaska pipeline and oil tanker sequence" and in the increasing pressures that will spill over into Canada as a result of the U.S. "lack of ability to toilet train ourselves in a civilized fashion."

Nader, a director of Consumers Union, which publishes Consumer Reports, said the public will never find a satisfactory formula for controlling power in industry and government until it adopts new standards of citizenship.

"This type of citizenship must be a fulltime occupation," he said. "People are already beginning to ask what can I do to help the community and how do I go about it?"

Nader also called for a new conscience on the part of workers in plants where the quality of workmanship is not up to standard.

Europe Units Intact

Nixon Wins Forces Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) The Senate handed President Nixon a major foreign policy victory Wednesday night by rejecting a series of proposals to force cuts in the 300,000-man U.S. military contingent in Europe.

The vote was 61-36.

In a day-long debate, senators turned aside a variety of alternative plans before rejecting Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield's proposal for a 50-per-cent cut in the European force by the end of 1971.

President Nixon had taken an uncompromising position against the Mansfield amendment and less-sweeping proposals pushed by other senators from both parties.

Despite defeat of all of the troop-cut proposals, the debate disclosed broad support for making some reduction in U.S. manpower in Europe. Senators were unwilling, however, to force Nixon to make such cuts.

Since it was introduced eight days ago, the Mansfield amendment was the subject of strong criticism in Europe as well as an all-out administration counter-offensive.

Backers claimed the amendment produced a significant improvement in the East-West climate by bringing last week's proposal by Soviet Communist party chairman Leonid Brezhnev for troop-reduction talks and the Nixon administration's response it was interested in talks.

"If the climate has changed," Senator Frank Church, (Dem.—Idaho), told the senate, "it is because the senator from Montana, Mr. Mansfield, put forth this proposal."

Before getting to the Mansfield amendment, the Senate voted down several variations on it.

No Long Energy Deals—Greene

MONTREAL (CP) — Energy Minister J. J. Greene said Wednesday Canada should avoid long-term energy trading commitments with the United States which may have unpredictable results on the Canadian economy before they expire.

Greene told the spring meeting of the American Petroleum Institute's marketing division: "There is no place in Canada-U.S. energy relations for trading arrangements amounting to long-term commitments too far in advance of our ability to predict their consequences to the Canadian economy and, therefore, to continental relations."

Few people were accurate in their forecasts for the last two or three years, he said, and with that in mind "it would be wrong to commit too far downstream resources which belong to the Canadian people."

"We are not against the export of these resources when they are clearly in excess of our own requirements, particularly where the export today can benefit the Canadians of today, and at the same time help generate the discovery of more resources for the Canadians of tomorrow."

Greene said Canada should be increasingly concerned about exports of more labor-intensive products.

Canada's trading partners should open their doors to more Canadian finished products if they want to make use of a developing natural resource industry in this country, he said.

"I am certainly in agreement with those who suggest Canada must achieve access to foreign markets for highly-processed resources carrying a much greater Canadian

Privies Rise in Protest

TORONTO (CP) — Irate homeowner Louis Bunda has set up two portable privies on the front lawn of his $50,000 home in one of Toronto's wealthiest neighborhoods to protest a sewer pipe mixup.

Bunda said Wednesday he set up the toilets after discovering that a sewer line installed by Yorkborough was five inches above the connection to his house.

The borough wants to charge him $880 to hook up the connection. Bunda, an investor, says he'll make do with the front-yard privies.

Why two of them?

"It's kind of a classy area," he said. "We need one for the guests and one for the household."

Added Winter Jobless Funds Denied

OTTAWA (UPI) — The federal government does not plan to extend the seasonal unemployment insurance benefits which expired last Saturday, Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey said Wednesday.

The minister had been asked by both the Conservative and New Democratic parties to consider extending the benefits for at least another month following the release of figures which showed seasonally adjusted unemployment had climed to 6.7 per cent in April from 6.0 per cent in March.

In a statement to the House of Commons, Mackasey said after reviewing the situation he did not think it necessary to extend the benefits. He noted it would cost $25 million to $40 million for a six-week extension.

Mackasey said as of May 15 the number of persons drawing seasonal benefits this year was 200,000 as opposed to 180,000 at the same time last year.

He described those drawing benefits as persons "who have a very minimal attachment to the labor force but are unable to qualify for regular benefits."

Mackasey said he expected

B-57 Down Near North Bay

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — A United States B-57 bomber with two persons aboard crashed Wednesday night shortly after takeoff.

A spokesman for national defence headquarters in Ottawa said the plane went down in a densely-wooded area about eight miles from the end of the runway. There was no word about survivors.

He said the scene was a "fireball and no-one can get within a mile of the crash. There's no radio contact at all."

Soviets Send Mars Probe

From AP-Reuter

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union announced Wednesday it has launched a space shot toward Mars and expects it to reach the planet next November.

Named Mars-2 and described as an automatic interplanetary station, the probe was launched Wednesday at 9:23 a.m. Victoria time.

A Moscow radio announcement said the station weighs more than four tons and will cover a distance of about 292 million miles to reach the vicinity of Mars.

The Soviet Union's first station aimed at Mars was Mars-1 launched in November, 1962. Radio contact was lost with it the following May, a month before it was scheduled to reach the planet.

Mars-2 is far larger and shows the development in Soviet space technique in the nine years since the Mars-1 failure.

The main purpose of Mars-2 is to "carry out a complex of scientific research about the planet Mars and the space surrounding it," Tass says:

Meanwhile, the U.S. space agency announced Wednesday a new postponement until May 23 in the launch of a Mariner unmanned spacecraft toward Mars while scientists continue to investigate the failure of an identical mission May 8.

Prisoners Barricaded

DORCHESTER, N.B. (UPI) — More than 200 prisoners at Dorchester maximum security prison barricaded themselves in the prison gymnasium Wednesday night. Two inmates were slightly wounded by buckshot while attempting to escape.

It was not known if they were holding hostages.

Wallace

Wallace Staggered by Loffmark Proposal

Post-Mortem Tax 'Impossible'

By HUBERT BEYER

"This would be a retrograde step — the proposal staggers me," Dr. G. Scott Wallace, Social Credit MLA for Oak Bay, said Wednesday.

Wallace was commenting on a plan, outlined earlier in the day by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark in Vancouver, according to which the provincial government would pay the cost of nursing home care for the aged, but would be reimbursed from the estates of patients with funds.

After a patient with funds had died, the minister said, the government would investigate the estate and the needs of the beneficiaries.

This proposal, he said, would counter Wallace's statements Monday that the government didn't attempt to provide care for the elderly unless they were on welfare.

But Wallace told the Colonist Wednesday the minister's latest plan for "a post-mortem tax" on nursing home patients in no way countered his criticism.

"This has got to be way-out," he said.

"It would be an impossible task for any civil servant to examine the needs of beneficiaries. It is bound to be an unfair method of financing medical care," Wallace said.

His main criticism has been and still is, the government's refusal to apply the same formula of financing to persons in need of medical care, he said.

"If the minister wants to introduce post-mortem taxation, he should apply it to all levels of care — acute, intermediate and extended."

If Loffmark's plan were adopted, Wallace said, it would mean that acute-care patients will continue to receive medical service at the "totally unrealistic rate of $1 a day," while nursing home patients would have their tween Trudeau and Communist party boss Leonid Brezhnev in the Kremlin, at which Brezhnev once again renewed his plea for force reductions by NATO and the Warsaw pact in Central Europe.

Brezhnev's pitch was the latest in a series of similar appeals he has made in recent weeks, and was clearly designed to enlist Trudeau's support for the idea that talks on mutual force cuts should be proceeded with.

Canadian sources said the party chief, most powerful individual in the collective Soviet leadership, dealt with the question at some length and hammered at the theme that it was time the Western allies took him up on his proposal.

It was understood, however, that the Canadian side got no clear answers to their detailed questions about what Brezhnev has in mind or the machinery for achieving it.

Brezhnev simply made it clear that he wants a considered reply from the Atlantic allies, and that ways can be found to get the negotiations going once general agreement has been reached that they should take place.

Brezhnev did not specifically ask that Trudeau plead the case for such talks with Canada's NATO allies.

And Canadian sources indicated that the prime minister would not relish the role o intermediary anyway. He has said in the past that Canada is not in the business of running messages for other countries.

Trudeau was accompanied at the meeting with Brezhnev by Robert Ford, Canadian ambassador in Moscow, external affairs undersecretary A. E. Ritchie and his special assistsant, Ivan Head.

With the party secretary-general on the other side of the table were Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and Boris Miroshnichenko, Russia's ambassador to Canada.

The discussion with the barrel-chested, deep-voiced Brezhnev was described as extremely friendly. It broke up in good-natured chitchat, with Brezhnev and Trudeau talking about Soviet film classics and, at the end, Brezhnev telling his guest to come back 100 times.

At a luncheon in the Canadian embassy Wednesday, Trudeau presented Kosygin with a Quebec-made snowmobile. The machine was parked in the embassy yard pending arrangements by Kosygin to have it delivered.

Kosygin viewed the gift from an upstairs window at the embassy. But Trudeau also gave him a small replica of the vehicle to examine first-hand.

The protocol on collaboration between Canada and the U.S.S.R., product of intensive staff efforts to produce a document for signature before Trudeau concludes his three-day Moscow visit today, was described by Canadian sources as significant and natural development in Soviet-Canadian relations.

It envisages co-operation on bilateral and international questions in about equal measure.

Canada and the Soviet Union, it says, will enlarge and deepen consultations on important international problems of mutual interest and on questions of bilateral relations.

These consultations will have a regular character. The two countries' foreign ministers or their representatives will meet whenever the need arises and in principle at least once a year.

Take U.S. to Court

"If you can't get a hearing on the inside go outside and blow the whistle. "This new type of citizenship is coming to the front more at the blue collar levels than at the professional level."

Nader said he is always happy to come to Canada because the CBC was the first network to air his complaints against General Motors Corporation five years ago.

He said there is a great similarity between environmentalism and consumerism because pollution in water is much the same as pesticides in food.

"If you fell in some of our rivers you would dissolve before you would drown. Some are even considered fire hazards.

Nader said air pollution is an enormous property destroyer.

"The victims of pollution don't cry out like the victims of violent crimes but more and more of them are filing suits against the industries causing the pollution."

"We must have a higher sensitivity to the pollution we are causing. Violence is being introduced on a massive scale and life cannot take this hammering."

He said the solution is not an economic one because the economy is coming under the control of fewer companies which have access to almost unlimited credit and government loopholes.

And it cannot be one of technology in a nation that got to the moon a year ahead of schedule.

"This issue is the inability of corporations to reduce this violence because it will decrease sales or increase costs.

"We must turn this incentive around and make it more costly for them to pollute than not to pollute. Then the whole motivational structure will turn around."

No Long Deals

labor content than is at present the case.

"In a country whose continuing problem . . . is that of unemployment this must be a prime objective.

"U.S. tariff policies which fail to recognize this essential Canadian need . . . may well be shortsighted and inhibit the growth of our resource industries." It would be politically unacceptable to continue exporting only raw materials.

But Greene was critical of those who insist that all natural resources be processed before export.

"If we had a monopoly on world production of oil, gas, minerals, pulp and all the necessities we export, I suppose we could insist that it be done. But such is obviously not the case. Each of these are competitive markets in which we must meet the competition if we would sell.

"If we are to find the best approaches and solutions we must face the fact that we are still a small part of the international industry in petroleum products. We are not in a position to dictate."

Greene said present Canadian oil and gas reserves are judged to be sufficient for 20 and 30 years, respectively. He noted that the Canadian Petroleum Association estimates that 90 per cent of the country's potential reserves have yet to be discovered and massive capital will be needed to uncover them.

Greene called the belief that foreigners actually own Canada's oil and gas reserves a "fable."

"Some 84 per cent of the oil and gas lands presently under permit in Canada are owned by the federal government. The remaining 16 per cent are either owned by the provincial governments, or some few charter companies who gained these rights in previous centuries, or by the farmers and settlers who pioneered in the development of our country."

estates taxed after their deaths for medical services they received.

"There's got to be a simpler and more sensible measure available in the here-and-now that would eliminate the need to tax the dead," he said.

"It would simply perpetuate an unfair arrangement whereby one group receives almost excessive coverage, and another receives none at all."

The average cost of hospital care, Wallace said, had risen to about $55 a day. The $1-a-day payment was totally inadequate and bore no relation to present-day economics.

"What I would like to see is something like a graded scale according to which a patient who stays in hospital for 10 days would pay, let's say, $5 a day.

"The patient who stays 20 or 30 days pays $2 or $3 a day and there would be a still lower rate for patients requiring extended care," Wallace said.

"The minister's proposal, I'm afraid, is no help. It's a retrograde step in terms of society's obligation to its members, and in terms of efficiency and sensible administration."

Loffmark, in announcing his proposal, also said the government would seek full reimbursement for medical services extended to nursing home patients if there are no beneficiaries.

"The taxpayers pay the bill while the patient is in hospital," Loffmark said.

Spouses and dependent children under 19, he said, would be considered dependents. Handicapped children older than 19 would also be eligible.

The system, he said, now is in effect at provincial mental hospitals.

Winter Jobless Funds

60 per cent of them would be back at work by the end of May when their last cheques arrive. The remaining 40 per cent would include those who planned to retire when their benefits expired and women who did not intend to continue work, he said.

The minister said because of the difficulty in assessing those who would qualify for additional seasonal benefits and the cost of such an extension, the government did not believe any changes should take place.

He said also the government would soon bring in legislation to deal with the problem.

The opposition parties severely criticized the government for its decision.

Conservative Lincoln Alexander said Tory members sat "in utter disbelief and indignation" listening to Mackasey's statement.

"The minister and the government have become so smug and snug that they have lost touch with the frustrations and despair that go along with being out of work for any length of time, or with being out of work, period." Alexander said.

He said Mackasey and the government "should accept our position that the first step toward providing lasting and adequate assistance for the poor, the unemployed and students is to get this economy back to full growth and full employment."

New Democrat Ed Broadbent said the government was not concerned with "the average person of this country."

He said if Mackasey were concerned "he ought to join the two honorable members who were recently cabinet ministers and become a backbencher in the Liberal party."

Former transport minister Paul Hellyer resigned two years ago in a dispute over government economic policies, and last month communications minister Eric Kiernas resigned his post for similar reasons.

'Maverick' Loses Post

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — The youngest member of the New Hampshire legislature, unpopular with his fellow lawmakers because of his antiwar stance and his reputation as an outspoken critic of the Establishment, has been relieved of a second committee assignment.

State Rep. Gerry F. Parker, 22, was stripped of his assignment to the environmental Quality and agricultural committee by Deputy Speaker James O'Neill who said his ouster was requested by committee members.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Just a note to the parents of that left-handed boy. Our daughter is left-handed also, and it got to be a constant argument between my husband and me. We talked to our doctor.

His reply was: "Did anyone try to make you change to your left hand? Try eating with your left hand. It's hard. Try for a week to say nothing to your daughter about it. Just praise her for her efforts to eat better with her left hand."

Today she eats left-handed and there aren't any more arguments. Meal times are a pleasure.—J.B.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I got a new pressure cooker (aluminum) and my friends tell me it is possible to get aluminum poisoning from food cooked in it, and it also has a tendency to cancer. How true is this?—Mrs. N.W.

Not true at all. People have been cooking in aluminum utensils for a great many years. Unhappily, some of the rumors about aluminum utensils are traced back to people trying to sell utensils made of other metals.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter is soon to get married and has asked me about douching. When I was younger, my doctor told me never to douche unless prescribed by a doctor. Just what is today's view on douching?—A.F.R.

Exactly the same as was told to you by your doctor then.

□

Note to D.P.: I don't know of any shampoo (the one you name or any other) that will "make hair fall out." If one did, you can be pretty sure that the manufacturer would stop making it.

Mt. Rainier National Park in Washington has claimed new world's record for annual snowfall. Nixon Gains in Control Bid

U.S. Trains Roll Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Freight and passenger trains rolled again under congressional edict Wednesday after a two-day signalmen's strike that finally broke the ice on President Nixon's long-standing request for permanent new powers to cope with transportation crises.

Under pressure from two senators who opposed the latest emergency intervention to end a rail tieup. Sen. Harrison Williams Jr., (D-N.J.) reversed his previous stand and agreed to start hearings next month on Nixon's 15-month-old proposals for averting further total shutdowns in the U.S. railroad system.

Picket lines were withdrawn and most trains across the country were back in operation a few hours after the president signed legislation at 10:40 p.m. EDT Tuesday ordering the signalmen back to work at least until Oct. 1 and providing them an average 13.5 per cent pay increase, part retroactive to Jan. 1, 1970 and part to Nov. 1, 1970.

With a few scattered exceptions, rail lines serving major cities were ready for the rush-hour surge of commuter traffic Wednesday morning. The Association of American Railroads said that all carriers were "operational," although it would take about three days to resume normal freight schedules and deliveries because of strike-stalled backlogs.

The new Amtrak rail passenger system reported that all but three of its 184 intercity trains were running normally.

Some mines and factories already were shutting down or cutting back operations when the strike was halted, and the brief walkout cost an estimated $2.4 million in lost wages in Ohio alone.

Parents Rejecting Slide Area Schools

ST. JEAN VIANNEY, Que. (CP) — More than 95 per cent of the parents in this Saguenay River community are refusing to send their children back to schools in the area where a landslide killed 31 people May 4. Bernard Gagnon, director of nearby Kenogami school board, reported following an inquiry that the families do not want to return to the community and are opposed to sending their children back to school there.

Historic Summit Confrontation Sees Heath Call on Pompidou

PARIS (UPI) — British Prime Minister Edward Heath arrived Wednesday for a historic summit confrontation with French President Georges Pompidou and said it would decide the political future of Europe.

In a statement at Orly Airport, Heath promised to seek the "closest understanding" on the great problems facing Europe.

He did so after Premier Jacques Chaban-Delmas, who greeted Heath at the airport, said, "it is a joy to welcome you on the soil of this continent which is yours also."

"It is a great matter of satisfaction for us that you have come to talk with complete friendship and frankness about Europe," Chaban-Delmas said. "But that you have come to Europe is for us Europeans more than a satisfaction — it is a great hope."

Heath flew in from London for two days of man-to-man talks with Pompidou in which he hoped to overcome lingering French doubts that Britain is not "European" enough to join the European common market.

Pompidou himself was not at the airport but Chaban-Delmas acted as representative of the French government.

Speaking in French, Heath recalled it was just 20 years ago that six West European nations agreed to pool their coal and steel resources.

They were France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg — the countries which now make up the common market.

Canadian Fishing Attacked

SEATTLE (AP) — Canadian troll fishermen are taking large numbers of immature silver salmon near the Washington coast, the West Coast Trollers Association charged Wednesday.

The group sent telegrams to the Washington and Oregon congressional delegations urging renegotiation of an agreement with Canada which permits Canadian fishermen to fish within three miles of the Washington coast.

Jim Bolin, manager of the trollers association, said most of the small silvers were reared in American hatcheries.

"Our taxpayers thus are paying the bill to raise salmon for another country to harvest," he said. "When you think about the problems we already have with the Russians, the Japanese and the South Koreans in our fisheries, this situation only adds insult to injury."

Frank Lowgren of Port Angeles, president of the association, said 40 to 50 Canadian trollers are fishing a "tremendous run" of small silvers just beyond the three-mile limit off the Quillayute River.

Unwarranted Intrusion

WHETHER the Vancouver halibut boat, Anthony J., was in American or Canadian waters when the United States cutter, Cape Romain, tried to arrest her is immaterial to the more important issue involved in the case.

What possible justification can the American Coast Guard present for pursuit of a Canadian vessel into Canadian waters?

There is nothing in international law which would allow such high-handed intrusion short of suspected piracy. And even in such case, when the suspect was readily identifiable, the proper course, surely, would be to inform the responsible government, confident of the co-operation of a friendly power.

Such evidence as the various authorites have divulged boils down to a fairly simple situation: The Canadian master, Capt. Jack Secord — whose name, by the way, recalls that Laura of Canada's early history who also gave the invader a bad time — believed he was fishing in Canadian waters. The cutter's commanding officer believed otherwise and ordered him into the nearest American port. Secord jettisoned his gear and ran for it, and the American followed, at one point threatening to open fire.

It is not yet clear whether all this occurred in what will ultimately be shown to be Canadian waters, but it is reasonable to assume that at least towards the end of the chase, as the halibut boat neared Prince Rupert, the American invaded an area of Canadian sovereignty.

This being the case, the incident demonstrates an arrogance and contempt of protocol more flagrant than displayed by the U.S. Coast Guard commander who sank the Canadian schooner, I'm Alone, on the high seas in 1929. It is true the schooner was a notorious rum-runner but it is also true she was 200 miles outside United States territorial waters when her master, the fiery John Randell, refused the cutter's order to heave to, and was sunk by gunfire.

One of the I'm Alone's crew was drowned.

Harry Bruce wrote in "Historic Headlines": "The real issue . . . is whether the United States had a legal right to destroy the I'm Alone on the high seas." And of course she had not. She had not even the right of search.

But it was six years before the United States government, in response to the findings of a Canadian-American legal commission, admitted the error and expressed regret at the unlawful sinking.

If there is some doubt as to the jurisdiction in the area where the Anthony J. was fishing it should be a matter of urgency for the governments involved to erase it. It had been generally believed that since the international boundary in the vicinity had been settled in 1903 there could be no question of ambiguity.

But even if there were it would hardly excuse such action as the Cape Romain's commander considered justified.

The Canadian government has formally protested to Washington.

It will be interesting to see whether they are still as stiff-necked as they were when Andrew Mellon brushed off the Canadian note after the I'm Alone was sent to the bottom.

More or Less?

THE FIRST REACTION of most Canadians to the national Conservative Party study group's suggestion that Canada's 10 provinces be split into 28 or 30 will be to condemn it as "foolish" as Premier Bennett has already done.

It should be made clear therefore that the scheme was only a proposal submitted by a committee and has received neither the acceptance nor the approval of Mr. Stanfield or his party executive.

It may be argued that Mr. Stanfield has been particularly susceptible to the findings of study groups in the past, which at times have led him and the Conservative Party to the brink of political disaster. The best example of this, of course, was his near-fatal adoption of the confusing "deux-nations" policy just prior to the last general election.

Yet despite this it would be unfair—perhaps even unwise—for either the Conservative Party or the Canadian public at large to reject this latest excursion into the dream world of Canada-as-it-might-be before all its details are exposed to view.

Perhaps the time has come when a reshuffling of the levels and areas of our governments is needed. Perhaps the time has come that some thought should be given to a realistic restructuring of our system to allow a closer and better relationship to be established between the various levels of government and the individual who lives in the highly populated areas of the nation and who carries the heaviest end of the tax burden.

Perhaps the members of the study group, whoever they may be, have come to the conclusion that it is important to recognize the fact that the great majority of Canadians live in groups of separate and highly populated island-communities which dictate their life-style, involve their interest and engender a fierce sort of patriotism which, even if parochial, may exceed the depth of feeling their inhabitants hold for the nation itself.

Whether or not this could be accepted as the basis or some new design of political living should only be decided after careful examination—as careful, say, as that given Premier Bennett's plan for reducing the number of Canada's provinces by half.

In the Middle East

Both Sides Want Peace

By MARQUIS CHILDS from Tel Aviv

THE CONTRASTS between the two sides in the Middle East conflict are very great. But there is one similarity that in the last analysis may swing the balance for peace.

The longing for an end to the bloodshed is as strong here as it is in Egypt. During the war of attrition the casualties reported from day to day, numerically small yet large in proportion to Israel's population, were the cause of nationwide anguish. These were the ablest young men, the pilots, the vanguard of the army.

With the truce in its tenth month the drone of helicopters overhead no longer suggests the return of the wounded and the dead from the fighting zone along the Suez Canal. Although there has been no real change in the tangle of claims and counterclaims from both sides, the assumption is that the truce will continue into the indefinite future.

Events in an unstable and unpredictable part of the world may shatter this assumption tomorrow. Nevertheless, among the Americans acting as midwife to a peace settlement still a long way from birth, it has produced something like euphoria. Shuttling back and forth and listening to the contentions of each side has had, they assume, a curative effect.

* * *

Moving from one side to the other the contrasts are overpowering. Israel is a nation intensely organized from top to bottom, with a discipline owing much both to a sense of common nationhood and to controls applied by a government operating under wartime restraints.

The Israelis are a Western-lized people, with the governing-professional class of the older generation, at any rate, educated in Europe or the United States. This means a technology exceeding all but the most-advanced nations.

As propagandists, even granting their built-in advantage in the West and particularly in the United States, they are unrivalled. They know how to seize every opening. Their unerstanding of the media is all-embracing. A constant stream of visitors, many of them guests of the government, get the full treatment.

The contrast with Cairo could not be greater. On the other side of the Middle East divide, the inquiring reporter goes through an exercise in frustration, with intrigue and internal division blocking all channels. The very absence of information from one side, with an abundance from the other, produces an imbalance no matter how objective the visitor may want to be.

In a speech last week President Anwar el-Sadat proclaimed that "our forces are fully prepared to fight the liberation battle." From what this reporter could learn from non-Egyptian sources in Cairo the Sadat rhetoric falls considerably short of the facts.

The army has been greatly beefed up with an estimated seven divisions between Cairo and the canal. There have been improvements in training and morale, thanks in no small part to the numbers who have gone to Moscow for special courses. But it is not essentially different from the army that was routed in the six-day war in 1967.

The decisive factor is the Israeli Air Force. Despite all the Soviet Union has poured in in advanced fighter planes, the MiG-21s, and advanced missile defences, the SAM IIIs, the Israelis are rated incontestably superior in the air today. That could be the genuine deterrent to a new outbreak of the fighting.

The enigma, the unknown Xs in the equation, is the Russian presence. How pervasive is it throughout the Mediterranean? Certainly, as the United States has championed Israel, the Soviet Union greatly increased its influence in the Arab world. The 13,000 Russian technicians and military men in Egypt are only the tip of the iceberg. So much is hidden from even the most-penetrating intelligence.

In an atmosphere of intrigue and suspicion it takes on a legendary quality. The top-secret MiG-23s, never before deployed outside Russia, are said to be flying over the west bank of the canal. At three times the speed of sound at an altitude of 70,000 to 80,000 feet, the 23s excel any U.S. plane. Their radar and missile-firing apparatus are positioned on planes at a lower altitude.

Are there actually such mystery planes, as reported, flying over the desert? Would the Soviet risk the remote chance that this weapon, with all its secrets, might fall into enemy hands?

In the gloomiest possible view, this interval corresponds with the Spanish civil war in the late '30s when the Nazis were testing their new weapons. But the professional gloomsters are not always right.

About the Dollar

Money Matters—Doesn't It?

By FRANK LOWE

ONE OF THE MANY subjects I know nothing about is the dollar. Perhaps it is because I have never had a chance to study too many of them — I can collect a few every now and then, but they never seem to hang around long enough to allow me to hold an in-depth review.

My realization that I knew nothing about the dollar came shortly after I got my first job. Prior to that I had been busy puzzling my way through the quarter and half-dollar stage.

But after I got a job, at $6 a week and all the old newsprint I could eat, my mother gave her newly-emancipated son a lecture on how the financial world worked. She told me:

"If you would only save $1 a week, you would be surprised at the end of the year how much money you would have."

Frankly, I could not for the life of me see how I could have more than $52. Which wouldn't have really surprised me.

But as a well-brought up son, I didn't wish to argue with my mother. Also, I felt sure she knew more about finance than I did so I merely nodded — and promptly forgot the whole thing, figuring the business of saving $1 a week was too complicated — even if it did have a built-in surprise for me at the end of the year.

As I grew older I had further opportunities to learn that the dollar to me was a continuing mystery. When I was about 18, thanks to a couple of lucky breaks in the freelance world, I actually had $400.

A couple of charming friends talked me into investing this money — "make your dollars work for you," as the experts say — in a weekly newspaper.

You know what? Those were the laziest dollars you ever did see. They didn't work for me at all. As far as I could find out they merely rolled over and died.

But the principle I always held to was that a dollar was a good thing. And the more dollars a fellow could get his hot little hands on, the better those dollars were.

I never did believe that money was the root of all evil. It seemed to me — and this came through bitter experience — that it was better to have a dollar than not to have a dollar.

But now, smack on the front pages of our most trusted newspapers, we are being told that too many dollars can actually make a fellow poor.

It is enough to make the mind boggle.

But that is what the experts are saying today. There are too many dollars cluttering up the world, so those that have 'em are going to suffer.

Mind you, I am one of those who won't suffer too much because, as I said, I never seem to be able to acquire even enough dollars, let alone too many dollars.

But even so, it hardly seems fair. Let alone understandable.

* * *

The dollar was once the Good Guy of the Western World. The dollar went galloping to the rescue whenever there was monetary trouble.

It is very difficult for me, and I am sure many others who are equally at sea in the financial area, to understand how the hero has so quickly become the bum.

Who is in charge of these things, anyway? Who has decided to rewrite the old familiar script?

It started a little while ago — or my confusion started a little while ago — when one expert claimed it was a great thing that the Canadian dollar had almost achieved parity with the U.S. dollar. For a whole day I went around feeling good —my dollar was doing its bit.

But the next day another expert got up and said this was a bad thing indeed, and all Canadians would suffer. My good feeling was replaced by a certain queasiness.

Shortly thereafter the experts said a certain project would bring billions of dollars into Canada. Hurrah, said I. But I hardly said it when another expert said this would wreck our economy.

And now the King — the mighty U.S. dollar — may not be dying. But apparently he is sick.

Maybe, as the new scenario unfolds, somebody will be able to tell me why.

Triangle Eternal

THANK YOU for the good article on the West Coast Park, May 2 by John Hogbin.

Of prime importance is the preservation of the Nitinat Triangle from further logging. Logging operations should be halted now, and compensation or exchanges worked out later.

This area is one of the most beautiful, as well as one of the few natural, original forests, left; in fact the only one on Southern Vancouver Island.

To preserve this for the future is far more important than the immediate gains of the moment.

Logging operations have been carried on with wasteful, destructive methods for too long. Had the timber barons employed policies for conserving the resources, with a greater amount of reforestation, and more respect for the total environment, they would not have to fall back on every last natural area in the country.

Another vital point is that there should be more than a half mile verge along the sea coast. Two or three miles is essential to maintain that ecological area, and to prevent loss of trees from gales, sweeping in from the ocean.

Logging companies have been king for a very long time, and now we, the people, should give our full support to the federal parks department in its worthwhile effort to save this wonderful area, and urge our provincial government and the logging companies, to acquiesce.

Need Shown

The Queen's visit has shown that there is a need for a head of state who is beyond politics. Although the two are women together inextricably, there are occasions when they can appear to be separate and these visits are just that. Tradition is like a keel in a ship, it's something to build on and without it we would be another banana republic. It is not required of a Canadian to be of British ancestry to have a Canadian Queen; all Canadians have a Queen. She is not an abstract myth but a person, who lives in our midst. She asks nothing of us except as our Queen to thus become a Canadian herself.

Long Play

Our most efficient, broad-minded and tolerant mayor of Victoria has, with a group of devoted disciples, decreed in his infinite wisdom that soon cars may not be parked round the public borders of Beacon Hill cricket ground. It would of course be grossly unfair to him to suggest that his antipathy is due to lack of knowledge and understanding; or that he just disfavors any game lasting more than an hour and a half, a game where great patience and a high degree of intelligence is important.

Turning to the practical angle, a normal club match may last for five hours or so; important matches and tournaments may begin before noon and last perhaps eight hours, including a lunch and tea break. Now, anyone who has sat through a complete game at Beacon Hill, even in midsummer, knows that before noon and after 4:30 p.m. if there be even a mild breeze from the sea it is almost impossible to avoid putting on protective clothing or retiring within one's car.

When the new parking prohibitions begin, the keen spectator will have to park half a mile away and carry on foot to the pitch a chair of some kind, a supply of food for one or two meals, a blanket and extra clothing for protection against the inevitable wind, and, for many enthusiasts, a pair of binoculars.

We are not all of us as sprightly as our dear mayor. It would be interesting to see how he would manage at an all-day game at Beacon Hill on a breezy day, without his car nearer than half a mile —or without an entourage to bring him the necessary adjuncts from time to time for his personal comfort.

BEEFEATER

Part-Timers

We learn with shock, from your editorial and from the Cowichan Regional Safety Council that Air Sea Rescue Squadron 422 is only on duty Monday to Friday and 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. — but "never on Sundays," Saturdays or holidays — nor the remaining 15½ hours a day.

Has anyone explained to you why it takes a duty crew 30 minutes to get airborne? And two hours to muster when "off duty"? How long might a normal person survive in 50-degree water before hypothermia sets in? Why not send out a power boat to pick up the corpses the next day? Why have $1,000,000 worth of equipment, installation and crew for a little salvage job when a tug-boat would do better — cheaper.

Water Boy

Now that the weather is becoming dry, I should like to ask all people who have pets or livestock of any kind to please be sure to put out fresh water once or twice a day. Also, bird lovers and watchers. Birds will appreciate a dish or pan of water put out in the garden in the summer, too. Some people who keep cats think that milk is sufficient for cats but this is not so. Please also give your cats clean water regularly. If animals and birds do not have enough water they may get dehydrated and become ill.

Today in History

Charles Lindberg took his airplane Spirit of St. Louis up through the morning mist over New York 44 years ago today — in 1927 — on the start of his historic first-ever solo flight of the Atlantic. Thirty-three hours and 29 minutes later Lindbergh landed in Paris to the welcome of 30,000 Frenchmen at the airfield. The flight won him a prize of $25,000 and the acclaim of Europe and America.

1963 — The U.S. Supreme Court ruled that neither state nor city governments might interfere with peaceful sit-in demonstrations for racial integration.

1948 — Canadian flying ace George (Buzz) Beurling crashed and died on a flight to Rome.

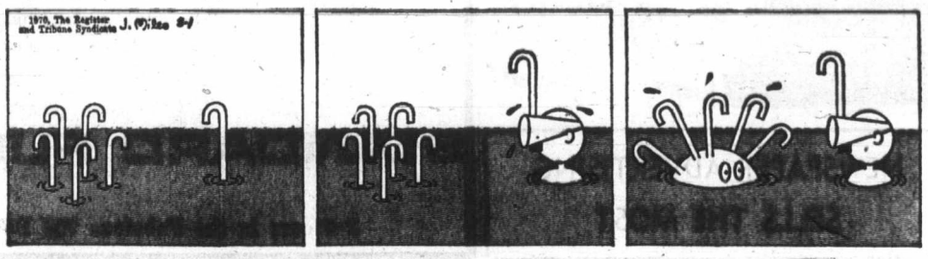
1941 — The Germans invaded Crete in the Second World War.

1922 — 98 persons died in an earthquake at Kamakura, Japan.

1851 — The first Canadian postage stamps were issued.

1536 — Henry VIII married his third wife, Jane Seymour.

PERKINS — by John Miles



Ping-Pong Overture to Economic Realities

China Needs Western Help

By ROBERT S. ELEGANT, from Hong Kong

Many funny things have happened to the People's Republic of China on the 22-year-long road to great-power status through effective internal government and industrial strength. Most extraordinary were The Great Leap Forward of 1958-1960 and The Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution of 1966-1969.

Even more curious things are now happening in terms of the neo-Marxist doctrines which compelled the excesses and ultimate failure of those sweeping social and economic movements.

The Chinese have recovered sufficiently from their harrowing experiences so that their economic — though not their political — institutions are necessary to sustain and accelerate economic momentum.

Decisions proceeding from the knowledge could be the strangest of all the strange things that have happened to Peking.

China knows she cannot depend upon politically manipulated — and finally withdrawn — Soviet aid.

The Chinese are also loathe to become dependent upon Japan, whom they have good reason to distrust. They are already too dependent upon Japan for goods from some steel to much fertilizer.

The logical partners in China's forward movement are, therefore, either West Europe or, of all nations, the United States, until recently the devil of Peking's secular theology.

* * *

The much vaunted ping-pong diplomacy, which immediately seeks political advantages, should logically include two other factors: a pragmatic appraisal of China's economic prospects and needs; and receptivity to foreign (perhaps American) assistance — under controlled conditions.

As always, Caveats, warnings and qualifications must accompany any broad conclusions regarding the People's Republic.

* * *

Figures are, at best, approximations because of Peking's secretiveness and ignorance; and because an agricultural, semi-monetary Asian economy resists measurement by conventional techniques.

Besides, internal pressures, only partially discernible to outside observers, can mock most logical projections.

But approximate figures show general trends, as long as the Chinese are acting quite logically on both domestic and international affairs.

* * *

Broad projections are, therefore, possible — with one caveat. One can anticipate what Peking will do, but neither exactly when nor how.

A few months ago who would have believed Premier Chou En-lai would throw in a ping-pong ball to open the new Sino-American game?

Still, the trend is clear. Chinese agriculture is now — just barely — adequate to China's needs. The production of some 230 million tons of food grains last year allowed Peking to reduce supplementary imports from 4.5 to 2.5 million tons.

* * *

Despite importing much fertilizer, China's foreign exchange reserves stand at approximately $800 million — and China has no debts.

Agriculture must be further expanded. But Peking can now reemphazie industry. Indeed, Peking must reemphasize industrial development, not only for its own sake, but to stimulate agriculture.

Decentralizing industry and requiring local authorities to find their own capital is only a partial solution.

* * *

China's basic industrial plant now consists of three elements: inheritance from the pre-communist period, purchases from the non-communist world, and Soviet-bloc facilities for which Peking paid heavily.

China has not attained the level where either capital funds or capital equipment are self-regenerating. Her inadequate basic plant cannot produce the machine tools, basic transport or heavy equipment she desperately requires for industrialization.

* * *

Yet China is determined to expand her industrial base dramatically in order to attain the full potential of her great size, incalculable natural resources and population of at least 750 million. China must obtain the necessary equipment from the outside world if her industry is to grow reasonably, much less expand dramatically.

The Chinese have already bought medium-size plants from the West. They have already bought a few medium-range British jets and turboprops for minimal internal air services.

* * *

Steel production, which is carried on primarily in foreign-made plants supplemented by Chinese ingenuity, is some 18 million tons annually.

The Chinese have secured reasonably favorable credit terms, the nly foreign aid, albeit indirect, they have received since the Soviet contretemps. But loans have not run more than five to 10 years.

Peking is not quite ready for critical policy changes necessary to set the country taxiing down the runway, if not taking off. But from the glimpses of the fourth five-year plan given to outsiders, such changes appear eminently practical.

China may not move fast, but China will move.

* * *

Among dramatic possibilities are long-range jets for international routes. Soviet aircraft are expensive to operate, and dependence upon Moscow is abhorrent. An outside possibility is second-hand VC-10s, though Britain no longer produces them. But a wide range of basic equipment is essential to China — from trains and trucks to drill-presses and blast furnaces.

New Chinese attitudes have unlatched the gates. It would be foolhardy to predict when and how wide the gates will open or what will pass through them. But they will, in time, surely open.

Incomes, Prices, and Maybe Foreign Exchange

Controls Seem Inevitable

By VINCENT EGAN

Eminent academics such as Harry Johnson and John Crispo may argue cogently — as they did this week — against them, but controls could be on the way just the same. Controls in Canada on incomes, on prices, maybe even on foreign-exchange transactions.

Why? Partly because other measures haven't cured inflation or unemployment, or prevented the recurrence of monetary crises despite "breathing speels."

* * *

Party because bureaucrats are human being with the universal human urge to extend their powers.

And partly because it's the trend of the times to back away from the concept of co-operation, and to retreat behind self-serving barriers.

Thus, when the chairman of the Prices and Incomes Commission says that he sees few alternatives to controls, it would be wrong to assume that he is indulging in idle chatter, or that no one in power is paying attention to him.

The connection between foreign-exchange controls abroad and our inflation and unemployment at home may not be readily apparent to the pensioner or the job-seeker, but it's a powerful connection nevertheless.

Germans cannot forget the runaway inflation of the year immediately after the First World War. They are deeply concerned about the inflation that has accompanied their economic miracle of recent years.

* * *

Chancellor Willy Brandt and his economics minister, Karl Schiller, are committed to the use of monetary policy in their fight against inflation. That means maintaining high interest rates to discourage unnecessary capital spending.

But high interest rates attract those enormous pools of international capital that can be switched from one country to another in an instant if the second country offers a fraction of a point more in interest than the first country.

* * *

A big influx of foreign capital tends to push up the value of the currency of the country receiving the capital; the obvious examples are Canada and West Germany.

That's very nice for national prestige, but it's not so nice for the economy of the host country — since it makes that country's exports more expensive and harder to sell, while making its imports cheaper and more attractive in relations to domestic manufactures.

The tendency to use exchange controls to meet these and similar problems has been growing and will almost certainly grow much faster in future.

Once imposed, controls are hard to lose. Eight years ago, the United States introduced the so-called interest equalization tax, as a temporary device to help correct its deficit on international payments by making it difficult for U.S. firms to invest abroad.

Since then, those controls have been extended, enlarged, toughened and formalized.

If the countries of the Western world are to resort increasingly to controls on the movement of capital, as seems likely, the outlook for prosperity and higher employment is uncertain.

* * *

Should unilateral national decisions replace the co-operation exemplified by such bodies as the International Monetary Fund and the Bank of International Settlements, then the world could well revert to the self-destructive trade turmoil of the 1930s — and Canada's jobless rate could go far higher than 6.7 per cent of the labor force.

Medical Scientist Becomes Crusader

Pedler's Meddlers

By AL SOKOL

Pedler's Meddlers in Britain will be the scientific counterpart of Nader's Raiders in the U.S., according to the BBC TV scriptwriter of Doomwatch who is also a noted medical researcher.

Dr. C. M. Pedler specialized in diseases of the retina at the Institute of Ophthalmology in London where he was a prominent and respected member of the healing arts.

The good doctor took a bad turn, according to his colleagues, when he began to write science fiction. Indeed, Dr. Pedler delivered the dreaded Cybermen to the world. Then he really turned off.

The man, who looks and talks tough, disowned his license to perform experiments on animals on the grounds he found such research emotionally distasteful. The laws of science, however, do not recognize emotion as making a contribution to research and Dr. Pedler's actions was inexplicable to his fellows.

But the worst was yet to come:

"One day I looked outside my laboratory door and didn't like what I saw," stated Dr. Pedler recently. "I saw that science and technology had got away from serving the human race and instead was serving the advancement of individual careers and company profits."

Rather than run for parliament, Dr. Pedler conceived Doomwatch for the BBC. This vehicle afforded him 12 million viewers for programs which graphically expressed his personal doubts and fears about science and technology.

He readily admits the scripts were more fiction than science, but adds the constraints of producing a popular TV series meant Doomwatch couldn't bear a strict relationship to real life.

Freelance Watchdogs

The Cybermen, robot-like creature which foamed horribly when they eventually came to their just desserts, were laid to rest for the final time last month by the BBC. But Dr. Pedler is keeping Doomwatch alive with plans for a program which would actually function in the reality of today's society.

In essence his plan is to gather together a band of six dedicated scientists, each with a specific expertise, to act as freelance watchdogs against the misuse of science and technology.

Their main task would be to confront and irritate the authorities — government, town councils, companies, etc. with uncomfortable scientific data whenever such organizations make "stupid" decisions.

As an example of the sort of outrage he means, Dr. Pedler noted the habit of many coastal towns in England of discharging raw sewage into the sea.

"The towns know they are going wrong, but if you challenge them they protect themselves by referring to a 1959 publication by the Medical Research Council which said there was no health hazard in bathing in raw sewage.

"In this case Doomwatch might take a group of science students, with training in the appropriate areas, to such a town," said Dr. Pedler. "By precise scientific measurements we would destroy the superstition that is used to soothe many of the wounds caused by misapplication, or lack of application of science and technology."

This seaside illustration also points out what Dr. Pedler believes to be the two most important aspects of a real Doomwatch: An emphasis on environment and practical field education for university students. These are merged with his personal philosophy.

"What really maddens me is the useless, rapacious technology that plunders the Earth of its natural resources for no foreseeable benefit to mankind — except for the lining of someone's pocket."

Dr. Pedler views the current obsessions with technology as "stemming from the fact our society is out of goals, absolutely out of goals."

Medievalism Lives in Italy

By LOUIS B. FLEMING, from Tuscania, Italy

Stone by weathered stone, this medieval city is being rebuilt. The 14th-century houses will be reconstructed first out of the rubble of the February earthquake, and then the churches and other monumental structures. The Italian parliament has decided to commit $80 million to the unprecedented project.

But more is involved than the restoration of a treasure of medieval and renassance art and architecture. The city's unique life, a blend of medieval self-sufficiency in the mid-20th century, is being preserved as well.

* * *

Hundreds of townsfolk now weave through a forest of timbers holding up the walls that did not fall, sorting stones that will be placed again just as they were 500 or 600 years ago. But the facade is all that will be the same. Inside, there will be modern plumbing and heating. And the walls and floors will get new lightweight metal reinforcement in the hope that this will offer some protection should another earthquake strike.

The project is unique in the world. Nowhere else has a town the size of this one been rebuilt stone by stone. This is because Tuscania is different.

There are two towns here. There is the old walled city, home for 5,000, built where Etruscans once lived, and there are the new highrise apartments outside the walls, homes for another 2,000. The new buildings sufered little in the earthquake. But the old city was destroyed and all of its inhabitants were evacuated.

* * *

The city is now sealed. The ancient ramparts hide most of the damage. Corrugated steel fences and high gates now bar entry through the vaulted gateways except to the workers.

"Our only real problem now is time." Prof. Italo Faldi, superintendant in the provincial office of fine arts, said. "It will take a long time to rebuild this city. We want to make sure that the people do not lose hope and go away, moving to the industrial north of Italy or to Switzerland or Germany."

There has always been a small emigration from the town. It is a poor area, 50 miles northwest of Rome. The young men, frustrated by the isolation and simplicity, have sometimes gone to the big factories to the north. But for the last 15 years the population has remained constant in contrast with so many poor Italian towns which show a constantly decreasing population.

* * *

The reason is clear. The people here have maintained a quality of life with roots deep in history. "For the most part, the people are peasants and artisans," Faldi explained. "Their economy is almost medieval in its organization, based on agriculture. The result is an almost self-sufficient society."

The people themselves cannot afford to rebuild their own homes. So the state will pay the bill, eager to save not just a work of art but a unique socio-economic unit with lessons to teach modern man.

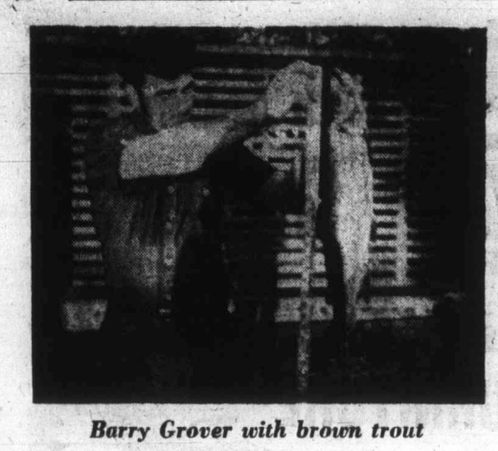
King Fisherman

Cowichan Trout in Lead



Barry Grover with brown trout

An 8.14-pound Brown trout from Cowichan River has taken a commanding lead in the river trout (other than steelhead or rainbow) division of the King Fisherman Contest.

Barry John Grover, 4128 Santa Anita, took his trophy fish on drifted worm and six-pound-test line in the upper reaches of the river. It took him three-quarters of an hour to land and "the biggest I had ever caught before was five pounds." He has had it mounted.

His 8.14-pounder could be a contender for the Centennial Fish of the Year award, for the outstanding quality catch of the King Fisherman Contest.

As a Colonist subscriber he is in line to win a King Fisherman trophy as well as the de luxe fishing rod offered for the biggest fish in that river trout category.

He ousts 12-year-old Stanley Kujala's 6.6-pound cutthroat from Taylor River out of the top spot.

Last year Eion Sutherland of Duncan won the river trout (other than steelhead or rainbow) division with an 8.13-pound brown trout.

In 1966 Sutherland won the Fish of the Year Award with an 11.9-pound brown taken on fly in July, so there is plenty of chance that someone will come up with a fish to beat Grover's this year.

Port Alberni Buffalo's Lodge will hold a two-lake open trout derby on Great Central and Sproat Lakes Sunday, with weigh-ins at The Ark Resort on Great Central closing at 5 p.m. and closing at 6 p.m. at Kjechstead Park, Lot 25, on Sproat Lake.

Trailer Families 'Hurt by Parks'

Building Code Rules Hamper Relocation

Capital Regional Board regulations have put mobile home park owners into a dictatorial position, and trailer owners are getting hurt, Langford representative Earl Pallister told the board's public works committee, Wednesday.

"I warned the board when we accepted the National Building Code as part of our regulations that if mobile homes were included, people would get hurt.

"This is what is happening now," said Pallister.

He said that since "few mobile homes reach National Building Code standards," owners are forced to locate in special parks, and are unable to buy an individual lot to place their homes on.

Pets Lost

"These regulations discriminate against 600 mobile home owners in Langford," he said.

"They have to abide by every rule, regulation, charge or condition that mobile home park owners want to put in, and there is nothing they can do because they can't move out of the system."

He cited the cases of two owners who were forced to get rid of family pets in order to stay in the parks.

Child Cried

In one case a family bought a mobile home and moved into a park, and then were told they would have to get rid of the family pet, he said.

"I took his pet," said Pallister, "and his four-year-old child cried for two days."

In another case a family had lived in a trailer park for two years, and had owned two pets for six years.

"I have a copy here of a registered letter giving him notice to leave by June 30 or get rid of his pets," said Pallister.

Change Rule

"He has a choice of selling his trailer — the latest offer he had would have meant a loss of $4,000 in the two years since he bought the trailer — or of getting rid of the pets.

"They happen to have a 15-year-old daughter, and any of you with daughters this age can imagine the kind of family row this could cause."

He suggested that the region's building regulations should be changed to exempt mobile homes, so that purchasers are not bound to live in the trailer parks.

Not Locked

"I have warned the board that the kind of regulation we were adopting was setting up a cartel for mobile home park owners," said Pallister, "We must find a way to change this."

Capital region engineer Bill Gerry said the regulations were provincial and could not be changed by the board.

"We just don't enforce this in the parks," he said.

Pallister suggested the best thing would be to force manufacturers of mobile homes to build them to building code standards.

The board's executive director, Dennis Young, suggested that the mobile home owners could in fact relocate.

"I think perhaps they are just being told by the park owners that they are locked in, when in fact they are not."

Gerry was directed to prepare a report on the situation.

Forest Blaze 'Man-Made'

ELY, Minn. (UPI) — The U.S. Forest Service said Wednesday it has stopped the spread of the worst fire in the 61-year history of Superior National Forest along the Canadian border.

Forestry officials said it appeared the $1 million fire, which started Friday, was "almost definitely man-made." Hundreds of fishermen had moved into the area for the Saturday opening of the season on walleyes and northern pike.

Hydro Office Workers

Tentative Pact Set

Tentative agreement has been reached on a contract that would cover some 2,300 B.C. Hydro office workers.

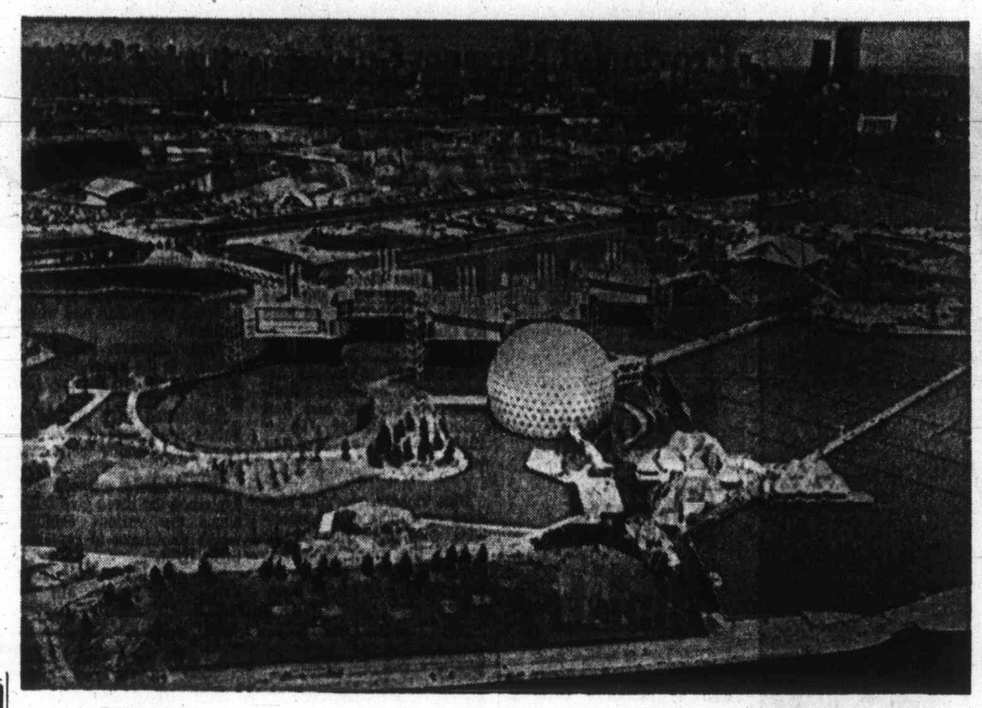
The workers, members of Local 378, Office and Technical Employees Union, will vote on the settlement during a series of membership meetings in the next two weeks.

Ron Bone, local president, said from Vancouver that the negotiating committee was recommending acceptance of the package.

The tentative agreement was worked out in Vancouver. Some 200 of the office workers are based in Victoria.

Meetings concerning a second Hydro labor dispute were reported continuing Wednesday before provincial mediator Clark Gilmour. Involved are some 2,000 members of Local 258, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers in Vancouver, Victoria and elsewhere.

The union had threatened to serve strike notice if no offer was made by Hydro negotiators. A Hydro spokesman said no such move had been made by late Wednesday.



Showplace Opens Saturday

Ontario provincial government's new $23 million cultural jewel lies glistening in the sun on Toronto's waterfront. The project — Ontario Place — is a showcase of the province's evolution, its people, places, technology, politics, sports and entertainfent — spread over 96 acres of man-made islands and lagoons in Lake Ontario. Official opening is set for Saturday.—(CP)

Market No Threat To B.C. Plywood

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Council of Forest Industries of British Columbia says it has received assurance that the entry of Britain into the European Market will not penalize Marketing of B.C. plywood in Europe.

Under terms of an agreement, made by officials of the EEC and Britain, B.C. coniferous plywood will enjoy tariff free entry to the enlarged EEC on a quota to be determined by estimated consumption.

The duty-free product will be unsanded plywood of ⅜ inch and greater thickness, and sanded plywood of ¾ inch and greater thickness.

In making the announcement G. L. Draeseke, president of the Forest Council says it is "favorable treatment", as the experience has been with this type of quota in other products that no duty has been paid even when the quota has been exceeded.

Roman Rewarded

Stephen Roman may not be feeling so unhappy that the government of Canada prevented him from selling his shares in Denison Mines to U.S. interests now that his uranium mining company has turned in a first quarter report that has doubled the net earnings from the corresponding period in 1970.

Denison's net profit for the three months up to March 31 were $2,381,000 (53 cents a share) compared with $1,204,000 (27 cents) a year ago.

Roman said the better earnings were due to higher revenues from uranium and oil and from increased dividends on investments.

Last year Roman planned to sell his controlling interest in Denison to Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas, which in turn is controlled by the American Continental Oil. The government declined in the national interest to permit the sale of Canada's leading uranium producer.

Neonex Divests

Neonex International of Vancouver which recently disposed of its interest in Bigelow Carpets has also disposed of the Reimer Group of transportation companies for an undisclosed amount of cash.

Reimer Express Lines, one of several companies acquired by Neonex in its period of agglomeration, is being bought back by the Reimer family of Winnipeg, its original owners.

Neonex, says its president James Pattison, is withdrawing from the surface transportation field.

Lornex Readying

Detailed engineering of the Rio Algom copper project at Lornex in the B.C. Highland Valley is now 75 per cent complete, says Sir Val Duncan, chairman of Rio Tinto-Zinc Corporation of London.

Speaking at the annual general meeting of the international mining and engineering giant, Sir Val said Lornex is expected to be in production in mid-1972 and will cost over $133,000,000.

Rio Tinto-Zinc, controlling company of the Churchill Falls hydro electric project in Labrador, is also interested in the possibility of a hydro electric development on the Iskut River in Northern B.C.

MEPC Rights

MEPC Canadian Properties Ltd. is offering its shareholders rights to buy one new common share for each four shares held at $5.20 a share. The rights will go to holders on record at June 2 and will expire June 25.

The company is 71.5 per cent owned by Metropolitan Estate and Property Corporation of London, Eng., and that company has stated it will take up its share of the offered rights.

Also in the preparation stage is an issue of sinking fund debentures with a 22-year maturity by MEPC Canadian.

□

Credit Rises

The level of consumer credit in Canada rose by 2.6 per cent in March to $8,764,000,000 says the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Based on a population of 20 million people, this means that the average Canadian — man, woman and child — is owing $438 for some consumer items.

□

Raises Hit

Finance Minister Edgar Benson says high salary increases are renewing the spectre of galloping inflation and heightening the threat to Canada's economic stability.

Such as the 40 per cent increase in MP's salaries?

□

Sugar Down

Canada and Dominion Sugar earnings for the six months ended March 31 were $1,667,142 ($1.08 a share) down from $2,258,202 ($1.46) a year ago.

Lower income from affiliated companies was said to be responsible for the drop.

The company also announced it would transfer its sugar operations to Redpath Sugars Ltd., a wholly-owned subsidiary, in order to link more closely the Redpath brand name which had been used in Canada since 1854.

□

Profits Up

Higher earnings for Readers' Digest Association Canada are reported for the third quarter ended March 31, at $145,673 (16 cents a share) against $126,794 (14 cents) in the corresponding quarter of 1970.

Nine months earnings are $608,773 (66 cents) against $415,094 (45 cents).

Baker Elected

John L. McDonald, of McDonald's Bakery Ltd., Victoria, has been elected a director of the Bakery Council of Canada. The council held its 26th annual meeting at Toronto last week.

Interest Rates Curtailed

PARIS (UPI) — The government Tuesday authorized the bank of France to curtail or ban interest rates on bank deposits of foreign residents if need be to halt possible speculative attacks against the franc.

The National Credit Council also authorized the bank of France to increase the ratio of compulsory bank reserves up to 100 per cent for deposits of foreign citizens if it feels it necessary. No interest is paid on compulsory reserves French banks must deposit with the Bank of France.

The decisions will go into effect only if the government feels there is a too big an inflow of "hot" speculative money.

YUKON OFFERS SHARES

Yukon Consolidated Gold Mines says it will shortly announce details of its proposal to raise new capital through a rights offering. The plan is to sell treasury stock at $1.25 a share on the basis of one new share for each 10 shares held.

CONDOMINIUM APARTMENT LIVING
3rd in series
Probably the most important advantage of Condominium living is SECURITY. An owner is able to lock his front door and go on vacation without having to worry that his property will be vandalised. A business man is able to go on a business trip and not be concerned about the SECURITY of his family. In the older group of owners, CONFIDENCE is built with a person knowing that assistance in the event of illness is available by the close neighbourliness of the adjoining owners. Additionally comforting is the knowledge that a RESIDENT MANAGER is on the premises 24 hours a day to render assistance if required.
OAK BAY TOWERS HAS ALL THESE ADVANTAGES PLUS WELL LIGHTED STREETS, NEARLY AN ACRE OF LAWNS AND GARDENS AND A SHORT WALK EITHER TO OAK BAY VILLAGE OR THE SEA FRONT.

Over-All Plan Needed On Salt Spring Island

It's time the 10-acre minimum for subdivisions on Salt Spring Island was lifted in favor of complete zoning, says regional representative W. H. Holmes.

He made his comments as the Capital Regional Board's planning committee discussed two applications for development permits, one of which would subdivide 17 acres, and the other to subdivide 50 acres.

Planner Tony Roberts said the applications were being made under the development area regulations in order to circumvent the 10-acre minimum regulations, and that the planners were opposed to it.

Holmes said he felt the development area permits were meant to be used in that way, and that he thought it was time an over-all plan was drawn up for the Island.

The minimum parcel regulation, he said, was a crude and arbitrary rule brought into effect as a stop-gap measure some 18 months ago.

He said the islanders themselves were split on the issue of development. Some wanted a certain amount of building, while others — many of them on very small lots themselves — were opposed to allowing anyone else to move onto the Island.

Central Saanich Ald. Percy Lazarz, and Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis were opposed to further development of Salt Spring Island at this time.

They felt 18 months is too short a trial period for the development halt.

Curtis said that in view of the amount of work in the planning department now, he did not think a Salt Spring Island plan should have priority.

It was decided that Roberts should be asked to report to the next planning committee meeting with a time table for possible amendment to the Salt Spring Island 10-acre minimum subdivision bylaw.

At the same meeting it was decided to recommend to the board that a similar 10-acre minimum restriction for subdivisions be brought in for the Sooke district, excluding only the village of Sooke, and a small area at Port Renfrew.

Provincial Museum Guides

Indians Bridge Culture Gap

A former Victoria beauty queen is one of three Indian students from University of Victoria to become the first official guides at the Provincial Museum.

Margaret Vickers, 21, of 1700 Sprucewood Place, was named Miss Victoria in 1967. The previous year she was chosen Saanich Diamond Jubilee Queen.

Her two fellow guides at the museum are 18-year-old Ardyth Cooper, of Sooke, a first-year arts student, and Rod Naknankin, 23, of Cape Mudge, who is an arts and science student.

Miss Vickers, studying physical education and counselling, said the trio "really enjoy" the work which is being financed under the province's First Citizens' fund.

Museum education officer Mrs. Wilma Wood told the Colonist Wednesday that the three guides bridge the gap between the Indian and white cultures.

"They interpret the Indian exhibits to the general public, and this helps narrow the gap."

She added that the three guides are extremely eager to learn more about their own culture.

Miss Vickers agreed, and explained the three give talks about the various exhibits which they have to research themselves.

"We also learn a lot from listening to people. For instance an elderly Nootka Indian explained the museum's whaling scene to me and I learned more from him than I ever could find in books."

Although the three take tours of visitors through the entire museum, their favorite section covers the Indian exhibits on the museum's third floor.

Miss Vickers said the Indian display on the floor has not been finished.

"It was supposed to be completed this year because of the centenary, but there has been some kind of hangup with the money," she said.

The Indian exhibit contains bead work, various ceremonial masks, and blankets woven from mountain goat hair and yellow cedar bark, and many other items of Indian culture.

Miss Vickers said that many American visitors try and compare the appearances of the "American Indians to the Canadian Indians."

She emphasized that there are only North American Indians, not Canadian or American.

"Our people on the coast here extended down into Washington and the Oregon coast."

The three guides' tour of duty at the museum, which started May 1, will end Aug. 31.

Trailer Shows Ministry

Free Bible study courses as well as literature covering numerous Bible topics will be available at a display titled God and His World, sponsored Jaycee Fair in Memorial Arena this week.

The display is housed in a 27-foot trailer and features Walls of Life and Promise.

These panoramic picture walls are designed to show the story of God's dealings with man from the creation through the time of Israel's deliverance from Egypt to the setting up of the throne of David and the birth of Christ.

Christ's ministry and death are recorded as well as his promises.

The trailer will be open from 2 to 11 p.m. daily and will be staffed by Victoria Christadelphians.

"As students of the Bible," R. W. Stodel of the Victoria group said this week, "Christadelphians believe that 'all scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness'." (2 Tim 3:16).

"It is on this basis that the exhibit has been prepared. The emphasis is upon encouraging the reading of the Bible for this is the sole source of information concerning God's purpose with this earth."

Famous Poet, Humorist, Ogden Nash Dies at 68

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Ogden Nash, whose clever verses helped a generation of Americans laugh at itself, died at age 68 Wednesday following a kidney illness.

Nash died at Johns Hopkins Hospital, where he had been kept alive for nearly a month with a kidney dialysis machine. A spokesman said he "did quite well" on the machine after undergoing abdominal surgery, but suffered a stroke about 10 days ago.

Nash

The cause of death was listed as heart failure, but Nash was known to have been suffering with a kidney disease when he first was hospitalized last March 13. He also had a bout with pneumonia.

A poet and a humorist, Nash began his writing career as an advertising man in New York City. He later helped write a Broadway show and received his widest exposure with appearances on television in his later years.

A native of Rye, N.Y., Nash attended Harvard for one year and later described himself as a "quarter-bred" alumnus. He published many volumes of his light, humorous verse, the latest of them The Cruise of the Aardvark in 1967 and There's Always Another Windmill in 1968.

Nash's best-known lines, written in 1931 as advice to an anxious suitor, were: "Candy is dandy, but liquor is quicker."

He said the epigram "just bobbed into my mind" and believed it would be the only lines of verse to survive him, because it was just the right length for a tombstone.

In 1968, Nash said he believed liquor still was quicker and pot was not. Marijuana was an individual thing while liquor "ripens acquaintance to intimacy," he said.

Nash, who published his first book entitled Hard Lines in 1931, collaborated with Kurt Weill and S. J. Perelman in 1943 to write the musical comedy One Touch of Venus.

Nash described his work as "verses, not poems" and called them a means of concealing his illiteracy. The poetic style which he perfected hinged on an ability to rhyme words which never had rhymed before.

Send Us Jobless!

LONDON (Reuters) — West Germany will offer work to some of Britain's 815,000 unemployed, it was announced after consultations between labor officials from both countries. West Germany needs at least 200,000 workers, many of them skilled.

'I Am Okay', Elrom Writes

ISTANBUL (UPI) — Israeli diplomat Ephraim Elrom, kidnapped and placed under threat of death two days ago, told his wife Elsa in a letter Wednesday "I am okay," Israeli sources said. The deadline for his threatened execution was less than 24 hours away.

Mrs. Elrom appealed to the kidnappers to release "my only one in life."

The Turkish government reiterated it would not deal with the kidnappers and said it had drafted a bill, retroactive to Elrom's abduction Monday, that would sentence them to death. Scores of suspects were jailed in a second day of mass arrests.

Lewis Demands Young Be Fired

OTTAWA (CP) — New Democrat Leader David Lewis called Wednesday for the immediate dismissal of John Young as chairman of the federal prices and incomes commission.

The Commons refused the required unanimous consent for a motion proposed by Lewis condemning Young for what the motion called a continuing series of statements claiming that inflation is Canada's number one problem.

Lewis said this was outrageous "propaganda and apology for government austerity programs" which had forced unemployment to record highs.

If the prices and incomes commission was allowed to continue, it should be redefined to prevent its chairman from acting as a government propagandist.

Later in the question period, Lewis asked whether Young's statements indicate that the government is preparing a continuing fight against inflation.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson said he had not seen the statements attributed to Young.

Kierans Urges Revised Thinking

Canada Copying U.S.

OTTAWA (CP) — Eric Kierans, former communications minister, said Wednesday Canada, which is trying to emulate the United States, needs fundamental revision of its economic thinking.

Since the post-Second World War days of Mackenzie King's government, successive finance ministers have adopted policies on business that have resulted in boom-and-bust cycles, he told a uncheon meeting of the National Press Club.

He said the same kind of thinking now sways the Trudeau government, from which he resigned in protest against its plans for continuing business advantages under the country's proposed new tax laws.

Unless there is a fundamental change in economic thinking, Canada will undergo another boom in business investment in new plant and equipment and another employment slump resulting in more unemployment, he said.

Kierans, a former president of the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges and prior to that a Quebec provincial revenue minister, blamed the country's swings between boom times and high unemployment on tax laws encouraging business to invest in new plant and equipment.

Since the Second World War, various plans have been employed to give business tax advantages for expansion and modernization.

Business can claim more against taxable profits now than is actually spent on new plant and equipment. In 1968, some 192,000 corporations reported to their shareholders they had profits totalling $8,350 million, he said. But that year, they reported profits to the revenue department for tax purposes amounting to only $5,020 million.

The difference was between the kind of depreciation companies actually set aside for new plant and equipment, and the amount they are permitted to deduct from profits for tax purposes.

Kierans said through tax-law treatment of depreciation, the government has been encouraging business to replace workers with machines.

This was a policy initiated in the United Kingdom when it had to build up its industry in the face of a shortage of workers after the war. But it was unsuited to Canada, which now had a surplus of workers and good, well-run industrial capacity.

The United States has the greatest industrial plants and equipment in the world. Canada shouldn't try to emulate that artificially, Kierans said.

Top Topers In Italy

ROME (UPI) — Italians have become the world's No. 1 alcohol consumers and drunken driving may be responsible for more than one traffic accident in every two, according to the Italian Automobile Club.

Quebec Police Return Files

MONTREAL (UPI) — Persons arrested last fall under the War Measures Act and later released will have their police files returned to them as soon as possible, Quebec Provincial Police Inspector Emile Perrin said Wednesday.

The head of the QPP identification squad said registered letters have already been sent to those concerned advising them fingerprint forms from Quebec City and Ottawa along with police pictures and negatives would be returned.

The War Measures Act was invoked for the first time in Canadian peacetime history last Oct. 16 during Quebec's "kidnap crisis," which followed the abduction of British diplomat James Cross and Quebec labor minister Pierre Laporte.

Test Proves Success

River Cleared of Oil

DRAYTON VALLEY, Alta. (CP) — A tiny bit got away, but oil industry and government personnel learned a lot of things about how to control oil spills into running water in a pollution control test on the North Saskatchewan River Tuesday.

"We're more than satisfied," Patrick D. O'Connell said after the first half of the controlled test on a quiet stretch of the river five miles east of here.

O'Connell is chairman of the Pembina Area Pollution Control Co-operative Committee, set up last August to handle oil spills in the Pembina oil field, a 2,400-square-mile area 55 miles southwest of Edmonton which is dotted by pipelines and 3,500 oil wells.

The test, the first on a major river with strong currents, is designed to evaluate equipment and emergency procedures. It concludes today.

Booms, skimmers, pumps and absorbents were used and most of the oil, which was pumped into the river at up to 1½ barrels a minute for periods of up to five minutes, was captured. Only a thin, rainbow-hued film escaped and was spotted drifting downstream.

"The things we learn here will help us get ready for the real thing ... and will be useful throughout Canada," said O'Connell, area superintendent for Amoco Canada Petroleum Co. Ltd.

The test was conducted in ideal weather conditions, and the control crews had the advantage — they got to set up their equipment before the oil was pumped into the river.

The oil-capturing material included foam, snowblowers, pumps, chicken wire, cut-away barrels, straw and conifer branches. Booms made of chicken wire and straw proved to be the most effective.

The booms were stretched out into the river to deflect and contain the oil. The skimmers and pumps sucked it from the water and the absorbents were used to mop up.

Eugene Kupchanko, head of the Alberta water pollution control section, said the test had to be done. "Textbook plans for controlling emergency oil spills may look good on paper, but fail to live up to expectations in reality."

State Department Gets Chase Protest

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Canadian embassy delivered a formal protest to the state department late Wednesday about an incident off the Briish Columbia-Alaska coast Sunday involving a United Stares Coast Guard vessel and the Canadian halibut vessel Anthony J.

Although Fisheries Minister Jack Davis told the House of Commons Tuesday that the protest had been delivered, the embassy here is understood to have only received instructions about the matter Wednesday.

A state department official said in an interview the U.S. government would study the protest.

Skipper Jack Secord of the Anthony J has maintained that he was in Canadian waters at the time. Screened by another Canadian vessel, the Anthony J headed for Prince Rupert, with the coast guard vessel following behind.

Davis said Canadian vessels will continue to fish in the area concerned.

Soviet Head Spurns Arctic Meet

MOSCOW (CP) — Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin in effect rejected Wednesday a personal appeal from Prime Minister Trudeau for Soviet participation in a proposed international conference on Arctic pollution.

Canadian sources said Kosygin, at a closed meeting with Trudeau, reiterated the Soviet position that there is no need for such a conference, which Canada and the United States have been trying to arrange.

Trudeau was reported to have expressed appreciation for Soviet understanding of Canada's unilateral move last year to control marine pollution 100 miles seaward from the Canadian Arctic archipelago.

He hoped, however, at an appropriate time, the Soviet Union would agree to take part in a conference at which the special matters of pollution control, would be clearly defined.

Russia has argued it is self-evident that Canada and the U.S.S.R. have special rights and responsibilities in the North.

Quebec Crisis Probe

Turner Steers Safe Course

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister John Turner left no doubt in the Commons Wednesday that the government intends to steer a proposed committee on future national public order legislation away from examination of the government's behavior during last fall's Quebec crisis.

The minister said such examination could be partisan and acrimonious, and turn attention away from the "vital" task of considering legislation for the future.

The House spent its second day of debate on a government motion to establish a joint Senate-Commons committee to report upon the type of legislation it found necessary to deal with future violence and disorder that endangered the existence of the government or maintenance of public order.

Turner said the government would not support an amendment introduced by Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) that would first have the committee report on the circumstances surrounding the proclamation of the War Measures Act Oct. 16 to meet Quebec terrorism.

It was the government's view that the amendment was not designed to ascertain what the national needs are for emergency legislation—legislation, Turner said, is potentially crucial.

Parliament had given its stamp of approval to the proclamation of the War Measures Act regulations by passing the Public Order Act that replaced them, Turner said.

But the government was not suggesting that the committee should not look at disorder and terrorism that had occurred in the past, which was "largely a matter of public record."

Panther Jury Still Out

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — A superior court jury of seven blacks and five whites recessed until today the deliberations begun Wednesday in the murder conspiracy trial of black panthers Bobby Seale and Mrs. Ericka Huggins.

Jury officials received the case at 2:03 p.m., after Judge Harold Mulvey completed a three - hour - and - 15-minute charge in which he said Seale's failure to testify in his own behalf was not evidence of guilt.

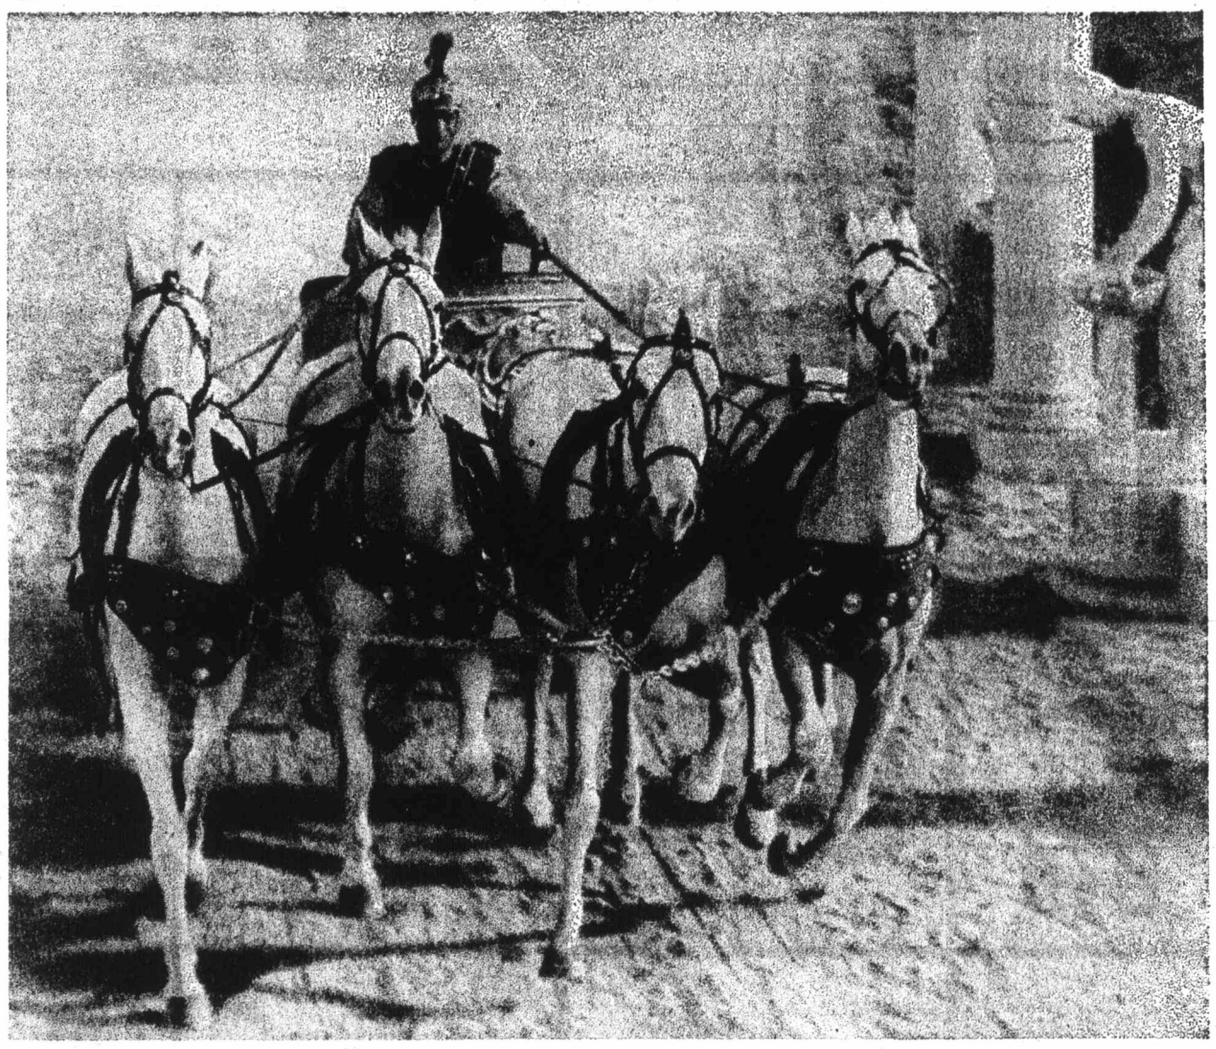
The Romans used to make a tough sure-footed little vehicle.



We still do.

Any Roman chariot driver would tell you that when the horsepower pulls the chariot instead of pushing it, you have more control over where you're going.

So in honour of our famous ancestors, Fiat introduces the new Fiat 128. With front wheel drive.

Of course, we've gone those noble Romans a few better.

To do the pulling, we hooked up one of the most rugged 1,116 cc. engines ever made. The chief designer was Aurelio Lampredi, who designed engines for Ferrari when Ferrari was at the top of the Grand Prix circuit.

This little powerhouse accelerates fast, has lots of torque at low speeds, and can drive full out hour after hour. It's all in the design. Such things as a five-bearing crankshaft, overhead cam and Weber carburetor.

Then we added independent four-wheel suspension, based on the simple MacPherson strut principle plus anti-roll bar. This new suspension, combined with the front wheel drive, and rack-and-pinion steering, lets the new Fiat 128 take corners ten miles an hour faster than it ought to. And still tuck in and hold you steady right around.

Then we added front disc brakes, plus a proportioning valve to keep the rear wheels from locking and to give you more control when you have to brake fast. We also added radial tires as standard equipment.

For the people who ride in our little chariot, we built in more room, more sturdiness, and more comfort. In three body styles. Two door. Four door. And station wagon.

The passenger and luggage space inside the new Fiat 128 represents 80% of the total space. All the engine and mechanical components are packed into only 20%.

And because it is so big inside, and the floor is flat throughout, the new Fiat 128 will hold four good-sized adults. Comfortably.

Finally the trunk is 13 cubic feet big. Because the differential and the spare tire are up front.

But it's still the spirit of that original Italian sports car that makes the new Fiat 128 the tough, sure-footed little vehicle it is today.

Just drive one and feel it for yourself. And ask your dealer about the Fiat Overseas Delivery Plan.

The new Fiat 128

The little chariot with the Italian sports car spirit. From $1998.*

Once a season to find a really great sportswear bargain is luck. But twice? Something's on our side. Our buyers just happened to be back East at the particular time this noted name sportswear manufacturer expressed thoughts of clearing out this season's line in preparation for fall. We were elated. To top the success of our last sale takes an equally fantastic product. We've got it. Now. The same great polyester pull-on and fly-front pant you've made our second best seller, and the same soft fabric tops you've seen in our department are now substantially less in price. And because we bought out the balance of his line, we have an assortment we normally couldn't find room for. You'll find colours and styles to run the gamut from soft pastel to earthy tones. Herringbones, basket weaves and more. Shirts, tunics and mock turtles. All styled the way you see yourself. And designed to make you feel yourself. Priced slim. Sized large, from 10 to 18. Personal Shopping Only.

Vegetable—Last Word in Eating

By BILL BARRINGER

You go into Vegetable which is a brand new restaurant downtown, and here are all these . . . mushrooms . . . growing out of a Persian rug from the Goodwill store. As it turns out, the mushrooms are actually tables and chairs.

A recording of Julian Bream infuses the place with Bach a la lute. To the right, heavy wooden shelves hold big glass jars of honey and biodegradable bags of extract of peony, or whatever. The Whole Earth catalogue lives.

A young man named Denis Murphy works his way through the mushrooms and gets to you. He has the eyes of a fawn and a fine beard. He is really nice.

"Oh," says Denis, like he's surprised you're actually in his restaurant, "Hello there."

"Hello," you say.

Organic Shake

Denis is smiling like mad.

"Well," you say finally, determined to stick it out, "I thought I'd come in and have something to eat."

"Oh," says Denis, "that's great. What would you like?"

There is no menu or anything. Denis' girlfriend, Melon Schwam, is sitting at a nearby mushroom lettering a little sign that will eventually tell all, but right now, it's up to you.

"We have soup, salad, vegetable plates, great baked potatoes, sandwiches, rice, organic milkshakes . . ."

"What're they?"

"They're where we use whole milk," Denis says. "The real thing. It's not pasteurized or homogenized, nothing. When you heat milk, you lose a lot of its value. Then honey, an egg if you want it—a lot of vegetarians don't want eggs—then we blend it all up for you."

"Okay. I'll have that and a salad plate."

Good Smells

Denis tries to look casual as he races to the back. The kitchen is fantastic. It smells wonderful. All that organic food. There is a huge iron pot that Denis and Melon and their friend Stephen Tate bought from Jim's Curio Shop. It is bubbling away with some kind of thick soup. Fresh bread is baking in the oven.

More people come in. Denis is going around trying to remember everybody's order. "I better start using a scratch pad or something to keep track of all this," he mutters to himself. Steve is building a sandwich of cheese and tomatoes on these monstrous slices of bread.

"That's an awfully big sandwich," Denis says.

Suggests Cut

"Yeah," says Steve. "I used the centre slices of the bread. I hope he can eat it all."

"You better cut it in two for him," says Melon. "By the way, I'd appreciate it if you two would put the dirty dishes over there when you bring them in."

Steve looks guilty. "I've been busy," he says.

"Just so you know," says Milon, "okay?"

The food is ready. Your stuff comes. It looks great, smells great, costs next to nothing, but . . . but . . .

Pull Up a Mushroom, Sip an Organic Shake

"Uh, could I have something to eat this with?" you say.

"Oh," says Denis again. "Surely. Wait just a minute."

He rushes back to the kitchen. He returns with . . . chopsticks.

Second Try

"Far out," you say. "But, like, I'm into this very heavy relationship with knives and forks, man, and . . ."

Denis disappears into the kitchen again. "He wants a knife and fork, Melon. He wants . . ."

So that's Vegetable—the newest and probably the only completely vegetarian restaurant in town.

The place opened its doors at 1020 Blanshard just this week under the proprietorship of Denis, Melon and Steve, three Victorians in their early twenties with absolutely no restaurant experience and even less operating capital.

"We were living out in the country and making these great meals for each other," Denis says. "So we decided we'd make them for other people too.

No Profit Aim

"We're not in this to make a profit, so we're keeping the prices very low. We just want to be able to pay the rent and sustain ourselves."

All three share in the complete operation—cooking, waiting on tables, cleaning up, taking the money, everything.

All of the food is organically grown, and cooked according to the apparently infinite rules of health enthusiasts. Cast iron pots, for instance, are used rather than aluminum pots.

"Aluminum pots give off alum," Denis says. "Over a period of time, well . . ." his voice trails off. You shudder to imagine what might happen over a period of time, the way he says it.

"Besides," says Steve. "the food tastes better."

Growers Sought

To get started, the trio imported a lot of health food and organically grown vegetables from Vancouver, but they are hoping to involve local gardeners in their restaurant.

"What we'd like to get going," says Denis, "is that somebody in Victoria has a garden and sells directly to us. That way, we could have all sorts of people interacting with the place, and plenty of vegetables that have just come out of the ground."

The same theory goes for potters and artists, who are welcome to share their wares with the restaurant.

For Everybody

"We just want a real human place, with people coming and going," Denis says. "We're not catering especially to kids or long-hairs, but to everybody. Plenty of people are vegetarians for many different reasons.

"So, we're trying to make a place for them."

As for such professionally slick little details as menus and fixed hours and all of that, Denis, Steve and Melon are quite content to leave those worries to the Howard Johnsons of this world. Asked if Vegetable is likely to stay open late on Friday and Saturday nights, Denis says:

"I don't know. We haven't come to a Friday or Saturday yet."

Ogden Point Key Issue

Victoria Granted Harbor Board

By HUBERT BEYER

Victoria has received approval from the federal government to form its own harbor commission, Mayor Courtney Haddock said Wednesday.

But Ottawa's nod may turn out to be nothing but a useless gesture.

Unless the Ogden Point docks are placed under the proposed commission's jurisdiction, the mayor said, there would be no practical purpose to form such a commission in the first place.

Past indications had been that Canadian National Railways, which operate the docks, were not interested in turning jurisdiction over to any harbor commission, he added.

'Crucial Part'

"I hope the federal government will see fit not to renew the (annual) lease for Ogden Point with the CNR," he said.

"Ogden Point is a crucial part of the scheme. Without it, there won't be any commission," he said.

The mayor told the Colonist he had received word Wednesday from David Groos, Liberal MP for Victoria-Oak Bay, that the city may go ahead with its planned harbor commission.

"I'm thrilled about the news. If and when we appoint the commission, all revenue from the city's harbor will stay here instead of going to Ottawa," the mayor said.

Definition

Next step, he said, would be to turn the matter over to the city's administrative staff for further consultation with the federal authorities to define exact points of reference for the proposed commission.

It would take several months, Haddock said, before the commission could actually be established.

Meanwhile a CNR official said the federal government's go-ahead for the commission was a complete suprise to him.

"I'm really surprised; this would be a complete reversal of a statement made last week by Transport Minister Don Jamieson that it would probably be another two or three years before a decision will be made with regard to Victoria's harbor commission," said Fred Ritchie, CNR's Ogden Point dock agent.

Objectives

A report, prepared last year by a special committee under chairmanship of Harold Elworthy, listed six main objectives for the proposed commission:

- To undertake a program of efficient and responsible administration of harbor areas within its jurisdiction.
- To control and regulate traffic and activities of vessels within the harbor area.
- To improve and expand existing deep-water berthing, cargo-handling, storage and assembly facilities.
- To promote and develop increased commodity shipment through facilities of the commission.
- To improve and develop new facilities for commercial fishing and pleasure vessels.
- To initiate and encourage improved land use and land development in the harbor area in the best interest of the region's economy.

Labor Seeks Care Control

By DON COLLINS

Victoria Labor Council is launching a petition aimed at provincial government take-over of rest homes and private hospitals.

It will seek to have the 151,000-member B.C. Federation of Labor co-sponsor the petition. (See earlier story Page 47).

Essentially, the move has been prompted by the threat of the B.C. Rest Home Association to evict welfare cases as a result of a financial dispute with the province — a suggestion the council finds distasteful.

Also involved is the failure of National Nursing Homes Ltd. to bargain with the 28 women strikers at Sandringham Private Hospital, 1650 Fort, who are seeking a first contract.

Labor council president Jack Groves told delegates at Wednesday night's meeting that he had evidence Sandringham, contrary to claims, was a money-making institution.

He said the hospital's assets were listed as $554,000 in 1970 and that its owners had turned down an offer of more than $900,000 as recently as two or three weeks ago from a prospective buyer.

He said the offer was to pay $10,000 a bed and that there are 91 beds in Sandringham.

Questioned after the meeting, Groves said he did not have permission to name the would-be buyer but maintained the offer was "quite legitimate" and that the hospital would have been fully aware of this.

During the meeting he said: "It just goes to show these people (Sandringham owners) are just out to suck more money out of the people of this province in the real lucrative business of taking care of the aged people."

Sandringham is managed by the Vancouver-based National Nursing Homes Ltd., which manages and owns other private hospitals elsewhere in the country.

In the petition drafted by the labor council's executive, concern is expressed for the "decline in the operational standards of private hospitals and rest homes in B.C. as now being indicated by the threat of rest home operators to evict patients and, in the case of private hospitals, by the demands of the owners of these institutions for more public funds for welfare patients."

The petition also refers to the "point blank refusal" of National Nursing Homes to negotiate a collective agreement at Sandringham, where the strike is almost eight months old.

Airport Seizure

Customs Halt 'Potent' LSD

By BRUCE LOWTHER

A seizure of a small container of what the RCMP called "extremely potent" LSD that might have been turned into 20,000 tablets for street sale was made Tuesday evening at Patricia Bay Airport by an alert Canada Customs official.

The disclosure was made by an RCMP spokesman after a 24-year-old California man appeared Wednesday morning in Sidney Provincial Court on a charge of trafficking in a restricted drug.

The man, James Dale Mitchell of Albany, Calif., was remanded by Judge D. G. Ashby to May 27 for possible election of trial method and plea. Bail was set at $4,000 and indications were efforts would be made to obtain a lawyer for Mitchell through Legal Aid.

The RCMP spokesman said Alex Effa, supervisor of customs and excise for the Sidney and airport district, became suspicious of a passenger who got off a Pacific Western Airlines plane from Seattle at 6:20 p.m.

The spokesman said Effa held the passenger and got in touch with RCMP. A search was conducted and a small container was found on the man.

The container was not described further by the spokesman, but he said it contained "extremely potent" material that might have been made into an estimated 20,000 tablets of LSD for street sale in the Greater Victoria area.

He said the price of a tablet might have ranged from 80 cents to $1.50 depending upon the number of tablets bought. He added the seizure was one of the largest ever made on Vancouver Island.

Both the RCMP spokesman and a Canada Customs official in Victoria commended Effa for his actions.

The customs official said past experience had shown experienced customs officers "get a sense about" certain things at certain times . . . We've been on the alert for at least a couple of years for potential smuggling of controlled drugs. He just had a feeling."

Saanich Ambulance Ousts Old Vehicle

Saanich fire department has a new ambulance.

The new machine, which cost about $10,000, was given a coat of white paint Wednesday.

It was bought from R. V. Industries, Calgary. A General Motors van, it replaces the department's one ambulance, a 1961 Cadillac, which was traded in for the new one.

The ambulance will be on duty 24 hours a day with a crew of two — an industrial first-aid man and a fireman — who have been undergoing training to upgrade standards.

Merchants Give Yates Street To Pedestrians

"Why doesn't the government do something?"

That's probably one of the most frequently uttered questions when it comes to taxpayers complaining about broken sidewalks, potholes in the street and lack of what they consider good planning.

Some time ago, the merchants of Victoria's 700-block Yates gave that question a new twist:

"Why don't we do something?" they asked themselves.

They did. They did a lot about broken sidewalks and potholes, but they went a step further.

They built sheltering roofs along both sides of the 700-block Yates giving shoppers protection from the city's sometimes nasty winter rains.

Perhaps most important, they paid for the job themselves. The city's taxpayers, often asked to improve this and restore that, didn't have to contribute a cent.

And again, the merchants asked themselves, "Why don't we do more?"

So they went about planning the improvement of what had always been just a shopping street, no more and no less.

Now the results are in.

At 11 a.m. Saturday, Mayor Courtney Haddock will officially open the "new" 700-block Yates, a street that has been given back to the pedestrians.

The sidewalks have been widened; benches have been installed offering weary shoppers a moment of rest among a maze of flowers, shrubs and trees which have also been planted.

The project has been labelled a beautification program carried out under a local improvement scheme. That means participating property owners (in this case the merchants) are paying the major part of the cost.

Total expenditures for the project amount to approximately $70,000 of which the merchants pay $50,000, and the city $20,000.

The city will make the cash outlay of the merchants' share, but recover the money by levying a special mill rate on the merchants for a 20-year period.

"These people have the right spirit," Haddock said recently.

"They don't just ask the city for everything they want; they go and do it themselves."

Montreal Extends Its Thanks to Canadiens

MONTREAL (CP) — Montrealers by the thousands showed their appreciation to their world-champion hockey team Wednesday, fairly mobbing a parade of Montreal Canadiens players as it passed through downtown.

On St. Catherine Street, four-lanes wide, enthusiastic well-wishers stood up to 20 deep and closed in on the convertibles carrying the hockey players to shake their hands and shout praise.

The motorcade moved at a snail's pace in 85-degree shirtsleeve weather.

The parade was Montreal's thank-you to the team which brought home the Stanley Cup, symbol of National Hockey League supremary by edging Chicago Black Hawks, 3-2, Tuesday night.

A police motorcycle escort led the parade and forced the spectators back, but the crowds surged forward again around the vehicles led by a convertible carrying the Stanley Cup.

Jean Beliveau, the team captain who is rumored to be about to retire after 18 NHL seasons, was a star attraction and the crowds crushed around his auto, shaking his hand or seeking an autograph.

"Thank you, thank you," Beliveau kept repeating. "Merci, Merci."

Some youngsters pulled off the players' name cards tied to the sides of the convertibles.

"Boy, have I got a souvenir," one small boy shouted.

At Phillips Square, about half-way through the parade route which led from the Forum in west-end midtown to city hall near the financial district, employees of a department store showered confetti and flowers on the players.

From a bank, 50-foot streamers flapped in the wind, hailing the champions. Mini-skirts and hot pants in the crowds added to the color.

Motorists abandoned their cars in traffic jams and joined the crowds.

Mayor Jean Drapeau greeted the players at city hall. He had announced the parade just hours after the Canadiens won the best-of-seven final playoff series in Chicago.

Offical congratulations also came from Quebec City and Ottawa. Premier Robert Bourassa sent a telegram of congratulations to Beliveau, and in the Commons, External Affairs Minister Sharp brought on applause from all quarters when he welcomed "the great victory of the Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup."

Upland Golfers Jolt Hope of Champions

Uplands	9
Glen Meadows	7½
Gorge Vale	5½
Victoria	3½
Cedar Hill	1½
Colwood	0

Royal Colwood Golf Club's hopes of retaining the Willie Park Driver for the Inter-Club Golf League championship received a severe jolt Wednesday at Uplands.

The defending champions were blanked, 9-0, by Uplands in the opening round of the six-club competition.

Glen Meadows trimmed visiting Cedar Hill, 7½-1½, while Gorge Vale scored a home, 5½-3½ win over Victoria.

Don Billsborough downed Laurie Kerr, 2 and 1, while Dave McCall trounced Ken Floyd, 7 and 5 with Uplands taking the four-ball competition, 4 and 3.

COMPLETED ROUT

The closest Colwood came to a win was a 1-up loss to Ken Nott by Jim McMurran. In the other half of the foursome, Frank Scroggs scored a 3 and 2 victory over Colwood's Sid Murdoch and the Uplands pair took the four-ball, 2 up.

Although wind conditions were bad everywhere, Gorge Vale's Dave Mick came through with a three-under-par 68 on his home course although he three-putted three greens. Mick beat veteran Dr. George Bigelow of Victoria, 5 and 4, and combined with teammate Lex Sutcliffe, who halved with Doug Munro, took the four-ball, 3 and 2.

CHIPS FOR EAGLE

Gordon Verley, who halved with Mike Kolb of Gorge, was credited with giving Victoria a 1-up victory in the four-ball. Verley chipped in for an eagle two on the 367-yard fifth hole and chipped in for a birdie three on the 17th, a 375-yard test, to give Victoria another hole.

Verley's partner in the four-ball, Bill Thompson, lost to Gorge Vale's Reg Clarkson, 1 up.

Results:

Colwood 0 at Uplands 9

Laurie Kerr lost to Don Billsborough, 2 and 1; Ken Floyd lost to Dave McCall, 7 and 5; Uplands won four-ball, 4 and 3.

Ron Howard, Jr., lost to Bob Hunt, 2 and 1; Bruce Pelmore lost to Keith Burnell, 2 and 1; Uplands won four-ball, 2 and 1.

Jim McMurran lost to Ken Nott, 1 up; Sid Murdoch lost to Frank Scroggs, 3 and 2; Uplands won four-ball, 2 up.

Victoria 3½ at Gorge Vale 5½

George Bigelow lost to Dave Mick, 5 and 4; Doug Munro halved with Lex Sutcliffe; Gorge won four-ball, 3 and 2.

Carl Schwantje halved with Al Fulton; Mike Parker halved with Earl Davies; Four-ball halved.

Gordon Verley halved with Mike Kolb; Bill Thompson lost to Reg Clarkson, 1 up; Victoria won four-ball, 1 up.

Cedar Hill 1½ at Glen Meadows 7½

Brian Gandy lost to Dick Silverberg, 3 and 2; Ron Cush lost to Marty Richards, 3 and 2; Glen Meadows won four-ball, 3 and 2.

Bruce Rands lost to Hal Jacobsen, 5 and 4; Greg Barnes defeated Brian Sluggett, 4 and 3; Glen Meadows won four-ball, 1 up.

Doug Hunt lost to Al Zimmerman, 2 up; Jim Gerard halved with Rick Kent; Glen Meadows won four-ball, 2 up.

Blue Fashions Three-Hitter For Ninth Win of Season

Hot-handed Vida Blue pitched a three-hitter and nailed down his ninth straight victory as Oakland Athletics defeated Milwaukee Brewers, 3-0, in Oakland Wednesday night.

Blue's streak extends back to opening day when he lost to Washington Senators.

He had control problems in the early innings, walking a batter in each o fthe first three. But then he retired 10 batters in a row before Danny Walton's single opened the seventh inning.

The other Milwaukee hits were singles by Roberto Pena in the third and pinch-hitter Ron Theobald in the eighth inning.

HOME RUNS

The Athletics got all their runs on homers. Rick Monday hit his sixth of the season off losing pitcher Bill Parsons in the sixth inning and Reggie Jackson hit his sixth after Joe Rudi had singled in the seventh.

The win kept Oakland five and-a-half games ahead of their nearest rivals, Minnesota Twins, who trounced California Angels, 12-6.

Tony Oliva slammed his 10th home run and knocked in three runs and Harmon Killebrew delivered three more runs with a single and a bases-loaded walk to lead the Twins to their comeback win.

Oliva hit a two-run shot in the third inning after a first-inning roller that drove in a run. Killebrew knocked in two runs with the bases loaded in a three-run fifth inning as Minnesota wiped out a 5-2 California lead.

Killebrew then walked with the bases loaded in a four-run eighth inning as the Twins padded a one-run lead to 11-6.

The rallies gave rookie Jim Strickland a victory in his first major league appearance.

Strickland pitched two innings of relief of starter Jim Perry and held the Angels to one hit while striking out four. Tom Hall pitched the final four innings for the Twins.

Dick McAuliffe drove in four runs with a homer and a double and Al Kaline hit his first two home runs of the season as Detroit Tigers hammered Cleveland Indians, 12-1.

The Tigers scored in every inning except the seventh, enabling Mickey Lolich to coast to his sixth victory against three losses.

Boson Red Sox maintained its two and-a-half game lead over Baltimore Orioles in the Eastern Division by defeating the New York Yankees, 7-2, on Reggie Smith's two-run homer in the seventh inning that broke a 2-2 tie. Unbeaten Sonny Siebert won his seventh straight game for the Red Sox.

In Kansas City, Mike Hedlund pitched a six-hitter with last-out relief help from Ted Abernathy as Kansas City Royals blanked Chicago White Sox, 2-0 on Paul Schaal's run-scoring triple in the sixth inning and Amos Otis's home run in the seventh.

Chicago's Bart Johnson limited the Royals to one hit until the sixth inning, when Schaal's two-out triple scored Ed Kirkpatrick, who had walked.

Pirates Take Lead With Phillies Help

New York Mets, who only last Saturday held a three-game lead over Pittsburgh Pirates, dropped out of first place in the Eastern Division of the National League Wednesday night.

Philadelphia knocked the Mets off the top rung by handing the New Yorkers their fourth straight defeat, 4-1, on Terry Harmon's three-run double in the seventh inning.

Pittsburgh, defending Eastern Division champions, regained the No. 1 spot by whipping Cincinnati Reds, 6-1, on Roberto Clemente's inside-the-park third-inning home run that put the Pirates ahead to stay at 2-1.

Two homers by Clete Boyer helped Atlanta Braves beat Montreal Expos, 10-4, and San Diego Padres shaded Houston Astros, 2-1, in 10 innings on Ollie Brown's RBI single.

Billy Williams drove in six runs with a triple and two home runs as Chicago Cubs whipped San Francisco Giants, 9-5, and Los Angeles Dodgers edged St. Louis Cardinals, 6-5, on a two-out single by Bobby Valentine in the eighth inning off Bob Gibson.

Real Madrid Snatches Soccer Tie

Real Madrid, snatching an equalizer with the last kick of normal time, lived to fight again Wednesday night after their European Cup Winners Cup final with Chelsea of England ended in a 1-1 tie after extra time.

A 56th-minute goal by centre-forward Peter Osgood seemed to have won the game for Chelsea until Ignacio Zoco popped up in the 89th minute to grab the equalizer.

ALL-OUT ATTACK

Chelsea, dominant in the second half, struggled to keep out the Spaniards in extra time as Real, six times European Cup winners, launched an all-out assault in an attempt to win the Cup Winners Cup at the first attempt.

The teams will replay on Friday in Athens.

PLAY TO TIE

In London, England, playing with almost an entirely new team, tied Wales, 0-0, at Wembley Stadium in British championship play. England, now with three points, plays Scotland, which has one, on Saturday while Northern Ireland and Wales, each with two points, meet.

In the European Cup of Nations, Bulgaria defeated Hungary, 3-0, in a first-leg qualification match.

Labatts capitalized on five Sooke errors at Heywood Avenue Park Wednesday night to blank the Merchants, 5-0, and move into a second-place tie with Bell's Men's Wear in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League.

Shortstop Barry Granger hit a triple in the first inning and then came in on an error to open the scoring and Granger again made use of errors, this time by relief pitcher Ron Fedesenko, to reach second base in the fifth inning. Granger reached third base on a passed ball and came home on a fielder's choice.

John Sanderson singled in both Jack White and Bob Harris for runs in the fourth inning and then Brian Callaway, after reaching third base on a fielder's choice and passed balls, scored the last run of the game in the fifth inning when he came in on Harris' sacrifice fly.

Cubs Swap For Catcher

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Cubs obtained 33-year-old catcher Chris Cannizzaro from San Diego Padres Wednesday for infielder Garry Jestadt and an undisclosed amount of money.

The Cubs also placed Joe Pepitone on the disabled list.

In making the deal, vice-president John Holland of the Cubs obtained an experienced backup man for ailing Randy Hundley. Hundley has appeared in only five games since injuring his right knee during a spring training game last March 12.

Pepitone, an outfielder-first baseman, was put on the disabled list for 15 days. He has bone chips in his left elbow.

Remorseful Richard Explains...

MONTREAL (CP) — "I'll be very disappointed if Al MacNeil is not my coach when we go to camp this fall . . . I mean that."

Those were the remorseful words Wednesday of Henri Richard.

After the Habs were defeated 2-0 in the fifth game of the series, Henri told some French-language reporters that MacNeil was an "incompetent coach, "the worst coach I had ever played for."

And now he's sorry, very sorry.

"Let me say, for once and for all, exactly what I meant and what I believe," Richard said.

"Worst coach . . . incompetent, I said that, right? I never meant that.

"I'll never change my mind about that game. It was a terrible coaching job. That was one game. I've had terrible games too.

"Every coach has a terrible night, every player a terrible game but one game doesn't condemn a man."

Richard went on to say that MacNeil was exactly the opposite of incompetent.

"He's a rookie so he makes mistakes just like I did when I was a rookie," he said.

"When he was bad I said so. When I've been bad, they've said so. Well, maybe not all the time. That's why I should have said nothing."

Former Olympic Champions Couldn't Even Qualify Now

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

The new Olympic Games qualifying standards are so tough that some of the great times, heights and distances of the past wouldn't be good enough even to win a place on a 1972 team.

The standards established for the Munich Games are such that no Olympic gold-medal time up to 1956 in the distance events — 1,500, 5,000 and 10,000 metres — would even get a runner into the stadium.

Had he been forced to observe the new times, Emil Zatopek, of Czechoslovakia would not have been allowed to compete — much less would he have taken the gold medals in the 10,000 metres in 1948 and 1952 and in the 5,000 in 1952.

Paavo Nurmi, the flying Finn, wouldn't have had a prayer in the 10,000, which he won in 1928.

Don Bragg of the United States, who won the 1960 pole vault gold medal with a height of 15-feet-5, would have to go 15 inches higher merely to make it to Munich.

MUST SPRINT FASTER

And look at the 100-metre dash. Eddie Tolan of the U.S. won it in 10.3 in 1932. The same speed was good enough to win it for his countrymen — Jesse Owens in 1936 and Harrison Dillard in 1948.

In 1952, the gold-medal time was a slow 10.4 when Lindy Remigino of the U.S. won. Bobby Morrow of the U.S. put it back to 10.3 in 1956.

It wasn't until 1960 that Armin Hary of Germany lowered the Olympic gold medal time to 10.2.

Just to qualify for the 1972 event, it will be necessary for a sprinter to match the 10.3 that was good enough to win up to 1960.

Under Olympic regulations, any member country may enter an athlete in any event without conforming to a standard. However, if a country enters more than one athlete in an event, all that country's athletes in that event must have made the standard.

STANDARDS LISTED

The standards for the 1972 Olympic Games in Munich, women's standards in brackets:

100 metres, 10.3 (11.5) seconds; 200 metres, 20.9 (23.6); 400 metres, 46.4 (54.0); 800 metres, 1:47.6 (2:05); 1500 metres, 3:41.6 (4:02) — new event; 5000 metres, 13:48; 10,000 metres, 28:50.0; steeplechase, 8:38.

High jump, 7 feet, ⅝ inches (5-9¼); long jump 25-7 (20-8); pole vault, 16-8¾; triple jump, 53-1¾; shot put, 62-4 (53-1¾); discus, 193-7 (177-2); javelin, 262-5½ (152-2).

Decathlon, 7600 points, pentathlon, 4800.

Parry O'Brien of the U.S. put the shot 57 feet one and a half inches to take the gold in 1952; in 1956 he repeated with a toss of 60-11. He would have to do nearly two feet better than that to qualify for 1972.

And how about the women? Fanny Blankers-Koen of The Netherlands, the Flying Grandmother, won the 200 metres in 24.4 in 1948; Marjorie Jackson of Australia lowered the time to 23.7 in 1952 and Betty Cuthbert of Australia cut it to 23.4 in 1956.

Wilma Rudolph of the U.S. won in 1960 with a time of 24 seconds flat — compare that with the 23.6 set as the standard for 1972.

Quebec Sweeps Memorial Cup

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Remparts, Quebec Junior A Hockey League champions, won the Memorial Cup Wednesday night defeating Edmonton Oil Kings, Western Canada Hockey League titlists, 5-2 to win the best-of-three playoff series in straight games.

It was the first win for a Quebec City team in the playoffs, emblematic of supremacy in Junior A hockey play in Canada.

Jean Landry and Jacques Richard, with two goals each and Andre Savard with a single accounted for the Quebec offensive.

Derek Harker and Bruce Scott scored for Edmonton, which was no worse than 2-2 going into the second period.

The Remparts' win marked the fifth straight Memorial Cup championship for Eastern Canada and the third straight by a team from the province of Quebec.

Montreal Junior Canadiens of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series won the championship in 1969 and 1970.

The Oil Kings were the last Western representative to win the Cup when they defeated Niagara Falls Flyers in 1966.

Firefighters Ousted By North Shores

VANCOUVER — North Shore Labatts scored a 2-0 victory at Empire Stadium Wednesday night and eliminated Vancouver Firefighters from a three-way mini-playoff to decide the fourth and final playoff berth in the Pacific Coast Soccer League.

Inside-right Rick Thomas scored both goals from penalties, one in the first half and the other after the interval.

North Shore now meets Eintracht to decide who will play Columbus in the semi-final playoff next Monday night. Firefighters, Eintracht and North Shore were tied for fourth place at the end of the regular schedule matches.

Victoria United plays Croatia in the other semi-final playoff at Royal Athletic Park on Monday night.

Tucker Quits

OTTAWA (CP) — Whit Tucker of Ottawa Rough Riders, one of the top-rated pass-catchers in the Canadian Football League, announced his retirement Wednesday. Tucker, 30, blamed knee trouble for forcing his retirement. He has had surgery on his right knee twice since 1966.

Argos Release Bobby Taylor

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League have released flanker Bobby Taylor, clearing the way for the former all-star to make his own deal with any club in the league.

Montreal Extends Its Thanks to Canadiens

MONTREAL (CP) — Montrealers by the thousands showed their appreciation to their world-champion hockey team Wednesday, fairly mobbing a parade of Montreal Canadiens players as it passed through downtown.

On St. Catherine Street, four-lanes wide, enthusiastic well-wishers stood up to 20 deep and closed in on the convertibles carrying the hockey players to shake their hands and shout praise.

The motorcade moved at a snail's pace in 85-degree shirtsleeve weather.

The parade was Montreal's thank-you to the team which brought home the Stanley Cup, symbol of National Hockey League supremary by edging Chicago Black Hawks, 3-2, Tuesday night.

A police motorcycle escort led the parade and forced the spectators back, but the crowds surged forward again around the vehicles led by a convertible carrying the Stanley Cup.

Jean Beliveau, the team captain who is rumored to be about to retire after 18 NHL seasons, was a star attraction and the crowds crushed around his auto, shaking his hand or seeking an autograph.

"Thank you, thank you," Beliveau kept repeating. "Merci, Merci."

Some youngsters pulled off the players' name cards tied to the sides of the convertibles.

"Boy, have I got a souvenir," one small boy shouted.

At Phillips Square, about half-way through the parade route which led from the Forum in west-end midtown to city hall near the financial district, employees of a department store showered confetti and flowers on the players.

From a bank, 50-foot streamers flapped in the wind, hailing the champions. Mini-skirts and hot pants in the crowds added to the color.

Motorists abandoned their cars in traffic jams and joined the crowds.

Mayor Jean Drapeau greeted the players at city hall. He had announced the parade just hours after the Canadiens won the best-of-seven final playoff series in Chicago.

Offical congratulations also came from Quebec City and Ottawa. Premier Robert Bourassa sent a telegram of congratulations to Beliveau, and in the Commons, External Affairs Minister Sharp brought on applause from all quarters when he welcomed "the great victory of the Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup."

Upland Golfers Jolt Hope of Champions

Uplands	9
Glen Meadows	7½
Gorge Vale	5½
Victoria	3½
Colwood	0

Royal Colwood Golf Club's hopes of retaining the Willie Park Driver for the Inter-Club Golf League championship received a severe jolt Wednesday at Uplands.

The defending champions were blanked, 9-0, by Uplands in the opening round of the six-club competition.

Glen Meadows trimmed visiting Cedar Hill, 7½-1½, while Gorge Vale scored a home, 5½-3½ win over Victoria.

Don Billsborough downed Laurie Kerr, 2 and 1, while Dave McCall trounced Ken Floyd, 7 and 5 with Uplands taking the four-ball competition, 4 and 3.

COMPLETED ROUT

The closest Colwood came to a win was a 1-up loss to Ken Nott by Jim McMurran. In the other half of the foursome, Frank Scroggs scored a 3 and 2 victory over Colwood's Sid Murdoch and the Uplands pair took the four-ball, 2 up.

Although wind conditions were bad everywhere, Gorge Vale's Dave Mick came through with a three-under-par 68 on his home course although he three-putted three greens. Mick beat veteran Dr. George Bigelow of Victoria, 5 and 4, and combined with teammate Lex Sutcliffe, who halved with Doug Munro, took the four-ball, 3 and 2.

CHIPS FOR EAGLE

Gordon Verley, who halved with Mike Kolb of Gorge, was credited with giving Victoria a 1-up victory in the four-ball. Verley chipped in for an eagle two on the 367-yard fifth hole and chipped in for a birdie three on the 17th, a 375-yard test, to give Victoria another hole.

Verley's partner in the four-ball, Bill Thompson, lost to Gorge Vale's Reg Clarkson, 1 up.

Blue Fashions Three-Hitter For Ninth Win of Season

Hot-handed Vida Blue pitched a three-hitter and nailed down his ninth straight victory as Oakland Athletics defeated Milwaukee Brewers, 3-0, in Oakland Wednesday night.

Blue's streak extends back to opening day when he lost to Washington Senators.

He had control problems in the early innings, walking a batter in each o fthe first three. But then he retired 10 batters in a row before Danny Walton's single opened the seventh inning.

The other Milwaukee hits were singles by Roberto Pena in the third and pinch-hitter Ron Theobald in the eighth inning.

HOME RUNS

The Athletics got all their runs on homers. Rick Monday hit his sixth of the season off losing pitcher Bill Parsons in the sixth inning and Reggie Jackson hit his sixth after Joe Rudi had singled in the seventh.

The win kept Oakland five and-a-half games ahead of their nearest rivals, Minnesota Twins, who trounced California Angels, 12-6.

Tony Oliva slammed his 10th home run and knocked in three runs and Harmon Killebrew delivered three more runs with a single and a bases-loaded walk to lead the Twins to their comeback win.

Oliva hit a two-run shot in the third inning after a first-inning roller that drove in a run. Killebrew knocked in two runs with the bases loaded in a three-run fifth inning as Minnesota wiped out a 5-2 California lead.

Killebrew then walked with the bases loaded in a four-run eighth inning as the Twins padded a one-run lead to 11-6.

The rallies gave rookie Jim Strickland a victory in his first major league appearance.

Strickland pitched two innings of relief of starter Jim Perry and held the Angels to one hit while striking out four. Tom Hall pitched the final four innings for the Twins.

Dick McAuliffe drove in four runs with a homer and a double and Al Kaline hit his first two home runs of the season as Detroit Tigers hammered Cleveland Indians, 12-1.

The Tigers scored in every inning except the seventh, enabling Mickey Lolich to coast to his sixth victory against three losses.

Boson Red Sox maintained its two and-a-half game lead over Baltimore Orioles in the Eastern Division by defeating the New York Yankees, 7-2, on Reggie Smith's two-run homer in the seventh inning that broke a 2-2 tie. Unbeaten Sonny Siebert won his seventh straight game for the Red Sox.

In Kansas City, Mike Hedlund pitched a six-hitter with last-out relief help from Ted Abernathy as Kansas City Royals blanked Chicago White Sox, 2-0 on Paul Schaal's run-scoring triple in the sixth inning and Amos Otis's home run in the seventh.

Chicago's Bart Johnson limited the Royals to one hit until the sixth inning, when Schaal's two-out triple scored Ed Kirkpatrick, who had walked.

Shortstop Barry Granger hit a triple in the first inning and then came in on an error to open the scoring and Granger again made use of errors, this time by relief pitcher Ron Fedesenko, to reach second base in the fifth inning. Granger reached third base on a passed ball and came home on a fielder's choice.

John Sanderson singled in both Jack White and Bob Harris for runs in the fourth inning and then Brian Callaway, after reaching third base on a fielder's choice and passed balls, scored the last run of the game in the fifth inning when he came in on Harris' sacrifice fly.

Cubs Swap For Catcher

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Cubs obtained 33-year-old catcher Chris Cannizzaro from San Diego Padres Wednesday for infielder Garry Jestadt and an undisclosed amount of money.

The Cubs also placed Joe Pepitone on the disabled list.

In making the deal, vice-president John Holland of the Cubs obtained an experienced backup man for ailing Randy Hundley. Hundley has appeared in only five games since injuring his right knee during a spring training game last March 12.

Pepitone, an outfielder-first baseman, was put on the disabled list for 15 days. He has bone chips in his left elbow.

Argentine Team Here for Game

San Fernado Club of Buenos Aires, which provides practically the whole lineup for Argentina's national Olympic men's field hockey team, plays the third match of its Canadian tour against a Vancouver Island Representative XI at 7 p.m. tonight at Royal Athletic Park.

After a scoreless draw with the B.C. President's XI in the tour opener at Empire Stadium, the Argentina side defeated a Canada "B" team, 1-0, Tuesday night in Vancouver.

Friday morning the visiting team will leave Victoria for Calgary to continue the tour with matches on the Prairies and in Ontario before going on to Europe for games there.

Pirates Take Lead With Phillies Help

New York Mets, who only last Saturday held a three-game lead over Pittsburgh Pirates, dropped out of first place in the Eastern Division of the National League Wednesday night.

Philadelphia knocked the Mets off the top rung by handing the New Yorkers their fourth straight defeat, 4-1, on Terry Harmon's three-run double in the seventh inning.

Real Madrid Snatches Soccer Tie

Real Madrid, snatching an equalizer with the last kick of normal time, lived to fight again Wednesday night after their European Cup Winners Cup final with Chelsea of England ended in a 1-1 tie after extra time.

A 56th-minute goal by centre-forward Peter Osgood seemed to have won the game for Chelsea until Ignacio Zoco popped up in the 89th minute to grab the equalizer.

ALL-OUT ATTACK

Chelsea, dominant in the second half, struggled to keep out the Spaniards in extra time as Real, six times European Cup winners, launched an all-out assault in an attempt to win the Cup Winners Cup at the first attempt.

The teams will replay on Friday in Athens.

PLAY TO TIE

In London, England, playing with almost an entirely new team, tied Wales, 0-0, at Wembley Stadium in British championship play. England, now with three points, plays Scotland, which has one, on Saturday while Northern Ireland and Wales, each with two points, meet.

In the European Cup of Nations, Bulgaria defeated Hungary, 3-0, in a first-leg qualification match.

Remorseful Richard Explains...

MONTREAL (CP) — "I'll be very disappointed if Al MacNeil is not my coach when we go to camp this fall . . . I mean that."

Those were the remorseful words Wednesday of Henri Richard.

After the Habs were defeated 2-0 in the fifth game of the series, Henri told some French-language reporters that MacNeil was an "incompetent coach, the worst coach I had ever played for."

And now he's sorry, very sorry.

"Let me say, for once and for all, exactly what I meant and what I believe," Richard said.

"Worst coach . . . incompetent, I said that, right? I never meant that.

"I'll never change my mind about that game. It was a terrible coaching job. That was one game. I've had terrible games too.

"Every coach has a terrible night, every player a terrible game but one game doesn't condemn a man."

Richard went on to say that MacNeil was exactly the opposite of incompetent.

"He's a rookie so he makes mistakes just like I did when I was a rookie," he said.

"When he was bad I said so. When I've been bad, they've said so. Well, maybe not all the time. That's why I should have said nothing."

Former Olympic Champions Couldn't Even Qualify Now

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

The new Olympic Games qualifying standards are so tough that some of the great times, heights and distances of the past wouldn't be good enough even to win a place on a 1972 team.

The standards established for the Munich Games are such that no Olympic gold-medal time up to 1956 in the distance events — 1,500, 5,000 and 10,000 metres — would even get a runner into the stadium.

Had he been forced to observe the new times, Emil Zatopek, of Czechoslovakia would not have been allowed to compete — much less would he have taken the gold medals in the 10,000 metres in 1948 and 1952 and in the 5,000 in 1952.

Paavo Nurmi, the flying Finn, wouldn't have had a prayer in the 10,000, which he won in 1928.

Don Bragg of the United States, who won the 1960 pole vault gold medal with a height of 15-feet-5, would have to go 15 inches higher merely to make it to Munich.

★ ★ ★

Owens

Zatopek

MUST SPRINT FASTER

And look at the 100-metre dash. Eddie Tolan of the U.S. won it in 10.3 in 1932. The same speed was good enough to win it for his countrymen — Jesse Owens in 1936 and Harrison Dillard in 1948.

In 1952, the gold-medal time was a slow 10.4 when Lindy Remigino of the U.S. won. Bobby Morrow of the U.S. put it back to 10.3 in 1956.

It wasn't until 1960 that Armin Hary of Germany lowered the Olympic gold medal time to 10.2.

Just to qualify for the 1972 event, it will be necessary for a sprinter to match the 10.3 that was good enough to win up to 1960.

Under Olympic regulations, any member country may enter an athlete in any event without conforming to a standard. However, if a country enters more than one athlete in an event, all that country's athletes in that event must have made the standard.

STANDARDS LISTED

The standards for the 1972 Olympic Games in Munich, women's standards in brackets:

100 metres, 10.3 (11.5) seconds; 200 metres, 20.9 (23.6); 400 meres, 46.4 (54.0); 800 metres, 1:47.6 (2:05); 1500 metres, 3:41.6 (4:02) — new event; 5000 metres, 13:48; 10,000 metres, 28:50.0; steeplechase, 8:38.

High jump, 7 feet, ⅝ inches (5-9¼); long jump 25-7 (20-8); pole vault, 16-8¾; triple jump, 53-1¾; shot put, 62-4 (53-1¾); discus, 193-7 (177-2); javelin, 262-5½ (152-2).

Decathlon, 7600 points, pentathlon, 4800.

Parry O'Brien of the U.S. put the shot 57 feet one and a half inches to take the gold in 1952; in 1956 he repeated with a toss of 60-11. He would have to do nearly two feet better than that to qualify for 1972.

And how about the women? Fanny Blankers-Koen of The Netherlands, the Flying Grandmother, won the 200 metres in 24.4 in 1948; Marjorie Jackson of Australia lowered the time to 23.7 in 1952 and Betty Cuthbert of Australia cut it to 23.4 in 1956.

Wilma Rudolph of the U.S. won in 1960 with a time of 24 seconds flat — compare that with the 23.6 set as the standard for 1972.

Quebec Sweeps Memorial Cup

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Remparts, Quebec Junior A Hockey League champions, won the Memorial Cup Wednesday night defeating Edmonton Oil Kings, Western Canada Hockey League titlists, 5-2 to win the best-of-three playoff series in straight games.

It was the first win for a Quebec City team in the playoffs, emblematic of supremacy in Junior A hockey play in Canada.

Jean Landry and Jacques Richard, with two goals each and Andre Savard with a single accounted for the Quebec offensive.

Derek Harker and Bruce Scott scored for Edmonton, which was no worse than 2-2 going into the second period.

The Remparts' win marked the fifth straight Memorial Cup championship for Eastern Canada and the third straight by a team from the province of Quebec.

Montreal Junior Canadiens of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series won the championship in 1969 and 1970.

The Oil Kings were the last Western representative to win the Cup when they defeated Niagara Falls Flyers in 1966.

Firefighters Ousted By North Shores

VANCOUVER — North Shore Labatts scored a 2-0 victory at Empire Stadium Wednesday night and eliminated Vancouver Firefighters from a three-way mini-playoff to decide the fourth and final playoff berth in the Pacific Coast Soccer League.

Inside-right Rick Thomas scored both goals from penalties, one in the first half and the other after the interval.

North Shore now meets Eintracht to decide who will play Columbus in the semi-final playoff next Monday night. Firefighters, Eintracht and North Shore were tied for fourth place at the end of the regular schedule matches.

Victoria United plays Croatia in the other semi-final playoff at Royal Athletic Park on Monday night.

Wackiest Season in History of Canadiens

And winning Stanley Cup doesn't automatically remove some problems

MONTREAL (CP) — Despite its successful ending, the 1970-71 National Hockey League season likely will be long remembered by Montreal Canadiens and their supporters as one of the wackiest in the history of the club.

And Toe Blake, who holds the record of coaching the most Stanley Cup championship teams by leading the Canadiens to eight titles, agrees.

BIGGEST AND BEST

"With all the problems this team has had, this has to be the biggest and best win," Blake, now an assistant vice-president with the Montreal club, said of the Canadiens 10th Cup victory in 15 years.

The Canadiens won the title in Chicago Tuesday night in the seventh game of a tough series with a 3-2 win over the favored Hawks on the strength of a pair of goals by veteran Henri Richard, a single by Jacques Lemaire and an outstanding goaltending job by rookie Ken Dryden.

PROBLEMS REMAIN

But winning the Stanley Cup didn't automatically remove some of the problems for the Canadiens.

Several items of unfinished business remained.

There remained in limbo the future of veteran captain Jean Beliveau, who said after Tuesday night's win that there is a 50-50 chance he will retire.

Then there is the future of rookie coach Al MacNeil.

While MacNeil won the Stanley Cup in Chicago, he refused to comment on whether or not he will return to try again next season.

TIMING BAD

Richard publicly chastised MacNeil for his coaching strategy but later admitted he should have kept his mouth shut and that his timing was bad.

Dryden
. . . . still awestruck

However, the incident invoked an uproar here and wound up with MacNeil under police guard following telephoned threats against him.

INCIDENT OVER

Beliveau said Tuesday night, and was backed by other players and MacNeil, that the coach-player feud had been resolved in a five-minute meeting at the Forum last Saturday.

Both MacNeil and Richard said following the Cup victory that they wanted to forget the incident, with Richard adding that he hoped the coach will return next season.

NOT JUST 'DISASTER'

General manager Sam Pollock declined to comment on either the MacNeil or Beliveau situation Tuesday night, but pointed out that his club had survived what many had thought to be a disaster.

"You'll notice that this team won all three series on the other team's ice," Pollock said. "And some said we couldn't go in and win a seventh game here or in Boston."

STATE OF FLUX

In addition to their late-season problems, the Canadiens appeared to be in a state of flux for most of the season as a result of injuries or shifting personnel.

Centre Ralph Backstrom and left winger John Ferguson decided to retire after training camp. Ferguson subsequently returned to the fold in November, while Backstrom wound up with Los Angeles Kings following a January trade.

RUEL RESIGNED

Claude Ruel resigned as coach Dec. 3, to be replaced by MacNeil, then an assistant coach.

Early in January the club obtained big Frank Mahovlich from Detroit Red Wings in return for forwards Mickey Redmond, Bill Collins and Guy Charron.

The same month defenceman Serge Savard broke his left leg for the second time in as many years and was lost to the club for the remainder of the season and the playoffs.

MISSED JACQUES

To make the situation more trying, defenceman Jacques Laperriere missed 29 games because of a pinched nerve in his neck that temporarily paralysed his left arm.

Laperriere admitted after Tuesday's victory in Chicago he had played the last two weeks of the playoffs with a break in his left wrist.

After knocking off Boston Bruins in the quarter-final round, the Canadiens eliminated Minnesota North Stars in six games, but not before another spot of trouble.

In the second game of the Minnesota series Ferguson, benched for the third period by MacNeil, stormed from the bench with less than one minute remaining in the game.

The pair apparently made their peace by the next contest.

DRYDEN AWESTRUCK

While the jury remained out on the MacNeil-Richard incident and on Beliveau's future plans, rookie Dryden, winner of the Conn Smythe Trophy as the best performer throughout the playoffs, remained awestruck by it all.

The subject of high praise for his efforts, Dryden, who played in and won only six NHL contests before his 20-game playoff performance, said he just can't believe it all.

"I think there are some other players on our team who could have won this (Smythe) award and there are some players on the Black Hawks who might have won it," he said. "But I'm grateful for the honor."

St. Michael's Second

VANCOUVER — St. George's of Vancouver edged St. Michael's of Victoria in the final standings of the five-school B.C. Independent Prep School swim meet Tuesday.

St. George's finished with 51 points, two more than the Victoria entry, to retain the title they won in the inaugural event last year.

Winners for St. Michael's were Bob Wright and Reg Moore in the under-14 age division and Bill Hope and John Ellis in the under-12 class. The St. Michael's representatives also won both medley relays.

Rick Cassata Joins Riders

OTTAWA (CP) — Rick Cassata has been signed by Ottawa Rough Riders of the Eastern Football Conference the club announced Wednesday.

The 205-pound Cassata began his professional football career with Saskatchewan Roughriders and was traded to Winnipeg Blue Bombers before going to Jersey Jays of Syracuse, N.Y.

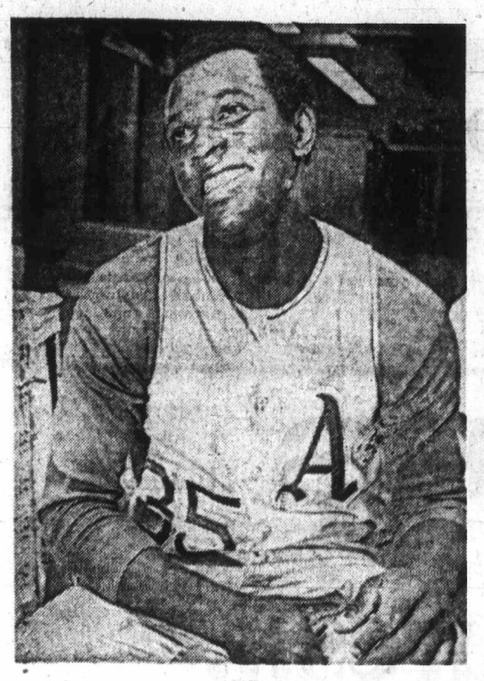
Vida Blue's 'Potential Unlimited'



'He's a young Sandy Koufax'

OAKLAND (AP) — Vida Blue, the hottest pitching property in baseball today, faced an embarassing situation after he signed with Oakland Athletics four years ago.

He had to tell Athletics owner Charles O. Finley that his name didn't carry any weight in Mansfield, La., Blue's home town.

"I remember that the first thing he asked for after he signed was a dozen baseballs," said Finley. "I told him to go buy them at the hardward store and charge them to me.

"But they wouldn't give him any. We had to send him a box of baseballs from Oakland."

STARTLING REGULARITY

Blue now is throwing baseballs past American League batters with startling regularity.

"He's a young Sandy Koufax," says Athletics manager Dick Williams of his 21-year-old left-handed pitching star. "His potential is unlimited. His present looks pretty good, too."

Koufax, the former Los Angeles Dodgers southpaw, was 27 years old and in his ninth season with the team before he had his first 20-victory year.

EXPECTATION HIGH

Blue, starting his first full season with the A's went into Wednesday night's game against Milwaukee with an 8-1 record. He could be the game's next 30-game winner.

Denny McLain, who won 31 games for Detroit Tigers in 1968, got his eighth victory on May 29th and his ninth on June 5.

They put Blue in a red convertible last winter and drove him around Mansfield behind two high school bands on "Vida Blue Day," celebrating the no-hitter he threw against Minnesota Twins last Sept. 21.

ONE-HITTER TOO

Blue also had a one-hitter, against Kansas City Royals last fall after the A's brought him up from their Iowa farm club in the American Association, where he was 12-3.

He was 10-3 with Birmingham, Ala., of the Class AA Southern Association in 1969 before joining the A's in July. In 12 games against American League batters, he gave up 13 home runs and had a .621 earned-run average in 42 innings.

RECORD IMPRESS

After reeling off eight straight victories this year, he had walked just 28 batters in 77 innings, had 81 strikeouts and an ERA of 1.27.

Blue credits A's pitching coach Bill Posedel and major league veteran Juan Pizarro, a team-mate at Iowa last year, with solving his control problems.

"They both told me to take a shorter stride when I threw my curve ball," he explains.

Blue throws his fastball, one of the best in baseball, about 80 per cent of the time. The occasional curves make it appear even faster.

Testimonials from opposing batters include this one from Al Kaline of Detroit:

"He throws as good as anyone in our league. What impressed me was whenever he got in a jam he could strike somebody out. That's awfully important."

Unitas Confident He'll Be Back

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — The cast comes off Johnny Unitas' right foot today six weeks to the day he tore his Achilles' tendon, and if you want to know how he feels the answer is fine except when you ask him if he has any thoughts about quitting.

"The only ones who have those thoughts are some newspaper people," says the Baltimore Colts' 39-year-old quarterback. "I don't care one way or another what the newspapers say. I've got in my own mind what I want to do and I'm going to go out and do it."

HIGHEST PAID

At $125,000 a year Johnny Unitas is the highest paid player in the NFL. He has earned it and then some in his 15 years with Baltimore during which he has played in two super bowl games, 10 pro bowl games and set at least that many league records. With the Colts world champions of all football now there have been suggestions Unitas might be wise to go out on top. He rejects all such suggestions.

"I don't think it makes a bit of difference whether you go out on top or on bottom," he says. "To me it's a job. If I feel I can still make some contribution to the ball club, then I'll try. If I can't, then I'll get out of it. I've got five children to send through school and I don't know anybody on the outside who's going to pay me the amount of money I make playing football. When I feel I have no contribution to offer, then I'll walk out."

NOT SITTING AROUND

Unitas hasn't been sitting back and watching the grass grow since he snapped his tendon playing paddle ball with teammate Tom Matte last April 7. He has been taking a lot of whirlpool treatments for his leg and undergoing daily rubbing and massage trying to get the strength and muscle tone back.

He says there was no pain at all the moment he ripped his tendon.

"I was going up for the ball," he says, "and I just felt Tommy might've hit me in the back of the calf with his paddle. It really wasn't that painful. Not right then, anyway. I fell down and when I sat up and asked Tommy why he tripped me he said he hadn't even touched me. When he said that I knew immediately what it was. Still, after two or three minutes I was able to walk flat-footed, so I went up and took a shower and shave and drove home and then to the hospital."

LOTS OF CONFIDENCE

Along with the diathermy and massage, Unitas has been working with weights on both legs. He knows Bobby Tolan of the Reds sustained the same type of injury this past winter and still hasn't returned to action yet but feels he'll be ready by the end of Baltimore's pre-season games or the first regular season contest.

"Normally it's a six-month proposition with an injury like this but I think I can come back sooner because I've been keeping myself in good physical condition," he says.

"My pain threshold is pretty high, so I can stand a good bit of it where maybe other people couldn't. I can push myself a little bit harder than most people can."

One more thing about Johnny Unitas. If you hit him and knock him down, he gets back up again. Maybe it's a little tougher for him to do than it was 10 years ago but he still does it anyway.

His 34th One of Brooks Robinson's Good Birthdays

NEW YORK (AP) — Brooks Robinson is feeling his oats. Unfortunately for the rest of the American League, he isn't feeling his age.

"Age!" Robinson snorted Tuesday night after his two-run tie-breaking homer in the fourth inning powered Baltimore Orioles to a 6-2 victory over the New York Yankees.

"Age doesn't bother me at all. It's probably the most over-worked word around. The only thing is that you don't bounce back as quickly and sometimes your legs don't feel up to it."

It was the great third baseman's 34th birthday and he exchanged gifts with manager Earl Weaver. The manager let Robinson bat cleanup — "Earl said it was my birthday present" — and Robby provided the big blow.

The man who has won 11 straight Golden Glove fielding awards also handled seven chances flawlessly.

"The way he fields the short hops, that's the most amazing thing," said Weaver. "You get kind of used to it. You get to expect it, which might not be right. I guarantee you he won't slow down for a few years. He's just a kid, a youngster. He's not fast but is he quick."

"I haven't even lost a step," grinned Brooks, whose lack of running speed is his only drawback. "Playing third base I don't have to move around as much as I would, say, in the outfield catching fly balls."

Robinson has had good birthdays, bad birthdays and some he doesn't even remember.

"Last year was a bad one. We lost right here to the Yankees, 10-4.

"I also remember my 23rd birthday. We were in Kansas City and I was 0-for-23. But I don't know if I got a hit that night."

The answer is yes. Robinson collected two singles and drove in a run.

Mel Marshall Returning to Speedway

By LORI WELLS

As stock cars return to competition at Western Speedway Saturday, popular Mel Marshall will be behind the wheel for the first time since his "retirement" in 1969.

Mel is assuming the driving chores of the No. 1 stock car, while owner and driver, Harvey St. Hilaire and wife, Donna, are on a three-week tour of England, Ireland, Scotland and Germany.

He is a four-year veteran of the oval wars, starting in 1966 as crew member of a car driven by Earl Pollard. A mechanic by trade, Mel joined the crew, but by mid-season had decided to build and drive a car of his own.

After just a few weeks of driving, he discovered the thrill of victory, when he won his first main event and claimed the unique Andy Cotton trophy.

The trophy was offered to commemorate the sale of Western Speedway to its present owners. On the last Saturday in August of 1966, the management officially changed and the evening was designated "Andy Cotton Night," in honor of the former owner.

This exciting night proved to be the first of many main event wins for Mel, which included the Roy White Memorial Trophy, and club awards for best-looking car and best-looking crew.

He was also active in VARA (Victoria Auto Racing Association), prior to the amalgamation of VARA with VITRA (Vancouver Island Track Racing Association), serving one year as treasurer and two, as a member of the policy-making advisory board.

Each of his years of racing found him in the "top ten." In 1967, he finished ninth in the point standings, in 1968 fifth, and in 1969 he tied with Bill Price for the number one spot. He also held the track record on several occasions.

After his "retirement," Mel and wife, Ann, bought a boat, firm in the conviction that racing was now behind them. They, and children, Cal, 9; Cindy, 7, and Lee, 4, spend much of last summer fishing. This season, they have added scuba diving to their interests.

He is now excited, as he looks forward to his first competition in almost two years. He is impressed with the car he will be driving, and does not feel that the fact that it bears No. 1 will create any extra pressure for him. The points he will earn are important though, for points are awarded to the car and not the driver, and St. Hilaire will be hoping that Mel can assist him in regaining his first-place status.

Is he seriously considering a full-time return to racing? Mel Marshall says "no" — but hastens to add, that if he does, it would be as pilot to a new and powerful super stock. Perhaps that "no" isn't as definite as it sounds!

Sale of Canonero II Unlikely at Present

MIAMI (UPI) — The owners of Canonero II, winner of the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, will meet here today with possible buyers of the horse, but Jack Hofher, secretary of Venezuela Stud Inc., said an actual sale is unlikely now.

Hofher said Venezuela Stud Inc., a U.S. corporation based in Miami whose principal business is importing Latin American horses, simply was acting as agent in bringing together Edro Baptista and Edgar Caibett, the Venezuela owners of the Kentucky-bred Canonero II, and the would-be purchasing syndicate represented by trainer Bub Lepman.

"There is going to be a meeting tomorrow with discussion of the possibility of sale," Hofher said. "I don't anticipate any finalization of it tomorrow. It's just in the talking stages. I don't think the man (Baptista) has made up his mind to sell the horse yet. He has agreed to listen to an offer."

Rowland Trophy Awarded To Saanich Scrum Half

Daryl Noullette, the little scrum half with Saanich Velox, has been awarded the John Rowland Trophy which is presented annually to the rugby player best showing "ability, leadership and sportsmanship."

Noulette captained Velox through an undefeated regular season in which the club won the Victoria Rugby Union's Division II championship and gained a berth in the provincial final. Vancouver Kats won the final, 12-9.

The presentation of the John Rowland Trophy was the highlight of the Rugby Union's annual awards banquet at which trophies were awarded to division winners.

University of Victoria Vikings took three trophies — for the Division I league and playoff championships and the B.C. championship — Velox won the Division II trophy and James Bay Athletic Association won the Division III prize.

Tournament To Resume

COURTENAY — Three teams still in the running for the senior "A" fastball championship will return here Sunday to finish off a tournament cut short by rain last weekend.

Bate Construction and Strathcona Hotel, both of the Victoria Major Men's Softball League, and the Upper Island Tyees will take part in the final stages of the tournament.

The tournament was planned as a five-team, two-day affair last Saturday and Sunday. However, rain prevented play Saturday and the first six games had to be played on Sunday.

Seaboard Construction of Victoria and Molsons Canadians from Vancouver were both eliminated on the first day.

Most interesting game was a 21-innings marathon between Bate Construction and Tyees, won 5-4 by Bates.

Strathcona Hotel upset favored Molsons, 1-0, and then a three-run homer by George Banks enabled Bate Construction to win 4-1 and eliminate the Vancouver team from the double-knockout tournament. The Vancouver team's only win was by 5-0 over Seaboard Construction and Seaboard was later beaten, 2-1, by Strathcona Hotel.

In the other game, Tyees defeated Strathcona Hotel, 1-0.

Softball Win

Esquimalt Ocean Express downed View Royal, 5-1, in a Colwood and District Juvenile Boys Softball League game Wednesday night.

Contempt Jails Activist

SEATTLE — Anti-war activist Leslie Bacon was found in contempt of court and jailed Wednesday evening for refusing to answer questions before a federal grand jury after being granted immunity from prosecution.

Her lawyers contended the immunity was too narow.

She refused to answer questions about trips the government claims she made to meetings and he alleged participation in the bombing of a men's room near the U.S. Senate chambers last March 1.

The questions she refused to answer were read in open court before Judge William Goodwin cited Miss Bacon for contempt.

She was ordered to jail for the duration of the current grand jury term, which ends next March, or until she agrees to answer the questions.

The 19-year-old Atherton, Calif., girl has been held in a Seattle-area hotel under $100,000 bail as a material witness in connection with the Capitol bombing.

Miss Bacon has for several days refused to answer questions before the grand jury, citing constitutional grounds. She was granted immunity by Judge Goodwin earlier Wednesday.

□

NEW YORK — CBS news correspondent Walter Cronkite sees possible signs the Nixon administration is conspiring to destroy the credibility of the press — and the television news media in particular.

"Short of uncovering documents which probably do not exist, it is impossible to know precisely the motives of this conspiracy," Cronkite said. "But is it too much to suggest that the grand design is to lower the press' credibility in an attempt to raise their own and thus even — or perhaps tilt in their favor — the odds in future electoral battles?"

□

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. — Amos Huckleby celebrated his 15th birthday but the lad, stricken by mercury poisoning in 1969, couldn't see the young friends his mother invited to the party. After 17 months in hospitals and a rehabilitation centre, Amos is learning to walk and speak again, but he is still blind. Pork from a hog which had been fed seed grain treated with a mercury compound fungicide caused the damage.

□

CHICAGO — Josiah Ellis Saunders, who founded the rent-a-car industry in 1916, died Tuesday. He was 82.

□

CAPE MAY, N.J. — Rev. Carl McIntire's Shelton College, stripped by the state of its degree-granting power, holds its final commencement ceremonies in New Jersey Monday for 27 graduates. McIntire, a fundamentalist radio preacher known for his Washington victory rallies, charged New Jersey "forced" him to move his college.

□

MONTREAL — A Crown appeal against the acquittal in January of Robert Langevin in a seditious libel charge has been rejected unanimously by five judges of the Quebec Court of Appeal.

□

OTTAWA — One of six Canadian authors selected to receive Governor-General literary awards refused to accept the honor at a presentation made by Governor-General Roland Michener. Gernand Ouellette, 40, a CBC public affairs producer, gave political reasons for not accepting the award for his collection of essays, Les Actres Retrouves.

□

BERKELEY, Calif. — Freshman Representative Ronald Dellums says his fellow congressmen are less concerned with "solving the questions in the country than with getting elected." Most are "drawing $42,500 welfare cheques — their salary."

□

KAMPALA — President Idi Amin has invited Pope Paul, the Archbishop of Canterbury and religious leaders from all independent African states to attend the closing session of a religious conference now under way at Kabale, southwestern Uganda. If they could not come in person he hoped they would send their representatives.

TV Viewer Angry with Census Reel

Film Spurs Bomb Threats

MEDICINE HAT (CP) — Television station CHAT-TV received two anonymous bomb threats Tuesday night for carrying a network program explaining the 1971 federal census.

A spokesman for the station, an affiliate of the CBC, said the first call was received about 9 p.m. while the station was carrying the program, On a Clear Day You Can Count Forever. The film was made for the National Film Board explaining changes in census procedures this year.

The spokesman said the male caller apparently objected to a statement by one actor, playing a hippie under the influence of dope, who said: "They've got a lot of weird people down there," a reference to this southeastern Alberta city.

The telephone threat was repeated again about 9:12 p.m., apparently by the same person.

A police spokesman, asked if the threat had been taken seriously, said: "Apparently the caller seemed serious about the program, but not serious enough to blow up the building."

The station's broadcasting studios at Redcliff, a town of about 3,000 adjacent to the city's northwestern outskirts, were searched. No explosive device was found.

Island Youth Leads March

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 800 persons Sunday finished a three-day, 98-mile Mocassin Miles March through the Fraser Valley and back to raise funds for Indian organizations.

Dove Kanee, 80, of Vancouver was the oldest marcher to finish the route — then walked several miles to his home. One of the first persons across the finish line was Steve Kisik, 15, of Nanaimo.

Booked with Bands and Choirs

Holiday Weekend Like Jam Session

By BERT BINNY

More than ever in this Centennial year, this weekend music will spill over at both ends.

When it comes to music it's going to be difficult to get a note in edgewise for quite some time.

Friday there will be a choir of 50 voices in Centennial Square. The 34 girls and 16 boys are from Lake Washington high school at Kirkland, a suburb of Seattle.

These are the Concertones, directed by Jack Kunz and officially described as "very select."

Their program Friday, which starts at 1:30 p.m., includes such items as a Norman Luboff arrangement of Stars and Shadows, Oh Lemuel, Didn't My Lord Deliver Daniel, I Found Love, An Answer for Our Time and an arrangement by Kunz of the Star Spangled Banner.

□

At 8:15 p.m. Saturday in First United Church, Victoria's Arion Male Voice choir, the Eugene Gleemen and the Vancouver Metropolitan Chamber orchestra join forces for a Centennial '71 Festival of Song.

The orchestra opens the program with music from Mozart's The Abduction from the Seraglio. The two choirs offer Prayer of Thanksgiving, Handel's Let Their Celestial Concerts All Unite and the Hallelujah chorus — not from Messiah but from Mount of Olives.

Dr. Max Reisinger conducts the Gleemen in Palestrina's Adoramus Te, Testament of Freedom, Let Not Your Song

Hendry

End and Hallelujah Amen from Judas Maccabeus.

In the slightly less classical vein, Arion choir have The Dashing White Sergeant and the famous Road to the Isles, both arranged by conductor Bert Storar and the latter with John McVie as soloist.

Also to be heard are The Old Woman and The Song of the Jolly Roger.

The finale employs both choirs and the orchestra with the Soldier's Chorus from Faust, Sibelius' Dear Land of Home, Battle Hymn of the Republic and Land of Hope and Glory.

Sunday evening at 7:30 promises to be a particularly entertaining time with six bands at Royal Athletic Park as well as a choir, a concert orchestra and a jazz ensemble at the McPherson Playhouse.

Five of the six bands are from Washington State high schools: Arlington, Renton, Meridian at Bellingham, Mount Rainier and Mount Baker at Deming. The sixth is from Willows, Southern California, which appears at the Butchart Gardens the following afternoon.

The park show ends with a sunset cermony performed by the Rainbow Sea Cadets.

The Pops Concert at the McPherson presents the 50-voice Newport choir from Washington with a variety of songs including Bridge Over Troubled Water and Spinning Wheel.

Also on this program is the 50-piece Medford Concert orchestra from Oregon performing such favorites as the themes from Exodus and Love Story.

Also on this program is the 50-piece Medford Concert orchestra from Oregon performing such favorites as the themes from Exodus and Love Story.

Finally, the 25-piece Interlake Jazz Ensemble from Washington will provide items including such as Scarborough Fair and Second Time Around.

□

The recent well-attended annual general meeting of the Victoria Musical Art Society re-elected Mrs. G. S. Watts as president and Charlotte Crawford as secretary.

Pianist Linn Hendry entertained and was presented with a gift of luggage by Mrs. J. Gillespie. The gift came from the president of the society and board members.

This was both a happy and a practical thought as Miss Hendry is off to Paris to pursue her musical studies in September.

Kaestner

From Bach's Church in Leipzig

Organist Plays Friday

Career of Hannes Kaestner, who will give an organ recital at 8 p.m. Friday in Christ Church Cathedral, has been intimately connected with Bach's church of St. Thomas, Leipzig.

Kaestner for eight years was a chorister under direction of Cantor Guenther Ramin who also taught him organ. In 1951, at the age of 21, he was given the position of organist of the church and he later became organ lecturer of the Leipzig Hochschule fuer Musik.

As Thomasorganist and as harpsichordist to the Gewandhaus-Bach orchestra, he has toured 28 countries in Europe, Asia, Africa and South America.

Two years ago, on a North American tour, he played in Montreal and was a featured recitalist at the Diamond Jubilee convention of the Royal Canadian College of Organists in Vancouver.

On his present tour he will record some of the Bach concerti for harpsicord and orchestra with the CBC Vancouver orchestra.

Friday night's program here will include works of Bach, Buxtehude, Samuel Scheidt and Max Reger.

Nature Speeds Growth

Nature may have been slow in starting this year, but she did a good job of catching up, according to Cliff Bate, Victoria's parks director.

"When we started our annual maintenance program, the season was about two and a half weeks behind," he told the Colonist Wednesday.

"Right now, it looks like everything is still about one week behind, but towards fall you'll see that everything balances out again," Bate said.

Right now, he said, the city was replacing all bedding material with annual flowers.

"The dry winds in the past few weeks have really brought everything to maturity faster," he said.

SUPREME FRIED CHICKEN

⅛ cup all purpose flour
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp paprika
¼ tsp pepper
1 - 2½ to 3 lbs. ready to cook broiler chicken cut up. Shortening for frying.

Combine flour and seasonings in paper or plastic bag; add 2 or 3 pieces of chicken at a time and shake. Place on rack to let coating dry. Heat shortening (¼ inch deep in skillet) until a drop of water sizzles. Brown meaty pieces first; then add remaining pieces (be sure not to crowd) Brown one side, turn with tongs. When lightly browned, 15 to 20 minutes, reduce heat; cover tightly. If the cover is not tight, add 1 tbles water. Cook until fork tender about 30 to 40 minutes. Uncover last 10 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Note: For extra crustiness, add ½ cup fine dry bread crumbs to flour for the coating.

Child Care Off Ground

By BILL BARRINGER

After a quiet, uncertain beginning, Canada's first union-sponsored day care centre for the children of working mothers is a happy — and promising — success.

The centre, wholly developed and financed by the Victoria Branch of the B.C. Government Employees Union, opened its doors at 106 Superior in James Bay on April 1 with just half-a-dozen children, and BCGEU branch president Kenneth Kent admits to some anxious moments wondering if the union had backed the wrong idea.

"We were looking for some community service project," Kent said, "and various social workers, agencies and labor newsletters kept stressing the 'crying need' for day care. I read so much on the subject I could talk about it for hours.

"But after we got the centre ready, the response was quite slow . . . I began to wonder where all that 'crying need' went."

To get the centre ready, the union enlisted volunteer help from carpenters, electricians and other tradesmen and invested some $4,000 in branch funds to restore the old Servitus Hall, a former home-away-from-home for seamen.

On completion, the project was licensed to care for 20 children in the three-to-five years of age group.

"Now," Kent said, "the centre is caring for 15 children and the demand is growing . . . I think the initial lack of response was just lack of knowledge — if mothers aren't accustomed to thinking in terms of day care centres, it simply never occurs to them to look for one.

"They make other arrangements — often quite makeshift — or struggle along trying to juggle a job and child care on their own."

While the centre's basic purpose is to care for children of working mothers who are the sole support of their families — such as widows or divorcees — the union shows a refreshing lack of the bureaucratic nonsense that so often spoils other socially-oriented projects. The centre, in short, is open to anybody.

"We have mothers who bring in their children simply because they need some time to themselves, and that's fine," said Mrs. Phyllis Turner, a teacher of 14 years experience who supervises the centre.

"The children here represented many different backgrounds and home situations. Some are here while their mothers take vocational training, for instance. Others have come through various referrals, such as churches. Some have just seen our ads and come in."

The centre's day begins at 7:30 in the morning and ends about 6 p.m. when the last mothers drop by to pick up their children.

In between, the children are kept busy with painting, games, stories, afternoon naps and trips to the park. Lunch is provided, and snacks. Mrs. Turner has two assistants to help out, and the children are divided into two groups — three-year-olds and four and five-year-olds — who play in separate parts of building.

"We don't teach them in any formal sense," said Mrs. Turner, "but this is valuable educationally because it gets the kids accustomed to a group situation. Then there's no shock or hard adjustment when they begin to go to kindergarten or Grade one."

Full fee for the centre is $70 monthly per child, but this is scaled down according to each mother's ability to pay, Mrs. Turner said. "And some don't pay at all."

Everyone connected with the centre agrees it's working just fine and — when the word goes far enough along the liberation grapevine — Ken Kent and the BCGEU may face a brand new set of worries:

Not too few children, but too many.

Nag Makes Her Sick

Ann Landers

DEAR, ANN LANDERS: May I say a word in behalf of a segment of society of whom you have neither patience nor sympathy? I refer to the Nagging Wife. I can speak authoritatively because I am one.

I did not get this way by accident. Naggers are made, not born. When I married, I was a young, naive, romantic girl. Today I am a nag. Why?

Because I married a man who sincerely believes that one day he WILL replace the missing light bulb in the nursery, put a screw in the basement door knob, install a dozen cup hooks in my pantry, tighten the kitchen drawer handles, bleed the upstairs radiators, etc., etc. He started building a wall cabinet three years ago. It still isn't finished.

My husband works hard. He is home every night, loves his children and is good to me. But, he has turned me into a shrew simply because he is too lazy to do small things.

In closing I would like to say a word to all husbands who have this problem: Don't be ashamed to call a carpenter, a painter or a handyman. Your wife will not respect you less for it. Undone chores can make a wife irritable. It can transform her into the kind of woman she doesn't want to be. I know because I'm an — Unwilling Screamer.

Dear Screamer: Balderdash, dearie. If you didn't enjoy screaming you'd put in the light bulb yourself, instal your own cup hooks, etc. If you cannot do these things, you're so lame-brained that you can, I trust, use a telephone. So why don't YOU call the carpenter or the handyman?

By your own admission you have a husband who is home every night, loves the children and is good to you. Yet you let a few two-bit details spoil your marriage. You make me sick, kiddo.

Dear Ann Landers: That fellow who is "healthy as a horse" but falls asleep in movies, at the poker table and in the middle of conversations might have narcolepsy. His wife reported that he had undergone stomach X-rays, thyroid tests, and so on and the doctor gave him a clean bill of health. Narcolepsy would not show up in these tests. The man should be seen by a neurologist.

I hope you can get the word to them. — Memphis Neurosurgeon

Dear Doctor: I received similar letters from dozens of other physicians (three from the Mayo Clinic) and I am grateful to all who wrote. You have reminded me once again the importance of urging people to seek a second medical opinion if they fail to get satisfaction from the first. A competent general practitioner should be able to recognize the symptoms of narcolepsy. That patient should have been referred to a neurologist.

Judge Tries Table Turn

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial Court Judge Gordon Johnson suggested Wednesday that a few solid whacks across an unprotected backside with a bull whip would probably serve as an excellent deterrent for persons guilty of creating disturbances.

Johnson made the remark while sentencing five women who interrupted a fashion show in Hotel Vancouver and created a disturbance at the Vancouver public library last March 10.

Jane McDermott and Sydney Frymiere, both 22, were each fined $75 for causing a disturbance in the public rooms at Hotel Vaneouver by shouting, screaming and swearing. They were given one month to pay the fine.

The two women and three companions, Hannriette Avery, 30, Donna Liberson, 25, and Lynn Ruscheinski, 19, were given suspended sentences and placed on probation to keep the peace for two years on charges of creating a disturbance in the library by shouting, screaming and swearing.

They had been convicted on the charges last Friday.

"If you ever come before this court again, I intend to deal severely with you," Judge Johnson told the five women.

"I believe three good cracks across an unprotected backside with a bull whip would probably be an excellent deterrent."

Earlier, witnesses testified that McDermott was carrying a bull whip at the time of the disturbances.

Fund Lack Drags at 4-H

Financing has been a serious problem for the Canadian Council on 4-H clubs for several years, and this year is no different, as the 1970 annual report showed a $15,104.48 deficit.

However, a solution is in the works and could get underway, this year the 40th annual conference of the council was told Wednesday in Victoria.

The solution is in the form of a 4H Foundation which has been under study for about five years and is nearly ready to launch a campaign.

Les Usher, foundation chairman, said the concern with finances came up almost annually because there were always more things that should be done than funds available.

The foundation's basic purpose is to secure additional funds where they are available to support 4-H, Usher said.

It would not be a programming body — that is the council's function — nor would it seek membership. It was an 11-man board of trustees.

A feasibility study sponsored by the program showed in the fall of 1970 that additional money would be available, but the potential donors wanted to know exactly what projects they would be supporting Usher said.

At this point, the foundation's priority joins that of the 4-H council — program intentions for youth are uppermost and will be discussed at a board meeting today.

Governments have indicated that 4-H has priority in all areas as an "attractive, meaningful and effective" program for rural youth, vice-president Walter Grant told the meeting.

Directors congratulated the executive for producing a bilingual annual report, the first time it has been done.

Another director remarked that with two girls for every boy in individual clubs, 4-H "needs more ladies" on the different committees.

Returning to finances, the meeting was told that revenue for 1970 totalled $117,582.61, and expenditures climbed to $132,687.09.

The largest item was administration costs, with salaries taking $32,000. The national 4-H conference was second in cost under program expenses at $36,120, and travel programs followed with $33,821.

Government grants were the major source of income at $46,000. Business members donated $32,200, and an interprovincial exchange grant put up $20,873.

The council agreed that the foundation aims would depend on the demands and response gained, but one thing was certain — 4-H must remain one program nationally.

Shop Offers Way To Independence

By JUDY JENKINS

Independence can be a cherished possession, and the lack of it can hurt.

When a handicapped person who has had to depend on someone else finds a measure of independence, he is often "so delighted," says Mrs. Dorothy Borden.

Mrs. Borden is the manager of Craft Village, a shop that aims to give the handicapped that much-needed independence.

Craft Village is a market for products made by six groups of handicapped persons, and a seventh will be joining the end of March. Each group has its specialty.

For example, the Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded features "draft-dodging cats" that sit by the door and swish their tails in front of the door to block breezes.

Arbutus Crafts turns out delicate ceramics and basket work.

Smocked dresses for little girls are a specialty for Begbie Guest Home residents.

Canadian Mental Health Association members produce knitted goods like slippers and sweaters.

Eric Martin Institute occupational therapy classes do hand-hooked wool rugs for hearthsides.

The village also sells centennial spoons for the G. R. Pearkes Clinic benefit.

Mount St. Mary Hospital will be submitting items later this month.

Craft Village operates on the mezzanine floor of Miss Frith Millinery and Fashions in space provided free by owner Winton Sinclair.

An open house and coffee party will start at 2 p.m. today to celebrate final organization of the shop. Mrs. G. R. Pearkes will officially open Craft Village at 2:30 p.m.

It will be a big day for the handicapped persons who have been contributors, Mrs. Borden says, because cheques will be distributed with profits to the end of April, the first actual payment for the work.

The shop is entirely operated by volunteers, including Mrs. Borden. Volunteer workers from the individual associations for the handicapped keep the shop open from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. six days a week and also in the evenings on Thulsday and Friday.

Some of the items can be ordered to size and color, such as the hand-smocked dresses, Mrs. Borden said.

Canadian Clubs Gather in June

About 100 visiting delegates from all over Canada will attend the three-day biennial Canadian Clubs' convention June 6 to June 8 at the Empress Hotel.

Premier Bennett will welcome the delegates and act as host at the dinner, said H. A. Powell, of the Mens' Canadian Club of Victoria.

Vancouver Sun publisher Stuart Keate will discuss the question, Can A British Columbian Find True Love in Canada? at the convention dinner June 7 at 7 p.m.

June 8, the delegates will be entertained at a reception at 4 p.m. at Government House.

In a club luncheon at noon May 26 in the Empress Hotel ballroom, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell will discuss the topic Urban Life in the Seventies.

Jobs Scarcer Than Weddings

Summer jobs for teenagers are scarcer than weddings at a rock festival.

As my daughter complained, "What am I going to do for money this summer?"

"What do you do with the allowance I give you every week for breathing?"

"I'm serious," she said. "Do you have anything around the house I could do and get paid for?"

I thought for a few moments, then said, "Sure. I could use a domestic live-in . . . someone to clean the house, vacuum, do the laundry, and help with the cooking, but you must understand one thing. We would have to keep it on a strictly professional basis. No goofing around hanging on the phone. No getting up at noon and doing the work at your convenience. No ironing on the 'demand' basis."

She thought for a moment. "Strictly professional?" she asked.

"Absolutely," I said.

"May I see my room?" she asked curtly after a pause.

I took her to her bedroom and flung open the door. "This is it. You share a bath across the hall."

She sniffed. "This place is a dump. There are nail marks all over the walls that will have to be painted, clothes all over the chairs, the carpet is worn and will have to be replaced and . . ."

"Wait a minute . . ."

She looked at her brothers. "I don't do any babysitting and I don't eat with children. I have meals in my room on a tray."

"Hold it," I interrupted.

"I don't do any mopping, scrubbing, feeding animals, running errands, washing cars, fixing appliances, or gardening. Ladders make me dizzy. I am allergic to floor wax. I request a phone of my own, car privileges and Wednesdays, Saturdays, and Sundays off."

I leaned against the door with my arms folded. "You finished, Mary Poppins?" I asked.

She nodded.

"You just got fired from your first job. Now, get busy and clean your room."

"How much do I get?" she countered.

"About five minutes!"

Honors March for Boots

MONTREAL (CP) — A "very surprised and very happy" Montreal footwear manufacturer is on his way to Italy to collect an international award for three boot designs. He is the first Canadian to be so honored.

Tony Iammatteo, owner of Christina Manufacturing Co., said in an interview before leaving he hoped the prize would prove to other Canadians, once and for all, that their work can compete on a world basis.

The award, known as an Oscar, will be presented May 30 in Torino by the Accademia Internazionale d'ella Calzatura, the International Academy of Footwear.

The academy is part of a much larger association which annually selects and honors the best in various categories of clothing and accessories made of leather.

Iammatteo, 32, formerly a designer for Capezio shoes, explained that his entries were judged on three points: creation; workmanship and fitting.

The boots, all of soft brown leather, scored in the three divisions.

He said he decided to enter only the boot category because, with the spotlight on hot pants this year, boots or sandals are the real attention-grabbers.

Asked about current complaints that imported shoes are hurting the Canadian footwear industry, Iammatteo said he has no reason to worry.

His firm, set up in 1962, turns out about 450 pairs of boots and shoes daily for delivery across Canada and to major points in the U.S.

"Those Canadian companies who are losing business," he said, "must be suffering from a lack of creativity, a lack of workmanship."

"Buyers will buy Canadian first if they can find here what they want because imports are a big headache. If they order 100 pairs of shoes and find they don't fit the Canadian foot, they're stuck with them.

"If they just order 25 pairs and they sell well, the buyers try to reorder. But it's three months before the imports arrive and by then the season's over."

Iammatteo

Baby Book Tells Tale

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. William Scott, R — Va., may have unwittingly lost a vote and helped spread a rumor by mailing a Virginia woman a pamphlet entitled Infant Care.

Shortly after sending the booklet, Scott received a letter that said:

"Dear Congressman Scott — I received your letter and also your book. It just ain't so about me having a baby. There was a woman down the road here what had a baby.

"They are trying to put it on my husband, John. He says it ain't so. But I don't know — now that the news is all the way to Washington!"

Cocktail Hour Packs Punch

By BARBARA McLINTOCK

The B.C. Women's Christian Temperance Union practised what they preach Tuesday night.

After the opening program of their 88th annual conference, they held a Centennial Fruesta at which they served a variety of non-alcoholic fruit punches.

As well they gave each person present a booklet containing 17 recipes for non-alcoholic punches to be served at parties instead of alcoholic beverages.

Fruesta, the booklet explained, is a combination of two words, fruit and fiesta.

"The Fruesta Hour is a delightful time when blended juices, carefully selected and served from attractively appointed centres, create an atmosphere of freshness and charm, leaving no cause for regret."

The Fruesta Hour was, in fact, the WCTU's version of the traditional conference cocktail hour.

A variety of punches including old-fashioned lemonade, spiced apple punch and raspberry vinegar was served by two members dressed in Victoria costume. Food was heavily-buttered rounds of cherry and raisin bread and plain sugar and shortbread cookies to fit in with the centennial theme.

Main decoration in the hall at the Salvation Army Citadel was a collection of salt-and-pepper shakers illustrating transportation in Canada from the Indian pony to the jet plane.

The approximately 100 WCTU members from across the province attending the conference stood around in small groups, cocktail party style, renewing old friendships and discussing the evening's program.

Main feature of the opening program of the three-day conference was a pageant entitled Following in the Footprints of the Pioneers which depicted the history of the WCTU in B.C. from its founding in 1883 to the present.

Organized and narrated by Mrs. J. W. Reeves, the pageant showed members of the organization in historic dress demonstrating for women's rights in the 1880s, organizing one of the first maternity hospitals in 1898, and cheering the passing of the prohibition act in 1917.

In the final scenes the present and future of the WCTU were discussed with Mrs. Reeves noting that as "the tide of evil rises in the world," the WCTU must work particularly hard at educating the youth because they are the future.

Other highlights of the evening program included a program of songs by the Rotary Boys' Choir and a scripture and prayer reading by two teenage girls, Miss Jo Ellen Turner and Miss Joanne Lund.

At left is Mrs. Phillipa Pottinger, physiotherapist. Tour was preview to open house which will mark National Cerebral Palsy Week, Tuesday to Friday next week. Clinic will be open daily from 10 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 3 p.m.

Property Costs May Skyrocket

By HUBERT BEYER

Real estate prices are levelling off across Canada, but continuing inflation may send them skyrocketing at any time, the president of the Appraisal Institute of Canada said here this week.

"The real estate market simply matches the pace of labor material and financing," Jim Crawford said in an interview.

"It's impossible to pay higher wages to carpenters, plumbers and electricians without passing the cost on to the finished product," he said.

Crawford is in Victoria for the institute's national convention opening today. More than 400 delegates from across Canada are expected to turn out.

In spite of inflationary tendencies to which the real estate market is subjected, Crawford said, land and improvements (an assessor's term for property with a building on it were still the best investment for the middle-income Canadian.

"I like it; it never loses value," he said.

Increased demand for real estate, more complex expropriation laws and a greater involvement of governments in the nation's housing scene, Crawford said, had necessitated the training of more first-class appraisers.

"It's a profession that came almost out of nowhere and is growing at a fantastic rate. A few years ago, we had to expand our educational program from a two-year basic course to a three-year course," he said.

"The field in which the appraiser works is getting more complicated by the day."

Crawford, who owns a real estate company in Ottawa, said that about 50 per cent of the institute's 4,000 accredited members are government employees — municipal, provincial and federal.

Another 30 per cent, he said, are employed by lending institutions such as banks or mortgage companies; the remainder are self-employed.

The institute's most vital concern, Crawford said, was honest appraisal.

"Whether an appraiser is employed by a government, a mortgage company or a private individual, his report should always be the same — honest and unbiased," he said.

"Any infractions, any instances of widely-differing appraisals of the same piece of real estate, are brought before the institute's ethics committee, and are dealt with most severely," he said.

"We are a self-policing organization," he added.

During the three-day conference, delegates will be briefed by various speakers on topics ranging from timberland appraisal to low income housing.

Branches Slash Lines, Power Off One Hour

Power was out for just over an hour Wednesday morning in part of the Langford area due to westerly winds up to 40 miles per hour which felled tree branches on a line on Rowls Crescent, a spokesman for B.C. Hydro said Wednesday afternoon.

The spokesman said power first went off at 6:05 a.m. and was restored at 7:10.

An official at the Victoria International Airport weather office said winds reached up to 42 miles per hour by 10 a.m. Wednesday but were slowly decreasing.

Seven Pay $2,250 Total

Impaired Drivers Fined

Fines totalling $2,250 were levied Wednesday in Victoria Provincial Court against seven persons who entered pleas of guilty to separate charges involving drinking and driving.

Four of the charges were impaired driving, with three heard in traffic court, where Judge E. F. N. Robinson set a $400 fine and partial four-month driving ban for Manford John Morley, 39, of 1148 Oscar, stopped May 12 in Saanich.

Robinson ordered fines of $300 each for David Edward Tonkin, 28, of 811 Jasmine, stopped April 15 in the Colwood area and given a similar ban, and James Richard Fitzsimmons, 35, of 611 Admirals, stopped April 28 in Colwood and given a three-month ban.

In the court section of Judge William Ostler, a $350 fine was levied against Raymond Charles Hunt, 36, of 436 Springfield, stopped early Wednesday in Esquimalt for impaired.

Three other persons pleaded guilty before Robinson to separate charges of driving in the Colwood area with a blood alcohol reading of more than .08 per cent.

Penalties were a $350 fine and three-month driving ban for Howard William Kolson, 25, of 1182 Colville, stopped April 30; a $300 fine and similar ban for Frederick Robert Woodruff, 38, of 415 Perry, stopped April 17, and a $250 fine and partial four-month ban for Donald Edgar Potter, 39, of 287 Orlebar, stopped Tuesday.

L.O.V.E. ON SALE Titles Tilt at Victorians

By ROY WRIGHT

Some Victorians have taken to wearing unusual-looking monocles these days.

Eyesight is not on the decline in the Victoria area, nor are spectacle fashions causing the change.

In fact, the monocles are actually plastic rims without lenses. Each monocle has a nylon string that runs from it to a pale, blue lapel button with the words painted on it in a loud, dark blue.

The words: Knight of L.O.V.E., which stands for Loyal Order of Victorian Enthusiasts, which in turn means that the wearer is a supporter of the six-day Victorian Day celebrations which start next Monday.

A First

Organized by the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce, the celebration is a first for Victoria.

The chairman of Victorian Days, a modest man who never mentions his contributions unless asked to, took on the enormous task of organizing the giant festival in October.

The man: Peter Tredgett.

Tredgett said, "I was sweet-talked into the job by a woman; to be exact, the new chamber president, Helen Beirnes. At the time, though, she was only a director."

From Scratch

Tredgett said he never regretted the decision but he will be glad when it's all over and he can take a breather. The job will be wrapped up May 29, he said, but he then has to go to Southern California the next day on business.

"When I get back, I intend to stay uninvolved for a while to catch my breath."

When Tredgett accepted, everything had to be started from scratch. He first set up 10 basic committees.

Then, he said, public-minded people started to appear and they began to work on the different committees.

Before long, the 10 committees had spawned another 15 sub-committees and Tredgett began a long winter of meeting-hopping.

Early Start

Tredgett said that beginning in October, meetings were held two and three times a week at 7:30 a.m. "Surprising what people look like at that time of a morning." He said the meetings are still going on at this hour of the morning and will continue until Victorian Days are over.

Tredgett said he lived the furthest away from town and at times, he was envious of the members who lived closer.

"Some mornings, when I was getting up at 6 a.m. I cursed and cursed the time."

He said the early-morning meetings were not the only ones. Far from it. "We hold two and three meetings a day, and have ever since we started," Tredgett said.

"I don't know how many meetings I went to. I lost count at 300."

He said the committees planned more than 100 events for the celebrations.

Small Details

Organization, even to the smallest detail, has been done as carefully as possible because Tredgett believes small details are just as important as the major ideas.

He said the first job done by the committee was to come up with an emblem. A black top hat was chosen and will be worn by all members of the chamber during Victorian Day celebrations.

Tredgett estimated the cost of the event to be between $25,000 and $30,000. He said the organization hoped to raise most of the money through public subscription.

He said a $5,000 grant from the Victoria Centennial Committee helped a lot.

For firm believers in Victorian Days, he said a person could buy titles for various prices that range from $5 to $100.

Scrolls Issued

The man in charge of the titles, Terry Farmer, said more than $9,000 had already been raised by this method.

He said the larger businesses preferred the $100 scroll as it gave them the title of Founding High Court Captain, while smaller businesses favored the $25 scroll which entitled them to be called Founding Squires of the Manor.

He said private citizens could receive a title of Founding Master of the Manor for $10, but said if the person preferred the more expensive titles, they could buy them.

Farmer said there were special $5 titles for children and this seemed to be a favorite with grandparents. The children would then have a title of Page of the Court.

He said all scrolls had the titles and the person's name hand-lettered in old English which made "an impressive sight."

These scrolls will be sold this season only and could develop into collector's items, he said.

Tredgett said the group was doing much of its publicity with tongue-in-cheek and members have made fun of themselves and Victoria in the process.

He said the higher titles, such as Knights, Lords and Ladies are all jokes, just as the monocle and the top hat are jibes at the traditions of the Victorian era in the city.

Same Joke

Victorian Days posters do the same joking as the individual items, he said. The poster has a hanging flower pot in one corner, while in the other corner there is a complete tea service, and right in the middle is a gentleman, dressed in a top hat, an English tweed suit and with a handlebar mustache.

Tredgett said the chamber started the program in an attempt to promote a sense of community and to get people working together for the community.

Backers Concede Defeat

SST Finished

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Senate late Wednesday voted for the third and probably last time this year to kill government-backed development of a commercial supersonic transport plane.

On a roll call vote of 58 to 37, the senate approved a motion by Sen. William Proxmire, (D—Wis.), to delete $85.3 million item for SST development from a supplemental appropriation bill.

The senate then proceeded to vote on a proposal by Sen. Warren Magnuson, (D—Wash.), to return the $85.3 million to the bill, add another $70.5 million, and restrict the spending of the total $155.8 million to termination costs for ending the SST program.

It appeared the senate action this time would definitely end federal subsidies for the 1,800-mile-an-hour plane.

The house, in a surprise manoeuvre last week, converted the $85.3 million sum from a fund to terminate the SST to an appropriation for further development.

White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler indicated the administration held little hope that the program could be continued, and implied that the effort to revive the program had been a long shot from the start.

Speaker Carl Albert, an SST supporter, acknowledged that if the senate kills the SST for a second time, it would be "very difficult" for the house to try to revive it again.

Congress killed the program last March, but in a surprise move last week, the house voted to revive it and the senate appropriations committee approved the house bill. But there never was much hope that SST backers could muster a majority in the full senate.

'Broke' Not Wanted

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A city councillor suggested Wednesday that all hitchhikers carrying less than $100 should be barred from Newfoundland this summer.

Brian Higgins told a council meeting "chains should be put across all main roads" leading from entry points to insular Newfoundland.

"We don't want a bunch of bums coming here," he said.

Higgins's remarks came as the council was discussing the lack of accommodation for large numbers of transient youth expected to visit Newfoundland this summer.

Sharp Doubts Jurisdiction Likely 100 Miles Into Pacific, Atlantic

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday he does not think Canada would have any success in extending its jurisdiction 100 miles off the east and west coasts as it has in the Arctic.

He told the Commons external affairs committee the move to extend anti-pollution controls would probably be opposed by other countries.

France had already challenged the government's proposal to close certain East Coast fishing areas to foreign vessels.

Canada now claims jurisdiction over 12 miles off the east and west coasts, and control over pollution 100 miles offshore in the Arctic.

The minister also said that new mechanisms must be devised to deal with the pollution threat in the Strait of Juan de Fuca of British Columbia.

He agreed with David Groos (L—Victoria), who suggested the International Joint Commission might be empowered to regulate shipping in the strait.

oldest man in the world, Shirali Mislimov, celebrated his 166th birthday Wednesday by sipping lemonade and undergoing a medical check, the news agency Tass said.

The doctors found him in perfect health.

Bribery of Alderman Probed

EDMONTON (CP) —At the request of the attorney-general's department, city police and a private detective agency Wednesday started an investigation into an alderman's allegation he was offered a $10,000 bribe.

Ald. Julian Kinisky said the bribe began with an offer for a trip to Jamaica, was then increased to $5,000 and again raised to $10,000.

Deputy attorney-general Sam Friedman said he was sure the police would conduct a full investigation because of the allegation of a criminal offence being committed involving a civic official."

He said names will be released publicly only if sufficient evidence was gathered to warrant prosecution.

A private detective said he had been retained Tuesday to look into the matter but declined to say who hired him.

Dad Knew Best

My Dad, who was a dramatic critic by profession, had a rather unusual hobby for a writer — his all-consuming passion was the growing of prize potatoes! He really was a wizard at it too, and to him, a perfectly formed and clean-skinned spud was more beautiful and soul-satisfying than any rose or gladiolus.

His favorite was an old variety called Russet Burbank, and he used to save his own seed potatoes year after year — something the experts will tell you is bad gardening practice, leading to the steady deterioration of the stock.

We had a pretty big vegetable plot, so Dad was able to change the position of his potato patch every year, moving it around so potatoes were never grown on the same piece of ground oftener than once every seven years.

Even with this precaution, though, his constant use of the same seed should have riddled his crop with blight, scab, virus and every other trouble that afflicts the potato, according to the book. And yet he did better and better every year, copping prizes and ribbons and silver cups at every show where he exhibited his best tubers.

Looking back on his methods with what I know today, I am reasonably sure that Dad's success was due largely to the way in which he selected his seed. Every year, when he dug his beloved Russet Burbanks, he would lift each plant separately, appraising its crop, and marking the plants which produced the best specimens.

Working his way down the row, he would point out to me a plant which gave perhaps just one good-sized tuber plus half a dozen or more smalls, explaining that if he postponed the selection of his seed for next year until the potatoes were in their storage bin, he might easily have picked seed from this plant — a plant with a built-in habit of producing smalls. By choosing his seed on the basis of the individual plant's performance rather than picking the biggest or best-looking tubers, his stock improved constantly.

This is what is known as "strain." His was an improved or re-selected "strain" of Russet Burbank, and you keep running into this strain business all the time in gardening. In onions, for instance, strain seems to be of more importance than variety. Ailsa Craig is a good onion variety, but there are good strains and poor strains of Ailsa Craig, just as there are good and poor strains of Irish setters, Blue Persian cats and Hereford cattle.

For instance, when I first started growing gladiolus, I would save all the "spawn" or bulblets, lump them all together in storage, and pick out the biggest ones to plant in the spring. Results were poor — deteriorating health, muddy colors and poorly placed florets. Then, remembering my dads' potatoes, I started selecting bulblets, large or small, only from the plants which gave the best spikes of flowers and showed the most vigor. Results were most gratifying.

It is possible, by selection and re-selection in this way, to improve the coloring, increase the height or number of buds or size of floret or earliness of bloom, or any other particular quality you go after. Plant life is changing constantly; it is the gardener's task to change it for the better.

Here, then, is a lesson for every gardener: Take your stock, your seeds, your corms, bulbs, cuttings and offsets ONLY from your best and healthiest plants. Far better a poor slip from a good strain than a husky cutting from a plant with bad habits.

Reagan Case Pitiful

WASHINGTON — No matter how I try, I can't stop worrying about Governor Ronald Reagan's personal financial situation. As everyone knows by now, Governor Reagan had such bad financial reverses last year that he didn't have to pay state income taxes.

Instead of Californians sympathizing with him over these financial reverses, they became upset and felt there was something wrong because they had to pay taxes and Reagan didn't.

Very few people in the state said, "If the governor makes $44,000 a year as salary and has assets of around $1 million and still can't pay his state income taxes, then he must be hurting very badly, and needs pity rather than censure."

My first thought was that the governor should seek legal aid from the local office of Economic Opportunity. Although Reagan is trying to abolish legal aid for the poor in California, I'm sure the poverty lawyers would take his case anyway, just to prove that they will take anybody in dire financial straits, regardless of race, creed, or elective office.

★ ★ ★

To make sure, I telephoned a California Rural Legal Assistance Lawyer in California and asked him if he would take Reagan as a client.

"Yes," he said, "he would qualify for free legal aid. Our charter specifically says that any governor of a state whose finances are in such poor shape that he doesn't have to pay personal state income taxes is in no position to pay a lawyer, and is therefore eligible for free legal advice. It would be our pleasure to help Governor Reagan in any way we could."

★ ★ ★

"How would you go about it?"

"From a legal standpoint it would probably be the most interesting case we've ever handled. Most of our cases have had to do with people who didn't pay any state income taxes because they didn't make any money. This would be the first time we represented someone who made money but didn't pay income taxes.

★ ★ ★

"Surely there is something wrong with the system if the governor of the largest state in the union has been hurt so badly financially that he can't pay any taxes."

"But what legal defence would you have for him?" I asked.

"First we would have to find out what financial reverses Mr. Reagan had, whether they came from cattle, oil, real estate, or the stock market. Then we would prove that it wasn't his fault that his investments went sour. It was probably due to the general economy."

★ ★ ★

"But the Republicans are in charge of the economy right now. Wouldn't it look bad if Reagan blamed his own party for the fact he had such a bad income situation?"

"I guess you're right. We'll have to think of something else. Perhaps we could persuade the courts to allow the governor to make one motion picture a year.

"Or a new Death Valley Days series," I suggested.

"I was thinking of a remake of the Grapes of Wrath," the lawyer said. "They could shoot most of it around Sacramento, so the governor wouldn't have to be on location too long. But the important thing is to get him healthy financially so he doesn't have to eat from the public trough.

★ ★ ★

"This thing has far more ramifications than anyone wants to admit," he said. "We're trying to pull the poor up by their bootstraps so they become honest, hardworking citizens. But if they see somebody like Governor Reagan, who has worked all his life and still has nothing left over for income taxes, they're going to say to themselves 'the hell with it. Let's stay on welfare.'"

Waterloo Cruel?

The folks at the American Humane Association would like to believe that Rod Steiger's Waterloo isn't scoring very impressively at the box-office because of the "unacceptable" stamp the AHA has placed upon it. The classification system is something relatively new with that group concerned with the treatment of animals during filmmaking, and they feel that the unacceptable label will deter thousands of animal-lovers from seeing a film.

What got the organization down on Waterloo, says Harold Melnker, director of the AHA Hollywood office, is the fact that wires were apparently intentionally used to trip horses during filming in Russia. In Hollywood, representatives of the animal protection group are usually stationed on film locations to insure there's no misuse of animals. There is no way they can control movies made overseas, but they're hoping the classification system instituted last fall will have some effect. Other films on their unacceptable list: Valdez is Coming, filmed in Spain, and Patton, also filmed in that country, where two donkeys were killed for benefit of production.

If you're a Red Skelton fan, you'd better catch the June 6 to September 9 session of his reruns on NBC. It will probably mark the last time the comic will be seen regularly on the tube. Now that he's had time to brood about his latest series axing, no one's more depressed about it than Red himself. In the midst of a personal appearance tour at the moment, he's been reluctant to talk to anyone about the low blow the TV industry has struck him, but his friends tell me he's unhappy and hurt by the rejection. And he's been acting as if any vacant seat at the auditoriums where he's now playing is a personal rejection of his talent. It becomes increasingly difficult for Red to keep the mask of the smiling clown in place these days.

You've read negative notes about Marlon Brando and Godfather production. But James Caan and Al Martino, co-stars in that film, have only raves about the star. Martino is so in awe of Marlon's talent that he spends his days off on the set, watching Brando emote, "Because there's so much I can learn from him. He's totally professional"

They Can't Escape

DR. STUART ROSENBERG

More and more people are working less and less, freed for other good things, released from thralldom to a higher human possibility.

Unhappily, we have neither been schooled or prepared for the new leisure; thus, instead of liberation, many lives are destroyed by it.

Faced with great emptiness and incapable of knowing what to do to fill it, large numbers of people resort to "great escapes" — varied excitements that attempt to cover over an inner hollowness.

★ ★ ★

First, there are the "go-getters." They produce and produce, consume and consume, amass, collect, and pile it on.

They win some place, gain some power, but like planes that lack landing gear, they can only keep on flying and flying, getting nowhere.

They progress, and their newly-covered distance sustains their need to move on, all the time. But they progress to nowhere and to nothingness.

There are others, more sensitive, more imaginative, whose pursuit of success derails them nevertheless, and prevents their reaching a better destination.

They may try to justify their lives by linking their pursuit to the search for worthwhile goals. Yet, too often, there is something very wrong with their so-called "search," itself. Their need of "success" turns out to be greater than their need of the thing that is being sought.

It is not, for example, art that they wish to know or to appreciate; it is the renown or "market value" of the artist. Instead of seeking to be art-appreciators, they really want to be known as "art-collectors."

★ ★ ★

Thus, their search is debased: there is no soft and quiet lingering with lovely things; no joyous perception of the wonders of beauty, no savoring of naive, natural joy.

There is only a pursuit that never ends — their lives move relentlessly from escape to excitation, from release to tension, and from tension to "new" excitements.

Still others have made diversion their true goal, by building it into their life-plan.

Diversion, for them, is not merely a will-o'-the-wisp, a brief and healthy excursion from the task and the challenge of the day's reality. It has become a way of life, or, rather, a "non-way of life."

★ ★ ★

Soon enough, their diversions no longer divert: their taste-buds can no longer savor, nor can their eyes see or ears hear. They are dead to the world — the world from which they have escaped.

One teacher summed up the tragedy of our great escapes: "From all the widened horizons of our great world a thousand voices call us to come near, to understand, and to enjoy, but our ears are not trained to hear them. The leisure is ours but not the skill to use it."

PROVINCIAL COURT

Bail was set at $1,500 Wednesday in Victoria Provincial Court for a 23-year-old Saanich woman facing four charges that contain a total of 32 counts.

The woman, Anne Marie Moss of 4003 Bow, elected trial before Judge William Ostler, who granted a request be defence lawyer Gordon Vosburgh to remand the case to May 27 for plea.

The 32 counts included 21 of false pretences involving more than $50, eight of false pretences under $50 and three of fraud. Most of the counts were dated earlier this month and mentioned worthless cheques and quality shops in Victoria or Oak Bay.

Court was not given any report on the value of merchandise involved.

□

A charge of robbery with violence was read against Norman Edward Ramsay, 22, of Port Alberni, but before he could take the first step of electing trial method, prosecutor John Macintyre called a doctor who testified mental illness was possible in Ramsay's case.

Ramsay was remanded until June 2 to the custody of the warden of Wilkinson Road provincial jail, Saanich, so a psychiatric examination can be held.

The charge alleged that Ramsay used violence Wednesday morning in downtown Victoria in taking a newsmans' cash apron, containing $11.30, from Leonard Alan Pusey.

A suspended sentence and one-year probationary term were set for Wendy Jarvis, 19, address not known, who pleaded guilty April 30 to a two-count Esquimalt charge of uttering and a Victoria charge of false pretences involving less than $50.

The charges dealt with an $85.90 pension cheque and a $16 family allowance cheque cashed in Esquimalt in late March and early April, along with a worthless cheque for $19.97 worth of groceries obtained April 20 in Victoria.

Miss Jarvis took the stand Wednesday to deny use of the Esquimalt money for drugs. She admitted telling police earlier of such use but said she did so to avoid involving another person. Ostler instructed her to make restitution within three months.

□

Daniel Michael Wright, 17, of 1325 Vining, received a suspended sentence and two-year probationary term after pleading guilty April 30 to a three-count Victoria charge of theft involving more than $50 and a Saanich charge of theft under $50.

The Victoria charge followed separate thefts last December and February of three bicycles worth a total of about $241 while the Saanich charge concerned the theft Feb. 20 of a $3.50 floodlight from the University of Victoria.

□

Thelma Milne, 42, of 2682 Dowler, was given a suspended sentence and eight-month probationary term after pleading guilty May 7 to a fraud charge, and was ordered to repay the Victoria city social welfare department $534.95 within eight months. Court was told she received that amount in benefits to which she was not entitled between Aug. 30, 1970, and last March 31 after making a false declaration.

□

Mary Louise Elizabeth Iverson, 23, of 841 Viewfield, received a nominal one-day jail term and was fined $200, following her plea of guilty April 30,, to an Esquimalt charge of forging an endorsement on a $136.23 cheque which belonged to another person.

Copter Missing

KATMANDU (AP) — A helicopter carrying two French journalists to the French expedition climbing Mount Makalu in eastern Nepal has been missing since Monday, aviation officials reported Tuesday.

Probation Buttresses Pledge

Prisoner Writes His Ticket

A 38-year-old inmate of the Wilkinson Road provincial jail in Saanich wrote his own ticket Wednesday in Victoria Provincial Court — with the concurrence of Judge William Ostler.

Stanley Ray McCausland, whose criminal record dates back to 1950, repeated what he told Ostler April 7 — that he would "never appear in a criminal court again" once his present charges were cleared up.

To buttress that, he asked Wednesday for a probationary period of two or three years after his realease, so that "if I get into a bind, I'll have someone to go and talk to . . . I'll have a reason to stay out."

"A good idea," said the judge. "You know your own self best and I think you're thinking this thing out pretty clearly."

He sentenced McCausland to a total of eight months on three new charges, made the time concurrent to the sentence McCausland was serving already and added a probationary term of 2½ years following his release.

Last Jan. 25, McCausland was jailed for a total of one year on 15 counts of false pretences. He said at that time that more charges were coming, and two counts of theft arrived April 7, when McCausland was given a term of one year starting that day.

He said then still other charges had not arrived, and they did Wednesday — a two-count charge of theft involving more than $50 from Metro Toronto, a charge of uttering from Sudbury and two counts of false pretences from Calgary.

An RCMP officer told court the Toronto charge involved a $2,990 sterling silver tea set and a $262 stereo set and components which were stolen from two homes during the summer months last year, when McCausland was a packer-helper for a moving company.

McCausland pleaded guilty to that charge and the two others, the latter resulting from one worthless cheque for $293.98 in Sudbury in April of 1970 and two bad cheques for a total of $71.23 in Calgary during May of 1968.

McCausland, who said he is first cook at "Wilkie," explained the woman who owned the tea set kept saying how valuable it was. So he had it appraised in Regina by "a reputable person who dealt in antiques."

The appraiser set the value at $100, although its actual worth was $2,990, and McCausland sold it for $20 "to a motorist on the highway."

He said he had twice "worked until I just about got caught" and then moved on. He agreed with the judge's description of him as "an interprovincial crime wave" and a man who "trusted your ability to get on the run."

But the judge granted the plea for probation after McCausland's release, which is expected about Dec. 11.

Supermarkets Face Strike

WINNIPEG (CP) — Employees of four major food chains in Greater Winnipeg have voted in favor of strike action to back their contract demands.

The Retail Workers Union is involved in joint negotiations with Canada Safeway Ltd., Dominion Stores Ltd., Loblaw Groceterias Ltd. and Shop-Easy division of Westfair Foods Ltd.

Log Salvage Interrupted

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Forest Service has announced a 10-day log salvage closure starting Monday between the mouth of the Veddar River east to the east end of Seabird Bluff on the Fraser River near Mission. The closure will enable companies to retrieve log bundles from sandbars.

Emcee's Job Frustrating

'...Introduce the Star And It's All Over'

By BARBARA McLINTOCK

Bill David is wearing a yellow cardigan and sitting on a table in the Jaycee office at the exhibition swinging his legs.

It's hard to tell him apart from any of the dozens of fair workers constantly rushing in and out of the office.

Until he begins to talk and tell stories, that is. Then suddenly everybody in the little office stops work and begins to listen, and it's obvious Bill David is a showman.

Not a big star. Not even a name that most people have heard of. But a showman just the same.

"I guess I'm just a wandering boy," Bill said in an interview Monday. This is the first time he has wandered to Victoria professionally for several years, but it is also the place he now calls "home base."

Home Here

His job here is to emcee the stage shows at the exhibition with the name stars — Tiny Tim, Rich Little and harmonica group.

His biggest job at present is travelling throughout North America, emceeing various variety shows at nightclubs, at exhibitions, at one night stands in different cities.

But Bill now intends to spend as much time as he can with his wife and son in the home he has bought in Saanich.

And, he said, he is far from the only show business personality who feels this way about Vancouver Island. "Victoria's the in place to be with a lot of the show people," he said.

City Liked

Several Americans, he added, want to move to the Island so much they have asked him to sponsor them when they apply for landed immigrant status in Canada.

Some of them intend to come to Canada within the next few months, he said; others tell him they will come "not now but when we can . . . as soon as we can make it."

Almost all of them, he said, have one thing in common — they came to Victoria once on a business trip, liked what they saw and have dreamed since about coming back to the Island to live.

In this respect Bill is different. Although he has lived most of his adult life in the U.S., he is a Canadian citizen and was born and raised in Vancouver. It was during his childhood he first visited the Island.

Faults Told

One of the things most of the Americans like about Victoria, he said, is the lack of smog and air pollution. Another is the smallness of the city.

Sometimes, Bill said, the numbers of Americans asking him about the Victoria area frighten him because if they all settle here, they will make the city lose the same "small-town atmosphere" that now attracts them.

Then, he said, as well as telling them about Victoria's glories, he warns them the city lies on an earthquake fault and mentions the fierece gales that occasionally hit the Island in winter.

But he himself had no doubts about moving to Victoria. The decision was made, he said, last fall after he and his family had moved back to California from Chicago and all of them "for their own reasons," hated it.

Wife Chose

The choice then lay between moving to Victoria or to Hawaii, another popular spot with show-business personalities. It was his wife, Bill said, who made the choice for Victoria, a city she had never seen.

She felt, he said, that Hawaii was "too isolated," and that living on Oahu was "just trading one set of smog for another." She also felt she would prefer the smallness of Victoria to the hugeness of Honolulu.

"I'm still surprised when I hear Victorians getting very excited about making a trip to Hawaii," he said. "I guess they don't realize that they've got it better right here on the Island than it is in Hawaii."

Despite his wish to stay in Victoria, Bill said he still expects to be doing a lot of travelling, like all showmen, going where the work is.

Right now nearly all the work is emceeing, he said, which he finds "very frustrating" because he has a variety act of his own which he never gets a chance to do.

"I do a little of everything," he said, "singing, jokes, impersonating. But when I emcee I just tell a couple of jokes and introduce the star and it's over."

"Still," he added, "these days you take what work you can get.

Much Travel

Despite high unemployment rates among movie workers, Bill said, there are still enough jobs for variety workers like himself to make a living. "But," he said, "it isn't like the old days."

Now, he said, it is necessary to travel much more, often from one end of the country to another between jobs, but all travelling is done by plane. "Still," he said, "I don't really like flying. After you've done it a while, it's dull. Give me a train every time."

"And," he added with a grin, "make sure it comes back to British Columbia."

Welfare Patients in Rest Homes

Public Offers Aid

The public is responding to a story in Wednesday's Colonist by offering financial aid to prevent eviction of welfare cases from rest homes, the president of the B.C. Rest Home Association said Wednesday.

"Operators of these homes and the association itself have been swamped with calls today," Cliff Wanless told the Colonist.

Wanless operates a Victoria rest home.

He confirmed that the association and operators had to politely reject the offers of financial help.

The rest home operators in Greater Victoria have said they will discharge welfare cases to general hospitals if the province isn't prepared to increase the $5-a-day payment per case. A meeting of association members in Vancouver last night was expected to make a similar decision. An announcement to this effect is expected today.

The Colonist story dealt with the welfare cases — people who have become helpless pawns in the dispute. It touched on their thoughts and their fears.

People calling with offers of help were thanked but told why the help couldn't be accepted, Wanless said. Any money paid to a rest home toward the keep of a welfare case would be deducted by the welfare department from the amount it pays the home, he said.

'We've Been Swamped With Calls'

The association has said it will evict the welfare cases without giving any warning to the government.

Wanless said he doubts very much the government, through use of the Emergency Measures Organization, or the general hospitals, will be able to take steps to cope with the situation, as has been suggested.

"There just aren't any beds to spare," he said.

Wanless also said he doubted the public was aware that a public hospital is paid $53 per day for each welfare patient and that mental institutions get $67 a day. Rest homes equipped to deal with people from the mental institutions are paid $5.50 a day, he said — or 50 cents more than the rate for normal welfare cases.

Both Wanless and the association's vice-president, John Hanrahan, complain that the government pays much more money per capita for the care of penitentiary prisoners than for welfare residents for rest homes.

"They (government) go out and pay multi-million dollars for new prisons and then pays $19 per day per guest of these institutions — or at least, the taxpayer pays this," Wanless said.

"Yet, they are not willing to do nearly as much for those people who are spending their twilight years in rest homes."

Faith in RCMP Lost—Socred

VANCOUVER (CP) — The people in the Fraser Valley community of Haney have lost faith in the local RCMP detachment following a Boxing Day car crash which killed five members of one family, George Mussallem, Social Credit member of the B.C. legislature, said Tuesday.

"They feel something has been hushed up because an off-duty RCMP constable was involved in the accident," Mussallem, a Haney automobile dealer, said in an interview.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson Monday instructed chief B.C. coroner Glen McDonald to examine all evidence produced at a mid-January inquest into the two-car smash at Haney.

The attorney-general also asked David Hines, senior government counsel for the Chilliwack area, to interview all witnesses to the accident, whether or not they were called as inquest witnesses.

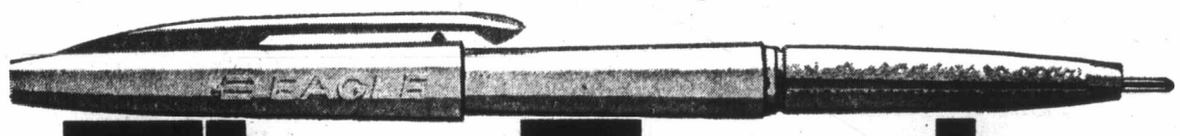
All 19¢ pens are no longer created equal.

Introducing



The Eagle

From Eagle/North-Rite. And with our reputation for quality products, there's no way we'd bring out an ordinary pen. Not even for 19¢.

If you've written with 19¢ pens before, good. Now try the Eagle. It's so smooth, it virtually glides on paper.

More good news: it writes up to 50% longer than its best-known 19¢ competitor. By test. And down to the last bit of ink, it won't skip or blob. We put our most expensive ink in the Eagle. It's non-goop and ultra-smooth flowing. Because we didn't skimp, the Eagle performs like an expensive pen — instantly. What's more, we hand-test every Eagle pen to make sure its performance is perfect.

Most 19¢ pens look simply like sticks that write. We wouldn't settle for that kind of styling.

The Eagle has a solid-fitting cap with a secure lock-grip. There's a textured comfort-grip to help you write your best, plus a dependable clip that holds the Eagle securely in your pocket.

Colors? Rich, clear shades of blue, red, green and black.

Buy an Eagle and you'll use it proudly everywhere. Eagle/North-Rite thinks you're entitled to a superior pen. Even for 19¢.

There are 4 new Eagle pens. Try your hand at them all.

The basic Eagle. Medium brass point. Writes 50% longer than its best-known 19¢ competitor. 19¢

The fine-point companion to the 19¢ Eagle. 25¢

Eagle DELUXE Medium. Has a strong stainless steel point and a smart metal clip. Writes twice as long as our 19¢ Eagle. (For an extra 10¢ that's a lot of extra writing.) 29¢

Eagle DELUXE Fine. The fine-point companion to the 29¢ Eagle DELUXE. 35¢

8 CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to extend to Dr. R. H. Irish and Mrs. M. Reynolds, Administrator Sandringham Private Hospital and her excellent staff my sincere gratitude for loving care they extended to my father the late Frank E. Taylor during the many years he was a patient in the hospital.—Mrs. E. M. Lacey.

9 IN MEMORIAM

MOXHAM — In loving memory of Elmer, a dear son and brother, who passed away May 20, 1970.
To hear his voice, to see his smile,
To sit and talk to him awhile,
To be together in the same old way
Would be our dearest wish today.
Dear Lord forgive a silent tear,
A constant wish that he were here.
Others are taken, yes, we know,
But he was ours and we loved him so.
—Ever remembered and sadly missed by Mother, Yvonne Maundrell and sister Melrose Morgan and family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

SHOEMAKER — In loving memory of our dear Brother, Uncle and Dad who left us May 20th, 1970.
We watched you suffer and heard your sighs,
But all we could do was just stand by,
For when the time came we suffered too,
You never deserved what you went through.
God took your hands and we had to part
He eased your pains but broke our hearts.
Although we smile and seem carefree,
Nobody misses you more than we.
—Sadly missed by Bill, Bae, Bud and Glen.

ALL SORTS: After an NBC news special last year that blasted Coca Cola migrant-worker camps in Florida, Coke stopped buying time on NBC. But a New York report says the soft-drink ads will be back on NBC in the fall to the tune of about $1 million over three months.

The same report says business has suddenly started to boom for the three U.S. networks, which have been short of money since cigarette commercials ended Jan. 1. Other firms are coming in and sales are high for the second half of the year, although the new buyers aren't named.

Rock Hudson has signed with NBC to play a San Francisco police commissioner in a six-episode series next season . . . Like Lawrence Welk and Hee Haw, the Monty Hall greed series 'Lets Make a Deal' is becoming a syndicated series. Too bad.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Wednesday's answer — More people with linked names, like Alexander King, author raconteur; Roy Castle, dancer; Billy Bishop, flyer; Evelyn Knight, violinist, and Butterfly McQueen actress. And Stan Mikita, when he was born, was a Czech. Ouch!

Today's question stumbles along the same stupid way. Kindly supply the occupations of Alan Ladd, Babe Didrickson Zaharias, Julia Child, Michael Kidd and a toughie, Boyd Neel. I promise there will be no more of these after this week; honest. Today's answers Friday.

"Is it soup yet?"

Thursday Highlights

C-8:30 p.m. — It's not much of a highlight but then, there's rarely much on Thursday. However, Ironside begins a rerun of the controversial two-parter about a Montreal mailbox bombing and you might want to see what was so bad that CTV postponed it—5.

CABLE 10 — 7:00 p.m., Ladies First; 7:30, Project Travel; 8:00, documentary film; 8:30, Outdoorsmen, powerboating; 9:00, Arts Calendar; 9:30, Cable 10 Forum.

Thursday Movies

9:00 a.m. — Background to Danger (1943 spies), George Raft, Peter Lorre, other similarly funny folk. A good movie day starts with one of those so-bad-it's-hilarious things—4.

● 12:45 noon — Happiest Days of Your Life (jolly 1950 English romp). Alastair Sim, Margaret Rutherford, Joyce Grenfell. Loads of laughts—6, 8.

C-4:00 p.m. — River of No Return (so-so 1954 adventure), Robert Mitchum, Marilyn Monroe. The lady was in her prime—7.

4:30 — Jive Junction (1943 wartime musical), Dickie Moore wins the war in what is clearly history's stupidist film — 13.

5:30 — Intruder in the Dust (1950 Faulker interracial story), David Brian, many more. A museumpiece now but bold for its day—12.

C-7:30 — Ski Party (1965 Frankie Avalonothing). I wish they'd make a film called Gidget Gets Caught in an Avalanche and forget the whole thing—12.

7:30 — Isle of Forgotten Sins (badly done 1943 sunken treasure), John Carradine, Gale Sondergaard but its still a cheapo — 13.

C-9:00 — Chamber of Horrors (1966 nastiness), Patrick O'Neal, Cesare Danova, Wilfrid Hyde-White. Some might have a ball but it's not for younger folk—7.

11:00 — Johnny Rocco (1958 ganster-turns-good-because-of-his-son), Stephen McNally, Wait—13.

C11:30 — Desiree (1954 Brando as Napoleon). Despite Jean Simmons, you'll meet your Waterloo if you watch—7.

● C11:50 — Tunes of Glory (1960 Scots regiment drama, simply superb), John Mills, Alec Guinness, Dennis Price and about as fine a supporting cast as you could imagine—2.

C-12:00 — Bedtime Story (1964 romanticomedy, another Brando loser). Plus David Niven, Shirley Jones—6, 8.

1:00 a.m. —Federal Fugitives (1941 fooey)—13.

1:05 — Six Bridges to Cross (1955 good guy-bad guy garbage), Tony Curtis, Sal Mineo. If they were women, they'd both be Gidgets—12.

Thursday Radio

8:00 p.m. — Musicscope is a concert by soprano Lois Marshall, contralto Maureen Forrester, tenor Richard Lewis, bass Norman Farrow. High-priced talent—CBU (690).

8:05 — Gala: Beethoven's fifth concerto — CFMS (98.5).

●—Recommended; C—Color.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD and BEE SCHENKEN

From time to time the declarer finds himself in the happy position of having so many chances to make the contract that his only real problem is how to combine all of them to the best effect.

Let's say you are at seven hearts, where you start with twelve tricks. The simplest way of acquiring one more would be to take the spade finesse, but the real question is how to get the very best out of that highly promising diamond combination before having recourse to the spade finesse as a last resort.

Vul: None	NORTH ♠ 8 3 ♡ K 9 8 2 ◇ A K 4 2 ♣ A Q 7
WEST ♠ K 9 7 6 4 ♡ 5 ◇ 8 5 3 ♣ J 10 9 2	EAST ♠ J 10 5 2 ♡ 7 3 ◇ Q 9 7 ♣ 8 5 4 3
	SOUTH (D) ♠ A Q ♡ A Q J 10 6 4 ◇ J 10 6 ♣ K 6

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♡	Pass	3♣	Pass
3♡	Pass	4♡	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5♡	Pass
5 NT	Pass	6♡	Pass
7♡	All Pass

Opening lead: Jack of clubs.

Win the club opening with the king, draw the opponents, trumps and lead the jack of diamonds. You wouldn't dream of letting it ride, of course, but West may have been reared on the maxim, 'Cover an honor with an honor,' and may pop up with the queen, solving the problem.

However, let's say West plays low on the diamond: You win with the ace and cash the king, hoping the queen falls.

When it doesn't, you proceed to cash dummy's clubs, discarding a diamond. Then you ruff a diamond, hoping the opponents' diamonds are 3-3.

This time your efforts are rewarded and the long diamond is your thirteenth trick. The spade finesse — which would have failed — is avoided.

Heading Back to Camp

Heading for new adventures, 21 Slave Indian teenagers, with their leaders, wave goodbye to Victoria Wednesday morning. Group was stranded in city Tuesday night, and spent night at Cool-Aid. Wednesday they returned to their Surrey campsite, and will head for Interior today, returning home at Hay Lakes, Northwest Alberta June 1.—(Jim Ryan).

'... The Rats Killed a Cat'

"There are rats, rats, big as blooming cats," says the old army song.

But in the Highlands district, northwest of Victoria, there's a new version, which starts something like this:

"There are rats, rats, eating up the cats, from the dump, from the dump."

And according to Capital Regional District engineer Bill Gerry there's nothing anyone can do about the problem.

Langford representative Earl Pallister raised the matter at a meeting Wednesday of the board's public works committee.

He complained about a garbage dump on Millstream Road, just past Western Speedway, which he said is not being allowed to burn itself out.

"It is still being added to," he said.

"As a result everybody's house around there is infested with rats.

"It's so bad that not long ago the rats killed a cat."

"It must have been a small cat," quipped Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock.

"It was a six-month-old kitten," replied Pallister.

"It disturbs me that this is being allowed to carry on," he added.

"The problem is in Langford, but it was created by the core municipalities who came out there to dump their garbage.

"The thing should be brought under control, and then a proper land-fill system should be used."

Pallister
. . . health warning

Gerry said he had been out to the dump and it was exactly as described by Pallister.

He said there is a fire hazard there, smoke pollution and a health hazard.

He said, however, that the regional board had no authority in the field of solid waste disposal and would not unless letters patent were changed to cover that area.

The Metropolitan Health Board, he said, was in a parallel position and the Pollution Control Board had no authority either.

It was decided to send letters to the provincial health department, the pollution control branch and the mines and forests department outlining the problem.

Price War Hits Store

Dominion Stores profits dropped 64 per cent to $3,322,000 (41 cents a share) in the year ended March 20 from $9,318,000 ($1.15 in the previous fiscal year.

The drop came in face of an increase of 17.9 per cent in sales to $768,557,000.

Dominion Stores started a supermarket price war in Eastern Canada to recapture sales it was losing. In this it was clearly successful, but at the expense of profits.

And a Lot of Money Too

Fame Keeps Rich in U.S.

By Barbara McLintock

Despite the fame he has gathered since he moved to the United States, Rich Little is still a Canadian.

And, he said Wednesday night, he intends to remain one.

"If people ask me where I come from, I always say Ottawa," Rich said at a press conference between his appearances at the Jaycee Fair.

His present address, however, is Hollywood, Calif., though he said he is on the road too much to spend much time there.

He left Canada, he said, because he was "young and very ambitious." The United States was — and is — the place where show business performers can "gain worldwide recognition and make a lot of money", so he went there on the understanding that if he didn't "make it" in the U.S. he would return to Canada.

—Barry Casson

'. . . always a Canadian'

The new 30 per cent Canadian rules for Canadian television and radio will not likely make a great deal of difference to this image of the U.S. as being the place to make it, he said.

"You can't force anything like that . . . people will watch what they want to watch . . . and it usually turns out to be American." For example, if a Canadian talk show was placed against Johnny Carson, Canadian viewers would still watch Johnny Carson, Rich said. "They're loyal to Canadians, but they still watch what they like."

With only a few exceptions, he said, Canadians think "if you don't go to the States and make it, you aren't any good."

Wayne and Schuster are some of the exceptions he cited.

As well, he said, it is "very frustrating" for a performer to work in Canada because almost every good Canadian is overexposed in Canada once he is discovered. This is happening to Anne Murray now, he suggested.

Rich said he has a repertoire of about 140 voices he can impersonate including all the top Canadian politicians — Trudeau, Stanfield, Diefenbaker, Pearson, Douglas. During the press conference, he got bursts of laughter from the journalists as he lapsed into the mannerisms of politicians and movie stars and took requests for a few sentences in the voice of other notables.

Some voices he can pick up quite quickly just hearing them, he said, but most he learns with the aid of a tape recorder, playing one or two sentences over and over.

"I'm just like a kid with a new toy when I get a new voice," he said, recalling that when he had finally perfected the impersonation of U.S. vice-president Spiro Agnew, he went around talking like Agnew for two days.

Exposure Held Death Cause

Ganges coroner Miles Acheson confirmed Wednesday night that a Duncan mother and her two children died from exposure in rough, cold water overnight Sunday.

Ganges RCMP said the search conducted by divers from Victoria and the Ganges RCMP Wednesday failed to find the dead woman's husband, Gary Henry Salter, and the divers returned to Victoria Wednesday night.

RCMP said they will continue the search Friday and cover a wider area of the coastline.

They said, "We will continue the search until all means are exhausted. If Salter is not located within the next week or so, he will be reported missing and presumed drowned."

Police identified the mother as Yuet Han Patsy Salter, 32, and the children as 11-year-old Wai Sze Fong, a daughter, and 10-year-old Wai Kwok Fong, a son.

The bodies of Mrs. Salter and her two children were discovered early Monday morning washed up on the beach at Vesuvius Bay on Salt Spring Island, after their boat apparently swamped.

Police said the family was returning to Duncan after digging for clams on Salt Spring Island when the tragedy occurred.

Second Driver Blamed

Death of a Victoria man following a two-car collision April 23 on the Malahat, was caused by criminally negligent driving by Douglas Ernest Genno, 39, of Cowichan Bay, a coroner's jury ruled Wednesday night.

Daniel Brian Bresenham, 20, of 339 St. James, died early April 24 in St. Joseph's Hospital with severe brain injuries received in the mishap.

He was passenger in a car driven by his mother, Mrs. Margaret Bresenham, which was in collision with a car driven by Genno on the Trans-Canada Highway north of Tunnel Hill.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre told the jury in his summation Genno had consumed six glasses of beer shortly before the crash.

He said the collision occurred as Genno was attempting to get back in his lane after passing a car.

"It seemed to me Mr. Genno was wanting to pass everything on the road. I don't accept his statement that he wasn't affected by six glasses of beer.

"It was just a senseless bit of driving on his part.

"People, when they drink, just aren't themselves and do things they wouldn't think of when they're sober," St. Jorre said.

St. Jorre told the jury a blood test taken shortly after the collision disclosed a blood alcohol content of .12 per cent. He said it is an offence to operate a motor vehicle with a blood alcohol content exceeding .08 per cent.

St. Jorre said Mrs. Bresenham was wearing her seat belt when the crash occurred. Bresenham, he said, was reclining on the back seat for comfort so was not wearing his seat belt.

The jury deliberated for about 40 minutes before returning its verdict.

Glowing Report

Russian Poet Bills Trudeau As Superman

MOSCOW (UPI) Poet Andrei Voznesensky has described for his readers a superman among Western politicians who twits the United States, dominates his own parliament and loves Russian literature — Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

Voznesensky reported his impressions of Trudeau in an article for Wednesday's Literary Gazette. It was a glowing report indeed, based upon meetings with the Canadian prime minister during Voznesensky's tour of Canada last year.

The article was timed to coincide with Trudeau's visit to the Soviet Union.

Recalling an encounter with the prime minister, Voznesensky wrote:

"What is Canada's attitude toward the United States?

"Pierre Trudeau made a joke: It is difficult to sleep in one bed with an elephant. Even if the elephant is kind, he sometimes rolls over and snores."

Trudeau first used the elephant quip when he visited Washington in March, 1969.

Voznesensky said he visited Trudeau at his "comfortable mansion, decorated with azaleas."

"He turned out to be simple, friendly and was dressed in plain garb," the poet wrote.

"He is poised, artistic, with a tanned and youthful looking face, a dynamic skier. He speaks about (novelist Ivan) Turgenev and is much interested in Russia."

Voznesendky said he watched Trudeau debate masterfully in parliament "where, a few days later, he would throw an expression into the faces of his opponents that is somewhat more risque than go to hell."

Voznesensky is one of the best known poets in the Soviet Union.

Nabbed Coeds Freed

WETUMPKA, Ala. (UPI) — Two inmates with knives grabbed two college girls on a tour of Draper Prison Wednesday and held them hostage coeds escaped unharmed two in a demand for freedom. The hours later when two other inmates jumped their abductors.

A prison spokesman said inmates Ira Moore and David Hall were working in a kitchen when the coeds walked in on a sociology field trip from Auburn University.

The spokesman said the inmates grabbed the girls — Kim Davis and Laura Randolph — held paring knives at their throats, and herded them toward the prison's back gate. There they demanded a get-away car.

Prison officials prepared a "fast sports type" car for use by the inmates but tried to talk them out of the escape.

Russians, U.S. Meet On Lobster Dispute

ABOARD THE COAST GUARD CUTTER DUANE (UPI) — Russian and U.S. officials conferred aboard a Soviet ship at sea Wednesday in an effort to end alleged harassment of U.S. lobstermen off the New England coast.

A state department official, saying he would offer specific suggestions to resolve the dispute, headed the 11-member U.S. delegation that boarded the Russian fishing ship Ss. Robert Eikhe from the Coast Guard cutter Duane near Nantucket lightship about 80 miles south of Cape Cod.

"There is no question that foreign fleets, particularly the Soviets, have caused substantial damage in lost gear to American lobstermen," said Donald L. McKernan, special assistant for fisheries, wildlife and ocean affairs in the state department.

The Americans climbed a ladder on the Russian ship for the first meeting at sea of representatives of the two nations since a Soviet sailor tried to defect aboard a coast guard cutter off the Massachusetts coast last November.

The 560-foot Eikhe, mother ship of a 120-vessel Soviet fishing fleet, had a smaller trawler at its side. The Coast Guard cutter Active circled the Eikhe.

The at-sea meeting was requested by the Soviet fleet commander who said work obligations prevented him from going ashore. The Russians accused lobstermen of setting traps so that trawlers can not make normal runs with their nets.

No Comment Prison Rule

OTTAWA (CP) — Prison officials will no longer add comment to letters sent prisoners, Solicitor-General members of Parliament by Jean-Pierre Goyer has ruled.

However, he urged MPs to "get the other side" when they receive letters of grievance from prisoners.

Farm Help

OTTAWA (CP) — An independent agency set up to test and develop farm machinery and, among other things, help farmers choose the right machines and models for their operations, has been recommended in the final report of the royal commission on farm machinery.

My Lai CO Demoted, Censured

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Maj. Gen Samuel Koster, commander of the division involved at My Lai, has been demoted and censured for failing to conduct an adequate investigation of the 1968 massacre, Army Secretary Stanley Resor said Wednesday.

Koster immediately branded the action "unfair and unjust" and hinted that "outside influence" was responsible for the decision.

Koster, 51, a former West Point commandant, also will lose his Distinguished Service Medal, Resor said. Brig. Gen. George Young, 50, Koster's deputy commander at the time of the My Lai incident, will be stripped of the same medal for failure to monitor the investigation ordered by Koster. Both officers also received letters of censure.

Resor said Army Chief of Staff Gen. William Westmoreland recommended the sanctions against the officers and also suggested demoting Young to Colonel. Resor said he overrruled Young's demotion because he had been absent from certain key conversations about the investigation.

For Koster, the demotion to brigadier means an 11 per cent cut in pay or a loss of $308.40 per month.

Both Koster and Young already have been cleared of criminal charges in connection with My Lai. But Wednesday's action represented a slap at the soldiers' professional conduct.

Moran Dam Certain With Socreds

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Moran Dam, proposed for the Fraser River about 120 miles northeast of Vancouver, will be under construction within 18 months if current tests for footings show it is feasible, Pat McGeer, provincial Liberal leader, predicted Tuesday night.

He told a meeting attended by about 50 persons that such projects are never discussed in the legislature "because Premier Bennett will build the dam if he wants one."

McGeer said the Moran project has been criticised by salmon fishing interests and ecology groups.

Damage Denied

PHNOM PENH (AP) — The head of a national committee charged with protection of the ancient Khmer ruins at Angkor has denied that Angkor Wat was damaged by a government artillery barrage, the official Cambodian news agency said.

Trudeau, Kosygin seal protocol in Kremlin

Kosygin Agrees to Visit Canada

- Kosygin spurns international Arctic talks. See Page 14.
- Trudeau Russian poet's superman. Page 59.

MOSCOW (CP) — Even as Canada and Russia entered a new phase of co-operation and consultation in a variety of fields Wednesday, Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin accepted an invitation to visit Canada.

When Prime Minister Trudeau first extended the invitation Tuesday, Kosygin merely thanked him without committing himself.

Wednesday, the prime minister renewed the invitation and, Canadian officials reported, Kosygin accepted with greatest pleasure.

No date was set.

A protocol providing for the new phase of agreement between the two countries was signed by Trudeau and Kosygin just prior to a gala reception given by Trudeau at the Soviet government guest house where he and Mrs. Trudeau have been staying in Moscow's Lenin Hills.

It envisages close collaboration between the two northern neighbors in such matters as Arctic pollution control, northern development, science, technology and culture.

It also calls for speedy exchanges of view between the Soviet and Canadian governments in times of international crisis, to see "what might be done to improve the situation."

Signing of the protocol followed an unexpectedly long, two-hour interview be-

Bolshoi Head Rates Margaret Good Prospect

MOSCOW (CP) — The woman director of Moscow's famous Bolshoi Ballet school sized up a slender and beautiful visitor Wednesday and pronounce her a good ballerina prospect.

The visitor was Margaret Trudeau.

You have everything it takes to make a good ballerina, the director, Sophia Nikolaevna Golovkina told Mrs. Trudeau after giving her an appraising look towards the end of the visitor's 1¼-hour stay.

The director told Mrs. Trudeau at another point that she would make a good gypsy dancer. The prime minister's young bride saw exhibitions of folk dancing as well as ballet dancing while at the school.

Mrs. Golovkina had still another observation to make about Mrs. Trudeau. I can see from your eyes you are happy, she remarked before her visitor departed.

Spillover Pollution

Take U.S. to Court Nader Tells Canada

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada should challenge the United States before the World Court and other international tribunals on the pollution that spills over into this country from the U.S., Ralph Nader told more than 1,000 persons here Wednesday night.

Nader, speaking at a meeting of the University of British Columbia's alumni association, said Canada has an "exquisite" opportunity to generate "a common international law controlling these acts and contamination against mankind" and to develop international institutions "that will begin to exercise authority in the control of such international pollution."

"Along the Canada-United States border there's obviously more pollution going toward Canada than from Canada to the states, he said.

"I think it's time to begin developing a very healthy adversary relationship with the states in a legal context."

Nader, an American-consumer affairs advocate, said if Canadians needed additional stimulation to do so, it "will be forthcoming in the AEC (Atomic Energy Commission) tests in the Aleutians, will be forthcoming in the Alaska pipeline and oil tanker sequence" and in the increasing pressures that will spill over into Canada as a result of the U.S. "lack of ability to toilet train ourselves in a civilized fashion."

Nader, a director of Consumers Union, which publishes Consumer Reports, said the public will never find a satisfactory formula for controlling power in industry and government until it adopts new standards of citizenship.

"This type of citizenship must be a fulltime occupation," he said. "People are already beginning to ask what can I do to help the community and how do I go about it?"

Nader also called for a new conscience on the part of workers in plants where the quality of workmanship is not up to standard.

Europe Units Intact

Nixon Wins Forces Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) The Senate handed President Nixon a major foreign policy victory Wednesday night by rejecting a series of proposals to force cuts in the 300,000-man U.S. military contingent in Europe.

The vote was 61-36.

In a day-long debate, senators turned aside a variety of alternative plans before rejecting Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield's proposal for a 50-per-cent cut in the European force by the end of 1971.

President Nixon had taken an uncompromising position against the Mansfield amendment and less-sweeping proposals pushed by other senators from both parties.

Despite defeat of all of the troop-cut proposals, the debate disclosed broad support for making some reduction in U.S. manpower in Europe. Senators were unwilling, however, to force Nixon to make such cuts.

Since it was introduced eight days ago, the Mansfield amendment was the subject of strong criticism in Europe as well as an all-out administration counter-offensive.

Backers claimed the amendment produced a significant improvement in the East-West climate by bringing last week's proposal by Soviet Communist party chairman Leonid Brezhnev for troop-reduction talks and the Nixon administration's response it was interested in talks.

"If the climate has changed," Senator Frank Church, (Dem.—Idaho), told the senate, "it is because the senator from Montana, Mr. Mansfield, put forth this proposal."

Before getting to the Mansfield amendment, the Senate voted down several variations on it.

Mackasey

Added Winter Jobless Funds Denied

OTTAWA (UPI) — The federal government does not plan to extend the seasonal unemployment insurance benefits which expired last Saturday, Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey said Wednesday.

The minister had been asked by both the Conservative and New Democratic parties to consider extending the benefits for at least another month following the release of figures which showed seasonally adjusted unemployment had climed to 6.7 per cent in April from 6.0 per cent in March.

In a statement to the House of Commons, Mackasey said after reviewing the situation he did not think it necessary to extend the benefits. He noted it would cost $35 million to $40 million for a six-week extension.

Mackasey said as of May 15 the number of persons drawing seasonal benefits this year was 200,000 as opposed to 180,000 at the same time last year.

He described those drawing benefits as persons "who have a very minimal attachment to the labor force but are unable to qualify for regular benefits."

Mackasey said he expected

No Long Energy Deals—Greene

MONTREAL (CP) Energy Minister J. J. Greene said Wednesday Canada should avoid long-term energy trading commitments with the United States which may have unpredictable results on the Canadian economy before they expire.

Greene told the spring meeting of the American Petroleum Institute's marketing division: "There is no place in Canada-U.S. energy relations for trading arrangements amounting to long-term commitments too far in advance of our ability to predict their consequences to the Canadian economy and, therefore, to continental relations."

Few people were accurate in their forecasts for the last two or three years, he said, and with that in mind "it would be wrong to commit too far downstream resources which belong to the Canadian people."

"We are not against the export of these resources when they are clearly in excess of our own requirements, particularly where the export today can benefit the Canadians of today, and at the same time help generate the discovery of more resources for the Canadians of tomorrow."

Greene said Canada should be increasingly concerned about exports of more labor-intensive products.

Canada's trading partners should open their doors to more Canadian finished products if they want to make use of a developing natural resource industry in this country, he said.

"I am certainly in agreement with those who suggest Canada must achieve access to foreign markets for highly-processed resources carrying a much greater Canadian

Privies Rise in Protest

TORONTO (CP) — Irate homeowner Louis Bunda has set up two portable privies on the front lawn of his $50,000 home in one of Toronto's wealthiest neighborhoods to protest a sewer pipe mixup.

Bunda said Wednesday he set up the toilets after discovering that a sewer line installed by Yorkborough was five inches above the connection to his house.

The borough wants to charge him $880 to hook up the connection. Bunda, an investor, says he'll make do with the front-yard privies.

Why two of them?

"It's kind of a classy area," he said. "We need one for the guests and one for the household."

Soviets Send Mars Probe

From AP-Reuter

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union announced Wednesday it has launched a space shot toward Mars and expects it to reach the planet next November.

Named Mars-2 and described as an automatic interplanetary station, the probe was launched Wednesday at 9:23 a.m. Victoria time.

A Moscow radio announcement said the station weighs more than four tons and will cover a distance of about 292 million miles to reach the vicinity of Mars.

The Soviet Union's first station aimed at Mars was Mars-1 launched in November, 1962. Radio contact was lost with it the following May, a month before it was scheduled to reach the planet.

Mars-2 is far larger and shows the development in Soviet space technique in the nine years since the Mars-1 failure.

The main purpose of Mars-2 is to "carry out a complex of scientific research about the planet Mars and the space surrounding it," Tass says.

Meanwhile, the U.S. space agency announced Wednesday a new postponement until May 23 in the launch of a Mariner unmanned spacecraft toward Mars while scientists continue to investigate the failure of an identical mission May 8.

Prisoners Barricaded

DORCHESTER, N.B. (UPI) — More than 200 prisoners at Dorchester maximum security prison barricaded themselves in the prison gymnasium Wednesday night. Two inmates were slightly wounded by buckshot while attempting to escape.

It was not known if they were holding hostages.

B-57 Down Near North Bay

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — A United States B-57 bomber with two persons aboard, crashed Wednesday night shortly after takeoff.

A spokesman for national defence headquarters in Ottawa said the plane went down in a densely-wooded area about eight miles from the end of the runway. There was no word about survivors.

He said the scene was a "fireball and no-one can get within a mile of the crash. There's no radio contact at all."

Wallace Staggered by Loffmark Proposal

Post-Mortem Tax 'Impossible'

Wallace

By HUBERT BEYER

"This would be a retrograde step — the proposal staggers me," Dr. G. Scott Wallace, Sociel Credit MLA for Oak Bay, said Wednesday.

Wallace was commenting on a plan, outlined earlier in the day by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark in Vancouver, according to which the provincial government would pay the cost of nursing home care for the aged, but would be reimbursed from the estates of patients with funds.

After a patient with funds had died, the minister said, the government would investigate the estate and the needs of the beneficiaries.

This proposal, he said, would counter Wallace's statements Monday that the government didn't attempt to provide care for the elderly unless they were on welfare.

But Wallace told the Colonist Wednesday the minister's latest plan for "a post-mortem tax" on nursing home patients in no way countered his criticism.

"This has got to be way-out," he said.

"It would be an impossible task for any civil servant to examine the needs of beneficiaries. It is bound to be an unfair method of financing medical care," Wallace said.

His main criticism has been and still is, the government's refusal to apply the same formula of financing to persons in need of medical care, he said.

"If the minister wants to introduce post-mortem taxation, he should apply it to all levels of care — acute, intermediate and extended."

If Loffmark's plan were adopted, Wallace said, it would mean that acute-care patients will continue to receive medical service at the "totally unrealistic rate of $1 a day," while nursing home patients would have their

Tennis Players Take Ball to Council

COURTENAY — Tennis players in Courtenay are unhappy, along with some members of city council, following a council decision to allow a beer garden in Lewis Park July 1.

The July 1 special events committee headed by Mrs. Myrtle Vickberg proposed the beer garden be set up in the tennis courts in the park.

At first the committee wanted the affair on the bowling green, but this was vetoed by council because of the possibility of damage to the grass.

Aldermen Bill Moore and Ron Field both expressed the thought that July 1 was a kiddies' day and beer shouldn't be sold in the park. They queried whether a beer garden was a step forward in the liquor law situation.

Ald. J. J. Woodrow said he liked the idea and did not feel it would hurt other beer parlor business.

Moore interjected, "This is supposed to be a family celebration" and added that he didn't feel a beer garden was "compatible" with a family fun day.

Ald. Larry Brown was in favor and said parents could drink beer right at the park and not have to leave their children.

Ald. Harry Harris gave his approval, "since it's only allowed once a year."

Opposition from the tennis club came mainly because the club traditionally holds an Island tournament that day. Club members commented, "The July 1 committee has taken over the courts just like that. It's hardly fair; we protested but could do nothing about it."

Another to go on record against the beer garden is Courtenay parks and recreation director Herb bradley.

Moore added in his comments that if the day had been one of loggers' sports, he would have been "all in favor" of a beer garden.

Courtenay Council Blasted:

Million-Dollar Business Lost

COURTENAY — An increase in Courtenay garbage disposal rates has cost the city a new million-dollar printing complex, which will now be located at Merville.

Courtenay city council was told this in a letter from publisher of the Comox Free Press, P. E. Bickle, who complained at the higher garbage costs and eventually told council to stop collecting his refuse — he would dispose of it himself.

"Your continued policies will soon hasten the relocation of what little industry this city has, to the outside area," Bickle said in his letter.

In a letter of reply, city administrator, Derek Ratcliffe told Bickle that records indicated that the equivalent of more than 40 cans of garbage were being picked up twice a week from the Bickle premises. The firm was, however, paying for the equivalent of four cans a pick up at the rate of 50 cents a pick up as against the proper rate of $5 a pick up.

Ratcliffe quoted from by-laws passed in 1967 and 1970 which authorized the rate increases. He said he appreciated the firm's concern at a billing showing an increase of $117 per quarter. He added that garbage rates are reviewed on a regular basis "and in the event it is found there has been a significant decline in volume over a period, the account will be adjusted accordingly."

Bickle's reply was to cancel garbage collection.

Squatters Spared

UCLUELET — About 200 beach squatters at Pacific Rim National Park have been told by the park superintendent they will be allowed to remain until the end of the summer.

Superintendent George Trachuck said no attempt will be made this summer to clear out any shelters erected by the squatters, most of whom are transient young people.

Club Scores Bullseye in Council

NORTH COWICHAN Council will prepare a lease agreement with the Chemainus Rod and Gun Club for a piece of municipal land fronting on the Chemainus River, where the club wants to establish a shooting range, it was decided Wednesday.

The provision in the five-year lease will be that public access to the river will be assured by the club. Club spokesman Melvin Schmidt explained that besides a shooting range, his group eventually plans to establish a picnic and camping area.

The shooting range and the other facilities could also be used by the general public. Schmidt said RCMP and the local conservation officer thought the area was safe for a shooting range.

Elsewhere, council approved a request from Ladysmith town council to use SPCA facilities on Cassino Road near Duncan.

Town clerk J. W. Runciman advised council in his letter "that the town of Ladysmith is considering entering into an agreement with the Cowichan district branch of the British Columbia SPCA, whereby the society will provide pound keeper and pound service for the town."

Ald. Donald Morton remarked that the step taken by Ladysmith could eventually lead to a regionalization of SPCA services.

In other business, former municipal engineer John Sansom, now with a Victoria engineering firm, indicated in a letter that heavy snowfalls contributed to unusually deep snow in the mountainous region.

Sansom wrote, "We would bring to your attention the most recent snow survey bulletin as published by the water investigation branch of the water resources service.

"The nearest measurement to the North Cowichan area is Heather Mountain, which, on May 1 had a snow depth of 147.9 inches This has a water equivalent of 72.2 inches, which is almost twice the average over the past 10 years."

Sansom brought out two points — that there should be no problem of water shortage at Holy Oak Lake, and that if there should be heavy rains combined with a sudden thaw, flooding in the lower Cowichan Valley could occur.

He stated, "While there is no cause for unnecessary alarm, it might be wise to keep a special watch on the sewer outfall and the lagoon embankments if such conditions arise."

Council was also told by the provincial highways department that a speed reduction on the Trans-Canada Highway at Fullers Lake was "not warranted at the present time."

In his correspondence, district superintendent John Morris explained "that the intersection is well covered by street lighting, has a right turn slot from the south and a left turn slot from the north and providing that the road markings are maintained in good condition, that this should be sufficient."

Making Further Deposit In 'Life-Giving Bank'

By KLAUS MUENTER

DUNCAN — Donating blood is nothing but a deposit in a life-giving bank according to Andy Bigg, who gave his 50th pint Wednesday.

The blood donors' clinic was at Duncan United Church Hall for the day and will continue there today from 1:30-4:30 p.m. and from 6:30-9:30 p.m. The clinic is sponsored by the Cowichan branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society.

"In the regular donation of blood, which costs the donor nothing other than just a few minutes, I feel that I simply make a further deposit in a life-giving bank from which any of my family, my friends, or other people can draw to sustain life or good health at a time of emergency," Bigg said. He pointed out that the excellent facilities, the donated services of the voluntary organizations, and the Red Cross personnel who operate and maintain the clinics all add up to the perfect atmosphere for everyone to support this service.

Bigg said: "None of us should overlook the fact that at any time we might just have to obtain a blood transfusion to save our own life. Personally I see no great effort or sacrifice in donating blood. However, I have the strongest feelings of regret, disappointment and even frustration when I hear that local, provincial or even the national blood bank supplies are running low because of lack of donors.

Bigg

"This unfortunate situation could either partly or totally be corrected. In the April 22 Daily Colonist a headline stated, Heavy Response Encourages Blood Clinic and contained in the subsequent article was this statement — 'one of the most rewarding encouraging responses occurred earlier Wednesday when more than half of the Grade 12 enrolment at Esquimalt senior high school gave 143 bottles of blood. Almost every 18- and 19-year-old in the school attended the clinic'."

"Within these two short paragraphs is a proof of a contention I have held for many years in regard to the donating of blood." Bigg suggested that the Red Cross Society should produce a short, well produced film showing the type of accident, emergencies and clinical needs in the course of surgery and particularly emphasizing the essential life-giving benefits donated blood provides for youths, infants, and every day needs but "not emphasizing the needs of a battlefield."

The film then should be produced in quantity and shown to senior high school and university students prior to the blood clinics moving into their area, Bigg said.

"The youth of our country would respond with unrestrained enthusiasm and the habit pattern so necessary for a constant flow of blood to the injured or ailing would be created in our younger generation. I feel that the ages 18 and 19 years is the time to start donating and I sincerely hope that the Red Cross will act on my very sincere suggestion," he said.

Death Definitely By Exposure

Ganges coroner Miles Acheson confirmed Wednesday night that a Duncan mother and her two children died from exposure in rough, cold water overnight Sunday.

Ganges RCMP said the search conducted by divers from Victoria and the Ganges RCMP Wednesday failed to find the dead woman's husband, Gary Henry Salter, and the divers returned to Victoria Wednesday night.

RCMP said they will continue the search Friday and cover a wider area of the coastline.

They said, "We will continue the search until all means are exhausted. If Salter is not located within the next week or so, he will be reported missing and presumed drowned."

Police identified the mother as Yuet Han Patsy Salter, 32, and the children as 11-year-old Wai Sze Fong, a daughter, and 10-year-old Wai Kwok Fong, a son.

The bodies of Mrs. Salter and her two children were discovered early Monday morning washed up on the beach at Vesuvius Bay on Salt Spring Island, after their boat apparently swamped.

Police said the family was returning to Duncan after digging for clams on Salt Spring Island when the tragedy occurred.

Sister Matilda Leaving

COURTENAY — A dinner and presentation highlighted the annual meeting of the Vancouver Island area hospital council, which met in Parksville last weekend.

During the dinner a Dogwood plaque was presented to sister Matilda, administrator, St Jospeh's Hospital, Comox. She has been secretary to the council for some years and will be leaving Comox in the near future for new duties in Toronto.

Elected to the executive for the coming year were: Wilf Wunderlisk, trustee, Chemainus Hospital, chairman; Gordon Mason, board chairman, Campbell River Hospital, vice-chairman; Ernie Dickson, administrator, Chemainus Hospital, secretary-treasurer; William Morrison, Administrator, Gorge Road Hospital, Victoria, past chairman.

Other board members: F. S. Whittington, administrator, West Coast Hospital, Port Alberni; Ben Benwell, trustee, Nanaimo Hospital; Ken Noton, administrator, Cowichan Hospital, and remaining on the board for the coming year, Dr. A. J. Wood, St. Joseph's Hospital, Victoria.

Fiscal Blunders Laid Bare by Instructor

DUNCAN—Cowichan Indian band is growing grapes which will eventually find their way as wine to the B.C. market. The project, in co-operation with the federal agriculture department and Growers' Wine Co. of Victoria, was started a year ago.

The new band vineyard is located just north of here. The grapes will be purchased by Growers'.

NANAIMO — A small and steady increase in the money supply and a loosening, particularly of federal purse strings, are necessary to help beat high unemployment, said Malaspina College economics instructor Ernst Poschenrieder Tuesday at a Kiwanis Club meeting.

Policies of fiscal austerity created unemployment deliberately, and the unwillingness of fiscal authorities to loosen the purse at this moment is basically what is causing today's unemployment to be sustained, Poschenrieder said.

He blamed Canada's inflation troubles indirectly on the United States' "massive military and pseudo-military expenditures in foreign countries."

"Economic events south of the border have a very significant effect upon our economy," he said, 'and because of these U.S. overseas involvements, the country was running a deficit on its international balance of trade — shipping out to foreign countries more dollars and gold than it has been receiving from abroad.

To raise the money for these increasingly costly foreign commitments, the United States Congress used its federal reserve system, the equivalent to the Bank of Canada, to buy U.S. government bonds, rather than asking the taxpayers for more money.

Poschenrieder said, "The result of this borrowing from the reserve is to create new money. As the money supply increased, as early as 1967 inflation began to occur."

He said it had the same effect as feeding more fuel to a furnace — inflation burned hotter.

As inflation carried on more strongly in 1968 and 1969, Canada had to increase her money supply by nearly the same proportion that the U.S. reserve had to increase the money supply in the United States.

"And because this increase in the money supply was greater than could be absorbed by increased productivity in our economy, our economy began to overheat as well."

Poschenrieder said the study done by the prices and incomes commission was "inconsequential in its approach to the matter and incorrect in its conclusions."

What "really took the guts out of the inflation," he said, was the government refloating the Canadian dollar on a free exchange rate.

This had the result of stemming the flow of U.S. dollars into Canada's economy, thus ending the situation which was giving rise to an increase in Canadian money supply.

He Beat All Odds

VANCOUVER — A Nanaimo man who lost both arms in a 1964 pulp mill accident and later earned a degree from the University of Victoria, helped open a three-storey addition to the Workmen's Compensation Board building Tuesday.

Allan Brett, who now holds a personnel office job with MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., and Judge C. W. Tysoe of the B.C. Appeal Court cut the ribbon to open the 65,000-square-foot addition.

Montreal Extends Its Thanks to Canadiens

MONTREAL (CP) — Montrealers by the thousands showed their appreciation to their world-champion hockey team Wednesday, fairly mobbing a parade of Montreal Canadiens players as it passed through downtown.

On St. Catherine Street, four-lanes wide, enthusiastic well-wishers stood up to 20 deep and closed in on the convertibles carrying the hockey players to shake their hands and shout praise.

The motorcade moved at a snail's pace in 85-degree shirtsleeve weather.

The parade was Montreal's thank-you to the team which brought home the Stanley Cup, symbol of National Hockey League supremacy by edging Chicago Black Hawks, 3-2, Tuesday night.

A police motorcycle escort led the parade and forced the spectators back, but the crowds surged forward again around the vehicles led by a convertible carrying the Stanley Cup.

Jean Beliveau, the team captain who is rumored to be about to retire after 18 NHL seasons, was a star attraction and the crowds crushed around his auto, shaking his hand or seeking an autograph.

"Thank you, thank you," Beliveau kept repeating. "Merci, Merci."

Some youngsters pulled off the players' name cards tied to the sides of the convertibles.

"Boy, have I got a souvenir," one small boy shouted.

At Phillips Square, about half-way through the parade route which led from the Forum in west-end midtown to city hall near the financial district, employees of a department store showered confetti and flowers on the players.

From a bank, 50-foot streamers flapped in the wind, hailing the champions. Mini-skirts and hot pants in the crowds added to the color.

Motorists abandoned their cars in traffic jams and joined the crowds.

Mayor Jean Drapeau greeted the players at city hall. He had announced the parade just hours after the Canadiens won the best-of-seven final playoff series in Chicago.

Offical congratulations also came from Quebec City and Ottawa. Premier Robert Bourassa sent a telegram of congratulations to Beliveau, and in the Commons, External Affairs Minister Sharp brought on applause from all quarters when he welcomed "the great victory of the Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup."

Upland Golfers Jolt Hope of Champions

Verley

Uplands	9
Glen Meadows	7½
Gorge Vale	3½
Victoria	3½
Cedar Hill	1½
Colwood	0

Royal Colwood Golf Club's hopes of retaining the Willie Park Driver for the Inter-Club Golf League championship received a severe jolt Wednesday at Uplands.

The defending champions were blanked, 9-0, by Uplands in the opening round of the six-club competition.

Glen Meadows trimmed visiting Cedar Hill, 7½-1½, while Gorge Vale scored a home, 5½-3½ win over Victoria.

COMPLETED ROUT

The closest Colwood came to a win was a 1-up loss to Ken Nott by Jim McMurran. In the other half of the foursome, Frank Scroggs scored a 3 and 2 victory over Colwood's Sid Murdoch and the Uplands pair took the four-ball, 2 up.

Although wind conditions were bad everywhere, Gorge Vale's Dave Mick came through with a three-under-par 68 on his home course although he three-putted three greens. Mick beat veteran Dr. George Bigelow of Victoria, 5 and 4, and combined with teammate Lex Sutcliffe, who halved with Doug Munro, took the four-ball, 3 and 2.

CHIPS FOR EAGLE

Gordon Verley, who halved with Mike Kolb of Gorge, was credited with giving Victoria a 1-up victory in the four-ball. Verley chipped in for an eagle two on the 367-yard fifth hole and chipped in for a birdie three on the 17th, a 375-yard test, to give Victoria another hole.

Verley's partner in the four-ball, Bill Thompson, lost to Gorge Vale's Reg Clarkson, 1 up.

Results:

Colwood 0 at Uplands 9

Laurie Kerr lost to Don Billsborough, 2 and 1; Ken Floyd lost to Dave McCall, 7 and 5; Uplands won four-ball, 4 and 3.

Ron Howard, Jr., lost to Bob Hunt, 2 and 1; Bruce Pelmore lost to Keith Burnell, 2 and 1; Uplands won four-ball, 2 and 1.

Jim McMurran lost to Ken Nott, 1 up; Sid Murdoch lost to Frank Scroggs, 3 and 2; Uplands won four-ball, 2 up.

Victoria 3½ at Gorge Vale 5½

George Bigelow lost to Dave Mick, 5 and 4; Doug Munro halved with Lex Sutcliffe; Gorge won four-ball, 3 and 2.

Carl Schwantje halved with Al Fulton; Mike Parker halved with Earl Davies; Four-ball halved.

Gordon Verley halved with Mike Kolb; Bill Thompson lost to Reg Clarkson, 1 up; Victoria won four-ball, 1 up.

Cedar Hill 1½ at Glen Meadows 7½

Brian Gandy lost to Dick Silverberg, 3 and 2; Ron Cush lost to Marty Richards, 3 and 2; Glen Meadows won four-ball, 3 and 2.

Bruce Rands lost to Hal Jacobsen, 5 and 4; Greg Barnes defeated Brian Sluggett, 4 and 3; Glen Meadows won four-ball, 1 up.

Doug Hunt lost to Al Zimmerman, 2 up; Jim Gerard halved with Rick Kent; Glen Meadows won four-ball, 2 up.

Blue Fashions Three-Hitter For Ninth Win of Season

Hot-handed Vida Blue pitched a three-hitter and nailed down his ninth straight victory as Oakland Athletics defeated Milwaukee Brewers, 3-0, in Oakland Wednesday night.

Blue's streak extends back to opening day when he lost to Washington Senators.

He had control problems in the early innings, walking a batter in each o fthe first three. But then he retired 10 batters in a row before Danny Walton's single opened the seventh inning.

The other Milwaukee hits were singles by Roberto Pena in the third and pinch-hitter Ron Theobald in the eighth inning.

HOME RUNS

The Athletics got all their runs on homers. Rick Monday hit his sixth of the season off losing pitcher Bill Parsons in the sixth inning and Reggie Jackson hit his sixth after Joe Rudi had singled in the seventh.

The win kept Oakland five and-a-half games ahead of their nearest rivals, Minnesota Twins, who trounced California Angels, 12-6.

Tony Oliva slammed his 10th home run and knocked in three runs and Harmon Killebrew delivered three more runs with a single and a bases-loaded walk to lead the Twins to their comeback win.

Oliva hit a two-run shot in the third inning after a first-inning roller that drove in a run. Killebrew knocked in two runs with the bases loaded in a three-run fifth inning as Minnesota wiped out a 5-2 California lead.

Killebrew then walked with the bases loaded in a four-run eighth inning as the Twins padded a one-run lead to 11-6.

The rallies gave rookie Jim Strickland a victory in his first major league appearance.

Strickland pitched two innings of relief of starter Jim Perry and held the Angels to one hit while striking out four. Tom Hall pitched the final four innings for the Twins.

Dick McAuliffe drove in four runs with a homer and a double and Al Kaline hit his first two home runs of the season as Detroit Tigers hammered Cleveland Indians, 12-1.

The Tigers scored in every inning except the seventh, enabling Mickey Lolich to coast to his sixth victory against three losses.

Boson Red Sox maintained its two and-a-half game lead over Baltimore Orioles in the Eastern Division by defeating the New York Yankees, 7-2, on Reggie Smith's two-run homer in the seventh inning that broke a 2-2 tie. Unbeaten Sonny Siebert won his seventh straight game for the Red Sox.

In Kansas City, Mike Hedlund pitched a six-hitter with last-out relief help from Ted Abernathy as Kansas City Royals blanked Chicago White Sox, 2-0 on Paul Schaal's run-scoring triple in the sixth inning and Amos Otis's home run in the seventh.

Chicago's Bart Johnson limited the Royals to one hit until the sixth inning, when Schaal's two-out triple scored Ed Kirkpatrick, who had walked.

Pirates Take Lead With Phillies Help

New York Mets, who only last Saturday held a three-game lead over Pittsburgh Pirates, dropped out of first place in the Eastern Division of the National League Wednesday night.

Philadelphia knocked the Mets off the top rung by handing the New Yorkers their fourth straight defeat, 4-1, on Terry Harmon's three-run double in the seventh inning.

Pittsburgh, defending Eastern Division champions, regained the No. 1 spot by whipping Cincinnati Reds, 6-1, on Roberto Clemente's inside-the-park third-inning home run that put the Pirates ahead to stay at 2-1.

Two homers by Clete Boyer helped Atlanta Braves beat Montreal Expos, 10-4, and San Diego Padres shaded Houston Astros, 2-1, in 10 innings on Ollie Brown's RBI single.

Billy Williams drove in six runs with a triple and two home runs as Chicago Cubs whipped San Francisco Giants, 9-5, and Los Angeles Dodgers edged St. Louis Cardinals, 6-5, on a two-out single by Bobby Valentine in the eighth inning off Bob Gibson.

Real Madrid Snatches Soccer Tie

Real Madrid, snatching an equalizer with the last kick of normal time, lived to fight again Wednesday night after their European Cup Winners Cup final with Chelsea of England ended in a 1-1 tie after extra time.

A 56th-minute goal by centre-forward Peter Osgood seemed to have won the game for Chelsea until Ignacio Zoco popped up in the 89th minute to grab the equalizer.

ALL-OUT ATTACK

Chelsea, dominant in the second half, struggled to keep out the Spaniards in extra time as Real, six times European Cup winners, launched an all-out assault in an attempt to win the Cup Winners Cup at the first attempt.

The teams will replay on Friday in Athens.

PLAY TO TIE

In London, England, playing with almost an entirely new team, tied Wales, 0-0, at Wembley Stadium in British championship play. England, now with three points, plays Scotland, which has one, on Saturday while Northern Ireland and Wales, each with two points, meet.

In the European Cup of Nations, Bulgaria defeated Hungary, 3-0, in a first-leg qualification match.

Shortstop Barry Granger hit a triple in the first inning and then came in on an error to open the scoring and Granger again made use of errors, this time by relief pitcher Ron Fedesenko, to reach second base in the fifth inning. Granger reached third base on a passed ball and came home on a fielder's choice.

John Sanderson singled in both Jack White and Bob Harris for runs in the fourth inning and then Brian Callaway, after reaching third base on a fielder's choice and passed balls, scored the last run of the game in the fifth inning when he came in on Harris' sacrifice fly.

Cubs Swap For Catcher

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Cubs obtained 33-year-old catcher Chris Cannizzaro from San Diego Padres Wednesday for infielder Garry Jestadt and an undisclosed amount of money.

The Cubs also placed Joe Pepitone on the disabled list.

In making the deal, vice-president John Holland of the Cubs obtained an experienced backup man for ailing Randy Hundley. Hundley has appeared in only five games since injuring his right knee during a spring training game last March 12.

Pepitone, an outfielder-first baseman, was put on the disabled list for 15 days. He has bone chips in his left elbow.

Argentine Team Here for Game

San Fernado Club of Buenos Aires, which provides practically the whole lineup for Argentina's national Olympic men's field hockey team, plays the third match of its Canadian tour against a Vancouver Island Representative XI at 7 p.m. tonight at Royal Athletic Park.

After a scoreless draw with the B.C. President's XI in the tour opener at Empire Stadium, the Argentina side defeated a Canada "B" team, 1-0, Tuesday night in Vancouver.

Friday morning the visiting team will leave Victoria for Calgary to continue the tour with matches on the Prairies and in Ontario before going on to Europe for games there.

Saints' Top Choice Eyes Canada

Vancouver (CP) — Quarterback Archie Manning, first-round college draft choice of the National Football League New Orleans Saints, says he might be interested in playing a couple of seasons in the Canadian Football League.

The former University of Mississippi star said in a telephone interview with the Vancouver Sun from Indianola, Miss.:

"I had no real interest in the Canadian league before the draft, but since the Saints and I don't seem to be getting together the prospects of playing a couple of years up there are starting to look interesting."

He said his college coach, John Vaught, feels he should try the CFL regardless.

"He has talked to Edmonton," Manning said, "but he's a personal friend of Jackie Parker and he would like to see me play for the B.C. Lions."

Parker, general manager of the Lions, cannot legally talk to Manning because the Mississippi graduate is on the CFL negotiation list of the Eskimos. Parker also says he has "finished recruiting in that area."

Manning, who said he knows what Canadian ball did for NFL quarterbacks Joe Kapp and Peter Liske, said "there must be somebody up there who wants to talk."

Wackiest Season in History of Canadiens

And winning Stanley Cup doesn't automatically remove some problems

MONTREAL (CP) — Despite its successful ending, the 1970-71 National Hockey League season likely will be long remembered by Montreal Canadiens and their supporters as one of the wackiest in the history of the club.

And Toe Blake, who holds the record of coaching the most Stanley Cup championship teams by leading the Canadiens to eight titles, agrees.

BIGGEST AND BEST

"With all the problems this team has had, this has to be the biggest and best win," Blake, now an assistant vice-president with the Montreal club, said of the Canadiens 10th Cup victory in 15 years.

The Canadiens won the title in Chicago Tuesday night in the seventh game of a tough series with a 3-2 win over the favored Hawks on the strength of a pair of goals by veteran Henri Richard, a single by Jacques Lemaire and an outstanding goaltending job by rookie Ken Dryden.

PROBLEMS REMAIN

But winning the Stanley Cup didn't automatically remove some of the problems for the Canadiens.

Several items of unfinished business remained.

There remained in limbo the future of veteran captain Jean Beliveau, who said after Tuesday night's win that there is a 50-50 chance he will retire.

Then there is the future of rookie coach Al MacNeil. While MacNeil won the Stanley Cup in Chicago, he refused to comment on whether or not he will return to try again next season.

MacNeil and veteran centre Henri Richard became embroiled in a controversy following last Thursday night's 2-0 loss to the Hawks in Chicago in the fifth game.

TIMING BAD

Richard publicly chastised MacNeil for his coaching strategy but later admitted he should have kept his mouth shut and that his timing was bad.

Dryden
. . . . still awestruck

However, the incident invoked an uproar here and wound up with MacNeil under police guard following telephoned threats against him.

INCIDENT OVER

Beliveau said Tuesday night, and was backed by other players and MacNeil, that the coach-player feud had been resolved in a five-minute meeting at the Forum last Saturday.

Both MacNeil and Richard said following the Cup victory that they wanted to forget the incident, with Richard adding that he hoped the coach will return next season.

NOT JUST 'DISASTER'

General manager Sam Pollock declined to comment on either the MacNeil or Beliveau situation Tuesday night, but pointed out that his club had survived what many had thought to be a disaster.

"You'll notice that this team won all three series on the other team's ice," Pollock said. "And some said we couldn't go in and win a seventh game here or in Boston."

STATE OF FLUX

In addition to their late-season problems, the Canadiens appeared to be in a state of flux for most of the season as a result of injuries or shifting personnel.

Centre Ralph Backstrom and left winger John Ferguson decided to retire after training camp. Ferguson subsequently returned to the fold in November, while Backstrom wound up with Los Angeles Kings following a January trade.

RUEL RESIGNED

Claude Ruel resigned as coach Dec. 3, to be replaced by MacNeil, then an assistant coach.

Early in January the club obtained big Frank Mahovlich from Detroit Red Wings in return for forwards Mickey Redmond, Bill Collins and Guy Charron.

The same month defenceman Serge Savard broke his left leg for the second time in as many years and was lost to the club for the remainder of the season and the playoffs.

MISSED JACQUES

To make the situation more trying, defenceman Jacques Laperriere missed 29 games because of a pinched nerve in his neck that temporarily paralysed his left arm.

Laperriere admitted after Tuesday's victory in Chicago he had played the last two weeks of the playoffs with a break in his left wrist.

After knocking off Boston Bruins in the quarter-final round, the Canadiens eliminated Minnesota North Stars in six games, but not before another spot of trouble.

In the second game of the Minnesota series Ferguson, benched for the third period by MacNeil, stormed from the bench with less than one minute remaining in the game.

The pair apparently made their peace by the next contest.

DRYDEN AWESTRUCK

While the jury remained out on the MacNeil-Richard incident and on Beliveau's future plans, rookie Dryden, winner of the Conn Smythe Trophy as the best performer throughout the playoffs, remained awestruck by it all.

The subject of high praise for his efforts, Dryden, who played in and won only six NHL contests before his 20-game playoff performance, said he just can't believe it all.

"I think there are some other players on our team who could have won this (Smythe) award and there are some players on the Black Hawks who might have won it," he said. "But I'm grateful for the honor."

St. Michael's Second

VANCOUVER — St. George's of Vancouver edged St. Michael's of Victoria in the final standings of the five-school B.C. Independent Prep School swim meet Tuesday.

St. George's finished with 51 points, two more than the Victoria entry, to retain the title they won in the inaugural event last year.

Winners for St. Michael's were Bob Wright and Reg Moore in the under-14 age division and Bill Hope and John Ellis in the under-12 class. The St. Michael's representatives also won both medley relays.

Rick Cassata Joins Riders

OTTAWA (CP) — Rick Cassata has been signed by Ottawa Rough Riders of the Eastern Football Conference the club announced Wednesday.

The 205-pound Cassata began his professional football career with Saskatchewan Roughriders and was traded to Winnipeg Blue Bombers before going to Jersey Jays of Syracuse, N.Y.

Museum Gets Goods

LADYSMITH — John Watson, operator of the Crossroad Museum, has done his bit for the Provincial Museum in Victoria. And the Provincial Museum has done its bit for Watson, 64.

The Provincial Museum had paid $25,000 for Watson's entire collection of late 19th and early 20th-Century historical objects, located in Crossroad Museum, a private institution operated by Watson near here.

There were 15,000 objects involved in the purchase, according to history curator Dan Gallagher.

"There are mostly household items, but the collection also includes a Model T truck and threshing machine," he said. He added most of the objects were in use between 1890 and 1921.

Nanaimo's Empire Day

Weekend of Fun

NANAIMO — Loggers' sports, dances, band concerts, parades and performances by a troupe from the Calgary Stampede will be only a few of the many Empire Day weekend festivities.

This is the 102nd year Nanaimo has celebrated Queen Victoria's birthday.

The hoopla begins Friday evening at 7:30 with the crowning of May Queen Denise Graham at Civic Arena. Denise, 11, is a Grade 6 student at Cilaire school. She takes the crown from Thea Sutherland.

After the pageant will be a torchlight parade through town to Harbor Park where the Calgary Stampede performing troupe will be entertaining.

The entertainers from Calgary, four men and "Miss Kitty," will be putting in an appearance at almost every one of the 16 events.

Saturday will begin with a chuckwagon breakfast downtown where later in the day roving performers will be appearing.

In the afternoon the Little Britches Rodeo and Chuckwagon Races will take place at Exhibiton Park.

Saturday evening there will be lacrosse at the arena, the Serauxmen May Dance at Branch 256 Legion, and the fish and game club's Hard Times Dance.

Loggers' sports take place at Grandview Bowl Sunday afternoon and in the evening will be a mini-bathtub race in the harbor, bands, drill teams, and fireworks displays.

Monday begins with the annual Rotary pancake breakfast, and there is the giant parade through town beginning at 11 a.m.

In the afternoon: Bingo at Branch 10 Legion, the fish and game club barbecue, and senior soccer at Caledonia Park.

The following weekend, May 30, the annual Coal Tyee Celebrations will take place at Newcastle Island complete with ceremonial Indian dancing, war canoe races and a barbecue.

This year the Empire Day Society has for sale a program with a complete list of times and places of events. The sale of the program and a government grant will help fund the society's activities.

A prize will be offered for the best decorated store window — the Brian Ross Memorial Trophy.

Nanaimo

Children Picked For Trip

NANAIMO — Four 11-year-old children from the Nanaimo area have been chosen to represent Canada at the children's International Summer Village in Waterloo, Ontario this summer.

Making the trip will be Marty Tings, 630 Brechin Road, Terri-Lynn Philip, Lost Lake Road, Gerry Kielman, 3659 Uplands Drive, and Chris Huber, 45 Cavan Street.

Between July 11 and Aug. 8, the children will host other 11-year-olds from England, Finland, Guatemala, Italy, Japan, the United States, Sweden, Spain, Norway, and the Philippines.

There will be similar camps in 17 other countries bringing children together from more than 40 countries.

International friendship, love, understanding, and respect for fellow man is the theme of the international villages.

More than 100 applications were received from 11-year-olds within the Nanaimo School District. The applications were handled in such a way that judges did not know their names, and identified them by number only. The five judges were a cub leader, youth worker, retired businessman, teenager, and teacher.

Twenty-four of the children, wearing numbers for identification gathered for group seminars and personal interviews, then 16 finalists attended a weekend camp at Lake Cowichan.

Following a further outing at Bowen Park in Nanaimo the four were chosen.

Trudeau, Kosygin seal protocol in Kremlin

Kosygin Agrees to Visit Canada

● Kosygin spurns international Arctic talks. See Page 14.

● Trudeau Russian poet's superman. Page 59.

MOSCOW (CP) — Even as Canada and Russia entered a new phase of co-operation and consultation in a variety of fields Wednesday, Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin accepted an invitation to visit Canada.

When Prime Minister Trudeau first extended the invitation Tuesday, Kosygin merely thanked him without committing himself.

Wednesday, the prime minister renewed the invitation and, Canadian officials reported, Kosygin accepted with greatest pleasure.

No date was set.

A protocol providing for the new phase of agreement between the two countries was signed by Trudeau and Kosygin just prior to a gala reception given by Trudeau at the Soviet government guest house where he and Mrs. Trudeau have been staying in Moscow's Lenin Hills.

It envisages close collaboration between the two northern neighbors in such matters as Arctic pollution control, northern development, science, technology and culture.

It also calls for speedy exchanges of view between the Soviet and Canadian governments in times of international crisis, to see "what might be done to improve the situation."

Signing of the protocol followed an unexpectedly long, two-hour interview be-

Bolshoi Head Rates Margaret Good Prospect

MOSCOW (CP) — The woman director of Moscow's famous Bolshoi Ballet school sized up a slender and beautiful visitor Wednesday and pronounce her a good ballerina prospect.

The visitor was Margaret Trudeau.

"You have everything it takes to make a good ballerina," the director, Sophia Nikolaevna Golovkina, told Mrs. Trudeau after giving her an appraising look towards the end of the visitor's 1¼-hour stay.

The director told Mrs. Trudeau at another point that she would make a good gypsy dancer. The prime minister's young bride saw exhibitions of folk dancing as well as ballet dancing while at the school.

Mrs. Golovkina had still another observation to make about Mrs. Trudeau. "I can see from your eyes you are happy," she remarked before her visitor departed.

Spillover Pollution

Take U.S. to Court Nader Tells Canada

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada should challenge the United States before the World Court and other international tribunals on the pollution that spills over into this country from the U.S., Ralph Nader told more than 1,000 persons here Wednesday night.

Nader, speaking at a meeting of the University of British Columbia's alumni association, said Canada has an "exquisite" opportunity to generate "a common international law controlling these acts and contamination against mankind" and to develop international institutions "that will begin to exercise authority in the control of such international pollution."

"Along the Canada-United States border there's obviously more pollution going toward Canada than from Canada to the States," he said.

"I think it's time to begin developing a very healthy adversary relationship with the States in a legal context."

Nader, an American-consumer affairs advocate, said if Canadians needed additional stimulation to do so, it "will be forthcoming in the AEC (Atomic Energy Commission) tests in the Aleutians, will be forthcoming in the Alaska pipeline and oil tanker sequence" and in the increasing pressures that will spill over into Canada as a result of the U.S. "lack of ability to toilet train ourselves in a civilized fashion."

Nader, a director of Consumers Union, which publishes Consumer Reports, said the public will never find a satisfactory formula for controlling power in industry and government until it adopts new standards of citizenship.

"This type of citizenship must be a fulltime occupation," he said. "People are already beginning to ask what can I do to help the community and how do I go about it?"

Nader also called for a new conscience on the part of workers in plants where the quality of workmanship is not up to standard.

Europe Units Intact

Nixon Wins Forces Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) The Senate handed President Nixon a major foreign policy victory Wednesday night by rejecting a series of proposals to force cuts in the 300,000-man U.S. military contingent in Europe.

The vote was 61-36.

In a day-long debate, senators turned aside a variety of alternative plans before rejecting Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield's proposal for a 50-per-cent cut in the European force by the end of 1971.

President Nixon had taken an uncompromising position against the Mansfield amendment and less-sweeping proposals pushed by other senators from both parties.

Despite defeat of all of the troop-cut proposals, the debate disclosed broad support for making some reduction in U.S. manpower in Europe. Senators were unwilling, however, to force Nixon to make such cuts.

Since it was introduced eight days ago, the Mansfield amendment was the subject of strong criticism in Europe as well as an all-out administration counter-offensive.

Backers claimed the amendment produced a significant improvement in the East-West climate by bringing last week's proposal by Soviet Communist party chairman Leonid Brezhnev for troop-reduction talks and the Nixon administration's response it was interested in talks.

"If the climate has changed," Senator Frank Church, (Dem.—Idaho), told the senate, "it is because the senator from Montana, Mr. Mansfield, put forth this proposal."

Before getting to the Mansfield amendment, the Senate voted down several variations on it.

Mackasey

Added Winter Jobless Funds Denied

OTTAWA (UPI) — The federal government does not plan to extend the seasonal unemployment insurance benefits which expired last Saturday, Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey said Wednesday.

The minister had been asked by both the Conservative and New Democratic parties to consider extending the benefits for at least another month following the release of figures which showed seasonally adjusted unemployment had climed to 6.7 per cent in April from 6.0 per cent in March.

In a statement to the House of Commons, Mackasey said after reviewing the situation he did not think it necessary to extend the benefits. He noted it would cost $25 million to $40 million for a six-week extension.

Mackasey said as of May 15 the number of persons drawing seasonal benefits this year was 200,000 as opposed to 180,000 at the same time last year.

He described those drawing benefits as persons "who have a very minimal attachment to the labor force but are unable to qualify for regular benefits."

Mackasey said he expected

No Long Energy Deals—Greene

MONTREAL (CP) Energy Minister J. J. Greene said Wednesday Canada should avoid long-term energy trading commitments with the United States which may have unpredictable results on the Canadian economy before they expire.

Greene told the spring meeting of the American Petroleum Institute's marketing division: "There is no place in Canada-U.S. energy relations for trading arrangements amounting to long-term commitments too far in advance of our ability to predict their consequences to the Canadian economy and, therefore, to continental relations."

Few people were accurate in their forecasts for the last two or three years, he said, and with that in mind "it would be wrong to commit too far downstream resources which belong to the Canadian people."

"We are not against the export of these resources when they are clearly in excess of our own requirements, particularly where the export today can benefit the Canadians of today, and at the same time help generate the discovery of more resources for the Canadians of tomorrow."

Greene said Canada should be increasingly concerned about exports of more labor-intensive products.

Canada's trading partners should open their doors to more Canadian finished products if they want to make use of a developing natural resource industry in this country, he said.

"I am certainly in agreement with those who suggest Canada must achieve access to foreign markets for highly-processed resources carrying a much greater Canadian

Privies Rise in Protest

TORONTO (CP) — Irate homeowner Louis Bunda has set up two portable privies on the front lawn of his $50,000 home in one of Toronto's wealthiest neighborhoods to protest a sewer pipe mixup.

Bunda said Wednesday he set up the toilets after discovering that a sewer line installed by Yorkborough was five inches above the connection to his house.

The borough wants to charge him $880 to hook up the connection. Bunda, an investor, says he'll make do with the front-yard privies.

Why two of them?

"It's kind of a classy area," he said. "We need one for the guests and one for the household."

Soviets Send Mars Probe

From AP-Reuter

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union announced Wednesday it has launched a space shot toward Mars and expects it to reach the planet next November.

Named Mars-2 and described as an automatic interplanetary station, the probe was launched Wednesday at 9:23 a.m. Victoria time.

A Moscow radio announcement said the station weighs more than four tons and will cover a distance of about 292 million miles to reach the vicinity of Mars.

The Soviet Union's first station aimed at Mars was Mars-1 launched in November, 1962. Radio contact was lost with it the following May, a month before it was scheduled to reach the planet.

Mars-2 is far larger and shows the development in Soviet space technique in the nine years since the Mars-1 failure.

The main purpose of Mars-2 is to "carry out a complex of scientific research about the planet Mars and the space surrounding it," Tass says.

Meanwhile, the U.S. space agency announced Wednesday a new postponement until May 23 in the launch of a Mariner unmanned spacecraft toward Mars while scientists continue to investigate the failure of an identical mission May 8.

Prisoners Barricaded

DORCHESTER, N.B. (UPI) — More than 200 prisoners at Dorchester maximum security prison barricaded themselves in the prison gymnasium Wednesday night. Two inmates were slightly wounded by buckshot while attempting to escape.

It was not known if they were holding hostages.

B-57 Down Near North Bay

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) A United States B-57 bomber with two persons aboard, crashed Wednesday night shortly after takeoff.

A spokesman for national defence headquarters in Ottawa said the plane went down in a densely-wooded area about eight miles from the end of the runway. There was no word about survivors.

He said the scene was a "fireball and no-one can get within a mile of the crash. There's no radio contact at all."

Wallace Staggered by Loffmark Proposal

Post-Mortem Tax 'Impossible'

Wallace

By HUBERT BEYER

"This would be a retrograde step — the proposal staggers me," Dr. G. Scott Wallace, Social Credit MLA for Oak Bay, said Wednesday.

Wallace was commenting on a plan, outlined earlier in the day by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark in Vancouver, according to which the provincial government would pay the cost of nursing home care for the aged, but would be reimbursed from the estates of patients with funds.

After a patient with funds had died, the minister said, the government would investigate the estate and the needs of the beneficiaries.

This proposal, he said, would counter Wallace's statements Monday that the government didn't attempt to provide care for the elderly unless they were on welfare.

But Wallace told the Colonist Wednesday the minister's latest plan for "a post-mortem tax" on nursing home patients in no way countered his criticism.

"This has got to be way-out," he said.

"It would be an impossible task for any civil servant to examine the needs of beneficiaries. It is bound to be an unfair method of financing medical care," Wallace said.

His main criticism has been and still is, the government's refusal to apply the same formula of financing to persons in need of medical care, he said.

"If the minister wants to introduce post-mortem taxation, he should apply it to all levels of care — acute, intermediate and extended."

If Loffmark's plan were adopted, Wallace said, it would mean that acute-care patients will continue to receive medical service at the "totally unrealistic rate of $1 a day," while nursing home patients would have their

Vegetable—Last Word in Eating

—Barry Casson

Tate tests soup in kitchen

By BILL BARRINGER

You go into Vegetable which is a brand new restaurant downtown, and here are all these . . . mushrooms . . . growing out of a Persian rug from the Goodwill store. As it turns out, the mushrooms are actually tables and chairs.

A recording of Julian Bream infuses the place with Bach a la lute. To the right, heavy wooden shelves hold big glass jars of honey and biodegradable bags of extract of peony, or whatever. The Whole Earth catalogue lives.

A young man named Denis Murphy works his way through the mushrooms and gets to you. He has the eyes of a fawn and a fine beard. He is really nice.

"Oh," says Denis, like he's surprised you're actually in his restaurant. "Hello there."

"Hello," you say.

Organic Shake

Denis is smiling like mad.

"Well," you say finally, determined to stick it out, "I thought I'd come in and have something to eat."

"Oh," says Denis, "that's great. What would you like?"

There is no menu or anything. Denis' girlfriend, Melon Schwam, is sitting at a nearby mushroom lettering a little sign that will eventually tell all, but right now, it's up to you.

"We have soup, salad, vegetable plates, great baked potatoes, sandwiches, rice, organic milkshakes . . ."

"What're they?"

"They're where we use whole milk," Denis says. "The real thing. It's not pasteurized or homogenized, nothing. When you heat milk, you lose a lot of its value. Then honey, an egg if you want it—a lot of vegetarians don't want eggs—then we blend it all up for you."

"Okay. I'll have that and a salad plate."

Good Smells

Denis tries to look casual as he races to the back. The kitchen is fantastic. It smells wonderful. All that organic food. There is a huge iron pot that Denis and Melon and their friend Stephen Tate bought from Jim's Curio Shop. It is bubbling away with some kind of thick soup. Fresh bread is baking in the oven.

More people come in. Denis is going around trying to remember everybody's order. "I better start using a scratch pad or something to keep track of all this," he mutters to himself. Steve is building a sandwich of cheese and tomatoes on these monstrous slices of bread.

"That's an awfully big sandwich," Denis says.

Suggests Cut

"Yeah," says Steve. "I used the centre slices of the bread. I hope he can eat it all."

"You better cut it in two for him," says Melon. "By the way, I'd appreciate it if you two would put the dirty dishes over there when you bring them in."

Steve looks guilty. "I've been busy," he says.

"Just so you know," says Milon, "okay?"

The food is ready. Your stuff comes. It looks great, smells great, costs next to nothing, but . . . but . . .

Pull Up a Mushroom, Sip an Organic Shake

"Uh, could I have something to eat this with?" you say.

"Oh," says Denis again. "Surely. Wait just a minute."

He rushes back to the kitchen. He returns with . . . chopsticks.

Second Try

"Far out," you say. "But, like, I'm into this very heavy relationship with knives and forks, man, and . . ."

Denis disappears into the kitchen again. "He wants a knife and fork, Melon. He wants . . ."

So that's Vegetable—the newest and probably the only completely vegetarian restaurant in town.

The place opened its doors at 1020 Blanshard just this week under the proprietorship of Denis, Melon and Steve, three Victorians in their early twenties with absolutely no restaurant experience and even less operating capital.

"We were living out in the country and making these great meals for each other," Denis says. "So we decided we'd make them for other people too.

No Profit Aim

"We're not in this to make a profit, so we're keeping the prices very low. We just want to be able to pay the rent and sustain ourselves."

All three share in the complete operation—cooking, waiting on tables, cleaning up, taking the money, everything.

All of the food is organically grown, and cooked according to the apparently infinite rules of health enthusiasts. Cast iron pots, for instance, are used rather than aluminum pots.

"Aluminum pots give off alum," Denis says. "Over a period of time, well . . ." his voice trails off. You shudder to imagine what might happen over a period of time, the way he says it.

"Besides," says Steve, "the food tastes better."

Growers Sought

To get started, the trio imported a lot of health food and organically grown vegetables from Vancouver, but they are hoping to involve local gardeners in their restaurant.

"What we'd like to get going," says Denis, "is that somebody in Victoria has a garden and sells directly to us. That way, we could have all sorts of people interacting with the place, and plenty of vegetables that have just come out of the ground."

The same theory goes for potters and artists, who are welcome to share their wares with the restaurant.

For Everybody

"We just want a real human place, with people coming and going," Denis says. "We're not catering especially to kids or longhairs, but to everybody. Plenty of people are vegetarians for many different reasons.

"So, we're trying to make a place for them."

As for such professionally slick little details as menus and fixed hours and all of that, Denis, Steve and Melon are quite content to leave those worries to the Howard Johnsons of this world. Asked if Vegetable is likely to stay open late on Friday and Saturday nights, Denis says:

"I don't know. We haven't come to a Friday or Saturday yet."

Ogden Point Key Issue

Victoria Granted Harbor Board

By HUBERT BEYER

Victoria has received approval from the federal government to form its own harbor commission, Mayor Courtney Haddock said Wednesday.

But Ottawa's nod may turn out to be nothing but a useless gesture.

Unless the Ogden Point docks are placed under the proposed commission's jurisdiction, the mayor said, there would be no practical purpose to form such a commission in the first place.

Past indications had been that Canadian National Railways, which operate the docks, were not interested in turning jurisdiction over to any harbor commission, he added.

'Crucial Part'

"I hope the federal government will see fit not to renew the (annual) lease for Ogden Point with the CNR," he said.

"Ogden Point is a crucial part of the scheme. Without it, there won't be any commission," he said.

The mayor told the Colonist he had received word Wednesday from David Groos, Liberal MP for Victoria-Oak Bay, that the city may go ahead with its planned harbor commission.

"I'm thrilled about the news. If and when we appoint the commission, all revenue from the city's harbor will stay here instead of going to Ottawa," the mayor said.

Definition

Next step, he said, would be to turn the matter over to the city's administrative staff for further consultation with the federal authorities to define exact points of reference for the proposed commission.

It would take several months, Haddock said, before the commission could actually be established.

Meanwhile a CNR official said the federal government's go-ahead for the commission was a complete suprise to him.

"I'm really surprised; this would be a complete reversal of a statement made last week by Transport Minister Don Jamieson that it would probably be another two or three years before a decision will be made with regard to Victoria's harbor commission," said Fred Ritchie, CNR's Ogden Point dock agent.

Objectives

A report, prepared last year by a special committee under chairmanship of Harold Elworthy, listed six main objectives for the proposed commission:

- To undertake a program of efficient and responsible administration of harbor areas within its jurisdiction.
- To control and regulate traffic and activities of vessels within the harbor area.
- To improve and expand existing deep-water berthing, cargo-handling, storage and assembly facilities.
- To promote and develop increased commodity shipment through facilities of the commission.
- To improve and develop new facilities for commercial fishing and pleasure vessels.
- To initiate and encourage improved land use and land development in the harbor area in the best interest of the region's economy.

Labor Seeks Care Control

By DON COLLINS

Victoria Labor Council is launching a petition aimed at provincial government takeover of rest homes and private hospitals.

It will seek to have the 151,000-member B.C. Federation of Labor co-sponsor the petition. (See earlier story Page 47).

Essentially, the move has been prompted by the threat of the B.C. Rest Home Association to evict welfare cases as a result of a financial dispute with the province — a suggestion the council finds distasteful.

Also involved is the failure of National Nursing Homes Ltd. to bargain with the 28 women strikers at Sandringham Private Hospital, 1650 Fort, who are seeking a first contract.

Labor council president Jack Groves told delegates at Wednesday night's meeting that he had evidence Sandringham, contrary to claims, was a money-making institution.

He said the hospital's assets were listed as $554,000 in 1970 and that its owners had turned down an offer of more than $900,000 as recently as two or three weeks ago from a prospective buyer.

He said the offer was to pay $10,000 a bed and that there are 91 beds in Sandringham.

Questioned after the meeting, Groves said he did not have permission to name the would-be buyer but maintained the offer was "quite legitimate" and that the hospital would have been fully aware of this.

During the meeting he said: "It just goes to show these people (Sandringham owners) are just out to suck more money out of the people of this province in the real lucrative business of taking care of the aged people."

Sandringham is managed by the Vancouver-based National Nursing Homes Ltd., which manages and owns other private hospitals elsewhere in the country.

In the petition drafted by the labor council's executive, concern is expressed for the "decline in the operational standards of private hospitals and rest homes in B.C. as now being indicated by the threat of rest home operators to evict patients and, in the case of private hospitals, by the demands of the owners of these institutions for more public funds for welfare patients."

The petition also refers to the "point blank refusal" of National Nursing Homes to negotiate a collective agreement at Sandringham, where the strike is almost eight months old.

Merchants Give Yates Street To Pedestrians

"Why doesn't the government do something?"

That's probably one of the most frequently uttered questions when it comes to taxpayers complaining about broken sidewalks, potholes in the street and lack of what they consider good planning.

Some time ago, the merchants of Victoria's 700-block Yates gave that question a new twist:

"Why don't we do something?" they asked themselves.

They did. They did a lot about broken sidewalks and potholes, but they went a step further.

They built sheltering roofs along both sides of the 700-block Yates giving shoppers protection from the city's sometimes nasty winter rains.

Perhaps most important, they paid for the job themselves. The city's taxpayers, often asked to improve this and restore that, didn't have to contribute a cent.

And again, the merchants asked themselves, "Why don't we do more?"

So they went about planning the improvement of what had always been just a shopping street, no more and no less.

Now the results are in.

At 11 a.m. Saturday, Mayor Courtney Haddock will officially open the "new" 700-block Yates, a street that has been given back to the pedestrians.

The sidewalks have been widened; benches have been installed offering weary shoppers a moment of rest among a maze of flowers, shrubs and trees which have also been planted.

The project has been labelled a beautification program carried out under a local improvement scheme. That means participating property owners (in this case the merchants) are paying the major part of the cost.

Total expenditures for the project amount to approximately $70,000 of which the merchants pay $50,000, and the city $20,000.

The city will make the cash outlay of the merchants' share, but recover the money by levying a special mill rate on the merchants for a 20-year period.

"These people have the right spirit," Haddock said recently.

"They don't just ask the city for everything they want; they go and do it themselves."

Airport Seizure

Customs Halt 'Potent' LSD

By BRUCE LOWTHER

A seizure of a small container of what the RCMP called "extremely potent" LSD that might have been turned into 20,000 tablets for street sale was made Tuesday evening at Patricia Bay Airport by an alert Canada Customs official.

The disclosure was made by an RCMP spokesman after a 24-year-old California man appeared Wednesday morning in Sidney Provincial Court on a charge of trafficking in a restricted drug.

The man, James Dale Mitchell of Albany, Calif., was remanded by Judge D. G. Ashby to May 27 for possible election of trial method and plea. Bail was set at $4,000 and indications were efforts would be made to obtain a lawyer for Mitchell through Legal Aid.

The RCMP spokesman said Alex Effa, supervisor of customs and excise for the Sidney and airport district, became suspicious of a passenger who got off a Pacific Western Airlines plane from Seattle at 6:20 p.m.

The spokesman said Effa held the passenger and got in touch with RCMP. A search was conducted and a small container was found on the man.

The container was not described further by the spokesman, but he said it contained "extremely potent" material that might have been made into an estimated 20,000 tablets of LSD for street sale in the Greater Victoria area.

He said the price of a tablet might have ranged from 80 cents to $1.50 depending upon the number of tablets bought. He added the seizure was one of the largest ever made on Vancouver Island.

Both the RCMP spokesman and a Canada Customs official in Victoria commended Effa for his actions.

The customs official said past experience had shown experienced customs officers "get a sense about certain things at certain times . . . We've been on the alert for at least a couple of years for potential smuggling of controlled drugs. He just had a feeling."

New Officers Elected

The Victoria Chapter, Administrative Management Society, elected the following officers for the year 1971-1972 at a recent meeting: S. T. Fitzpatrick, president; R. W. Dougans, vice-president; Margot Sinclair, secretary; M. H. Flett, treasurer.

Urban Life

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell will speak on urban life in the 70s, at the meeting of the Men's Canadian Club of Victoria to be held at 12:10 p.m., May 26, in the Empress Hotel.

Saanich Ambulance Ousts Old Vehicle

Saanich fire department has a new ambulance.

The new machine, which cost about $10,000, was given a coat of white paint Wednesday.

It was bought from R. V. Industries, Calgary. A General Motors van, it replaces the department's one ambulance, a 1961 Cadillac, which was traded in for the new one.

The ambulance will be on duty 24 hours a day with a crew of two — an industrial first-aid man and a fireman — who have been undergoing training to upgrade standards.
